Clay Refuses To Join Up

Faces Jail Term, Loss of Title

HOUSTON (AP)—Heavyweight champion Cassius Clay refused army induction today and faced a possible five-year prison sentence and loss of his title.

Lt-Col. J. D. McKee, commander of the Houston Induction Centre, announced that Clay, who contends he spends 90 per cent of his time as a Black Muslim preacher, had refused to take the traditional step forward symbolizing entrance into the Armed Services.

U.S. Attorney Morton Susman said he would begin immediate criminal action, but estimated that legal procedures would take from 30 to 60 days even to get an indictment.

"Even then it may be two years before this can be fought out in the courts," Susman said.

"Meanwhile, Clay, or Muhammad Ali if you wish, will be free to keep on fighting and preaching."

MAY LOSE TITLE

In New York, the influential State Athletic Commission announced Clay would be stripped of his title and an elimination tournament would be staged to pick a successor.

The World Boxing Association and other controlling groups in the sport were expected to take similar action.

Clay insisted "I will take my title to prison with me."

His attorney, Hayden Covington of New York, announced he would file immediately a 67-page law suit challenging the entire structure of the Selective Service System and the right of the government to take criminal action against his client.

"The champ will never go to jail—we will fight this out to the finish," Covington said. He added that he planned to go immediately to Washington to seek an injunction against the government's prosecution of the heavyweight champion.

SAYS HE'S MINISTER

Clay sought to avoid the draft on grounds that he is a practicing minister of the Islam faith and that boxing is only a sideline.

His lawyers contended also that he was discriminated against because of the unpopularity of the Muslim religion and the makeup of the Texas draft boards which they said have an unfair Negro representation.

Mainland Air Crash Kills Two

VANCOUVER (CP)—The bodies of two men were found early today after their light aircraft was seen crashing to marshy swamplands next to the Vancouver airport about midnight.

Rescue teams found the bodies of Robert Kevin Johnson, 38, and Dean LaMar Hoffman, 44, both of Powell River, about 2:15 a.m.

Workmen reported seeing the one-engine airplane smash into the swamp, but it took rescue crews more than two hours before they found the crumpled wreckage about 100 feet from where the aircraft first struck down.

ONE ROCKET, 5 SATELLITES

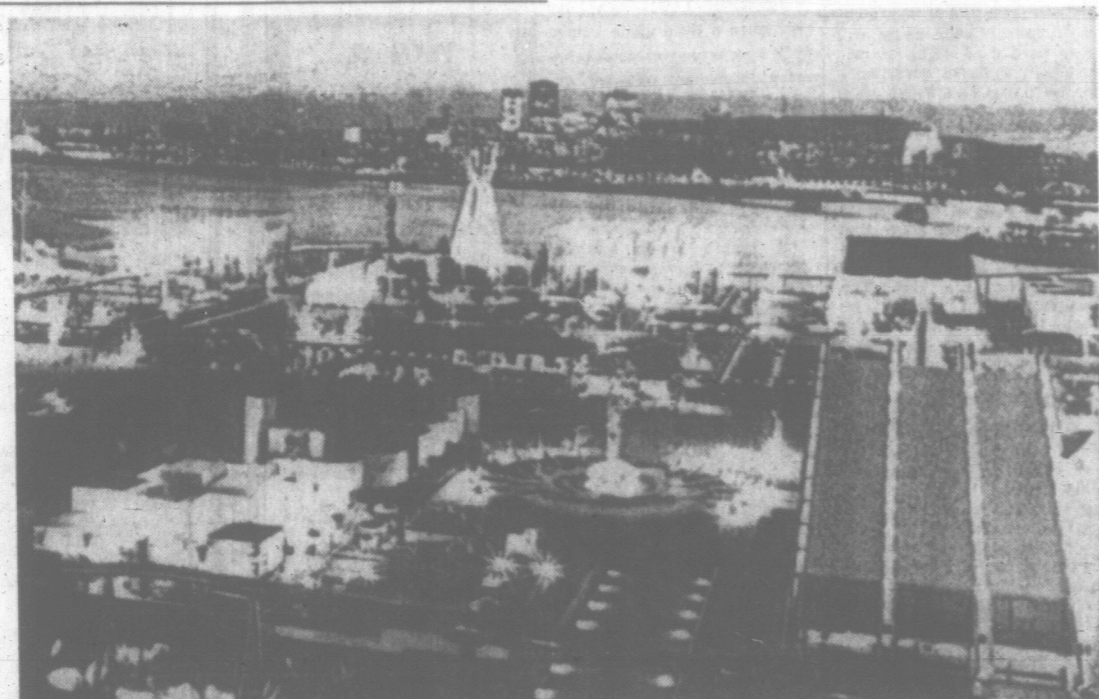

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP)—A powerful Titan rocket today successfully orbited three scientific satellites and two robot sentries to police any violations of the nuclear test-ban treaty.

"Everything looks very good," an air force spokesman reported after all five satellites sprung free from the booster's last stage.

UNMANNED SPUTNIK ORBITED BY RUSSIA

MOSCOW (UPI)—Cosmos-156, an unmanned Sputnik, spun around the earth today. It was a symbol of Russia's determination to stay in the space race despite the in-flight death of its most experienced cosmonaut.

The Thursday launch of the Sputnik came about 24 hours after the ashes of cosmonaut Vladimir Komarov were given a hero's burial in the Kremlin Wall.

CANADA WILL NEVER BE THE SAME

Expo 'C'est Merveilleux'

By PETER NEWMAN
Special to The Times

MONTREAL—The canonade of fireworks which marked the opening of Expo, bursting in a technicolor tattoo over the St. Lawrence on an April afternoon, may in retrospect turn out to have been one of those rare moments that change the direction of a nation's history.

Greatest Ever Done

How, after sponsoring this world's fair, can we ever be the same again? This is the greatest thing we have ever done as a nation (including the building of the CPR) and surely the modernization of Canada—of its skyline, of its tastes, its style, its institutions—will be dated from this occasion and from this fair. At the very moment when the sombre presence, amid the gaiety of the day, declared Expo-67 officially open, I was standing in front of the U.S. pavilion, which was shimmering and soaring in the sun like an aviary fit for eagles. Beside me, a young Expo hostess, all done up in white leather and a blue beanie, shrieked in pleasure at no one in particular, "C'est merveilleux".

MONTREAL (CP)—More than 30,000 visitors had entered Expo 67 by noon on its first public day. With an original estimate of nearly 120,000 visitors for the full day, officials were bracing themselves for a heavy rush after 5 p.m.

Earlier, seven men, protesting United States participation in the war in Vietnam, staged a sit-down in the main foyer of the U.S. Pavilion.

The sit-down started as a planned march on Expo by another group of demonstrators dispersed peacefully before reaching the Expo gates.

Overwhelmed

And it was marvellous, all of it. Not just any one building or exhibit; not just the zooming helicopters and purring hovercraft, but everything. It's a wow of a fair. It's fabulous. It's the sun and the moon and the stars. And the more you see of it, the more you're overwhelmed by a feeling that if this is possible, that if this little sub-Arctic, self-obsessed country of 20 million people can put on this kind of show, then it can do almost anything.

The $550 million Expo will cost is a small price for the impression of Canada its 35

Doctor Faces Life in Jail; Convicted of Killing Wife

NAPLES, Fla. (AP)—Dr. Carl Coppolino was convicted of second-degree murder by an all-male jury today in the drug-murder of his wife Carmela and was sentenced to life in prison.

Conviction of second-degree murder carries a penalty of 20 years to life in prison.

Coppolino sat expressionless with his head in his hands as the verdict was delivered at 9:25 a.m. after less than four hours of jury deliberation.

Mary Coppolino, the wealthy divorcee he married after Carmela's death, also sat expressionless in a front row seat just behind her husband at the defence table.

Defence lawyer F. Lee Bailey moved immediately for a new trial and said if the motion was denied the case would be appealed to the Florida Supreme Court.

After the jury foreman, 48-year-old Harry Miller of Naples, delivered the verdict and it was read by the court clerk, Circuit Judge Lynn Silverthorn sent the spectators out of the small, hot courtroom. Then he delivered the sentence of life imprisonment.

Killer Flood

MOSCOW (Reuters)—A wall of water up to 13 feet high swept through the central Asian town of Andijan today, swamping unknown districts and killing an unknown number of people.

COPPOLINO
... expressionless

The 34-year-old doctor, nattily dressed in a black suit and white shirt, was marched under guard out a side door of the courtroom to a jail cell on the same floor.

The defeat was a stunning one for Bailey, the dynamic, 33-year-old Boston defender who sprang into national prominence when he gained a new trial that freed Dr. Sam Sheppard.

The judge ordered Coppolino taken into custody immediately and delivered to the state penitentiary at Raiford. Bailey protested the verdict as invalid and illegal and moved that Coppolino be discharged.

"This is obviously the sort of charge where the verdict must be maximum or nothing," said Bailey. "There is no in-between. From the allegation of poisoning the second-degree conviction cannot stand."

Heavier War Pressure Urged by U.S. General

Viet Chief Tells Congress

By FRED S. HOFFMAN

WASHINGTON (AP)—Gen. William Westmoreland told Congress today the only strategy that can defeat the Communists in Vietnam "is one of unrelenting military, political and psychological pressure on his whole structure—at all levels".

This appeared as a call for increased escalation, possibly including broadened bombing of North Vietnam and commitment of more U.S. troops in South Vietnam.

In an unprecedented personal report to Congress by a war commander, Westmoreland described U.S. forces as "unbeatable" and said they have been successful in destroying Communist main force units.

He said "I can assure you here and now" that the Communist strategem called "war of national liberation" will not succeed in Vietnam.

But while speaking confidently, the U.S. commander of 439,000 men in Vietnam sought to dispel any idea that the Communists are near collapse.

MADE SOME REVISIONS

Several hours before delivering the speech, Westmoreland revised the last third of the text, mainly to streamline it. There were few substantive changes.

He inserted one paragraph which made the point that the Communist enemy "uses covertly border areas of neutral countries." This was an evident reference to the known Communist use of Cambodia and Laos as sanctuaries and rest areas. Neither country was mentioned by name in the paragraph.

In considerable detail, Westmoreland pictured an enemy who has doubled his strength despite heavy battle losses whose commanders are skilled professionals, whose troops are well trained, whose primitive supply system is surprisingly effective.

"I foresee that he will continue his buildup across the demilitarized zone and through Laos, and he will attack us when he believes he has a chance for a dramatic blow," the general predicted.

"I expect the enemy to continue to increase his mortar, artillery, rocket and recoilless rifle attacks on our installations. At the same time he will step up his attacks on hamlet, village and district organizations to intimidate the people and to thwart the democratic processes now under way in South Vietnam."

DIDN'T REPEAT CHARGE

Westmoreland did not repeat his charge—made at The Associated Press annual meeting in New York Monday—that anti-war protests in the United States—which he labelled "unpatriotic"—are encouraging the Communists to fight on, and that this will cost the lives of American and allied soldiers.

The closest the general came to this was to recall that "as I have said before, in evaluating the enemy strategy it is evident to me that he believes our Achilles' heel is our resolve."

He assured Congress his troops—"the finest ever fielded by our nation"—will prevail in Vietnam over Communist aggression, "backed here at home by resolve, confidence, patience, determination and continued support."

Recounting recent instances of Viet Cong assassinations of South Vietnamese civilians, Westmoreland declared:

"One hears little of this brutality here at home. What we do hear about is our own aerial bombing against North Vietnam."

Then, in defence of U.S. air attacks on the North, Westmoreland said:

"For years, the enemy has been blowing bridges, interrupting traffic, cutting roads, sabotaging power stations, blocking canals and attacking airfields in the South, and he continues to do so."

"Bombing in the North has been centred on precisely these same kinds of targets and for the same military purposes—to reduce the supply, to impede the movement and impair the effectiveness of enemy military forces."

MARINES DESPERATE FOR HELP

SAIGON (UPI)—U.S. Marines called today for "all the help we can get" in their frustrated efforts to drive a Communist battalion from strategic Hill 861 in four days of fighting to block a Communist invasion route below the demilitarized zone.

The heavy fighting has killed 87 Marines, wounded 77 and cost at least 2 helicopters. The Marines' cause was hampered severely by Communist mortar, rocket and artillery attacks.

NO ONE WILL BUDGE

Time to Worry Claims Martin

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—Paul Martin, Canada's external affairs minister, said today the positions of the two sides in the Vietnam war have hardened.

"It is a serious situation," he told a press conference.

Martin spoke to reporters after a private 45-minute conversation with UN Secretary-General U Thant. Both Martin and Thant have reviewed the Vietnam situation with a number of governments in Europe and Asia during the last few weeks.

"The dangers are obvious to us all. Now is the time to worry about them."

He said his own ideas as to how the conflict might be ended are simply ideas, not formal proposals at this time.

SIDES WON'T BUDGE

"In my view, there is not going to be any acceptance by either side at the present time of such proposals."

His plan for a four-stage halting of the war and beginning of peace negotiations was outlined to the external affairs committee of the House of Commons in Ottawa April 11.

He told reporters today that despite press reports, he has "no information at this time" that his ideas have been rejected by North Vietnam.

He declined to say whether his pessimistic opinion of current peace prospects coincides with that of Thant.

"I am not saying this is what the Secretary-General thinks; I am saying this is what I think." He declined to comment on his talks at the UN in the last two days with Thant, U.S. Ambassador Arthur Greenberg and Soviet Ambassador Nikolai Fedorenko.

He also turned down questions about the stepped-up U.S. aerial offensives and reports of increased Soviet arms shipments to North Vietnam.

"I am not going to take up this line of questioning at all," he said. "It would not be in the least productive or helpful to the situation."

2-Day Ceasefire Ordered by Cong

SAIGON (CP)—The Viet Cong today ordered their guerrillas to observe a two-day ceasefire beginning May 22 to mark the birth of Buddha.

A statement by the Viet Cong news agency said the truce would be observed in response to an appeal by Buddhist leaders in Saigon, who called for a ceasefire to allow for religious festivals.

South Vietnamese officials said they were studying the Viet Cong proposal, but declined to make any immediate comment on the Communist offer, which doubled a 24-hour ceasefire proposed by South Vietnam and its allies.

A statement by the National Liberation Front, the political arm of Viet Cong, was broadcast by the front's clandestine radio.

It warned, however, that any military attacks by the Saigon government or its allies in the 48-hour period would be "severely punished."

The Viet Cong ceasefire was scheduled to begin at 7 a.m. May 22 and end at 7 a.m. May 24. The South Vietnamese truce, including a pause in the bombing of North Vietnam, was announced April 8 for May 23 only.

ACTION INTENSIFIES

In the ground war, Communist forces in South Vietnam's embattled northern sector poured artillery, mortar and rocket fire on U.S. and government troops overnight in some of the heaviest enemy shelling of the war.

The U.S. Command said 12 American marines were killed and 180 marines and seven army artillerymen were wounded in four attacks. South Vietnamese spokesmen termed their casualties light.

Heavy clouds moved back over much of North Vietnam, limiting air attacks on the North Thursday to 48 missions.

IT Just Floated Away

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP)—A shapely blonde plunged in to a heated swimming pool to demonstrate a new paper bikini for the press and the worst happened—or the best, according to one's point of view.

The top part of the suit—guaranteed not to shrink, burn or disintegrate—floated away Thursday from 23-year-old Noel Steever.

While she sought to fix it, a public relations man explained to gaping reporters:

"It's not really a piece of athletic wear. It's not a thing to go swimming in, really."

Most of the reporters hardly heard him. They were watching Miss Body Chemistry of 1967.

Miss Steever later said the 34 swimsuit "could use some design changes."

HE'S BOXED IN UBCM

Bennett Pokes Holes In Amalgamation Dam

By JOHN MIKA
Legislative Reporter

Premier Bennett beamed proudly at his press conference this week as he showed reporters a black belt and plaque he received as honorary life member of the B.C. Black Belt Association.

The black belt is to judge what the 32nd degree is to the Masonic order — the ultimate rank.

"Expansively, the premier quipped that he deserved the black belt after 25 years in the public arena during which he laid low many political opponents—he rattled off a list of names: "A n s o m b, Fleming and Fulton, Byron-Johnson, Art Laing, Winch and Webster."

MIKA

"He delivered a couple of quick karate chops at current political foes to show he really did deserve a belt."

"Now I find one of the political parties in B.C. are up to their old tactics of the turmoil they've always been in. The CCF-NDP, since they started in 1933 have never had trust in their leaders and no trust in the working man."

He said the current leadership contest between Robert Strachan and Tom Berger is only the latest chapter in a continuing series of leadership struggles that have characterized the left wing-party.

These go back to the Connell-Telford struggle early in the provincial CCF's history which prove that the socialists are "just a feuding party" mistrusted by the electorate, he said, cocking his arm for the sideswipe that followed.

CCF-NDP leadership contests have "been going on as long as the one in (Communist) China but not quite as long as in Russia, but it doesn't matter who wins the current conflict because the electorate will still reject a party shot through with 'terrible rivalries'."

(Understandably, he didn't make any pronouncements on the cracks within his own camp with Cyril Sheford (SC-Omineca) publicly threatening to cross the floor if the government doesn't do something about high gasoline prices.)

Having delivered his slam at the NDP, he turned to the Union of B.C. Municipalities. After jabbing his thumb into their eyes a couple of times—just misguided cry-babies he said who obviously do not need royal commission study of their problems under his government—the premier let fly with a judo-type kick, metaphorically speaking:

"I have noticed that some of them don't hesitate to raise their own salaries while they're crying about the poor municipal taxpayers... It's just 92 per cent, crocodile tears."

He grinned while he made the last crack, a sly old crocodile grin, because he knew he had bitten deep into a sensitive spot.

And just how can the UBCM directors, meeting in emergency session today, counter a remark like that? Serious recitation of grievances produces a public yawn but snide quips bring a giggle of delight, even from victims of the grievances.

But Premier Bennett has good reason to laugh at the UBCM because he's boxed them in beautifully this year.

By pegging the assessment roll and giving just enough more money for school purposes to appear to be doing something to help without really remedying the municipalities' problems, he is relentlessly driving them along a plotted course.

And that course is regional government or, in many more cases, outright amalgamation.

Municipal affairs Minister Dan Campbell sounded the call at the last session. Amalgamation of a great many areas are needed, he said, for a national disposition of resources to solve modern urban problems that have proved too much for the splintered local governments created in decades gone by.

Mr. Bennett this week confirmed that he too thinks the answer is amalgamation—which would automatically produce a giant assessment roll to meet the giant urban problems in Vancouver and Victoria areas particularly.

"But we want it to come voluntarily. We do not believe in forcing it," he insisted.

Mr. Bennett, of course, knows full well which way the public will "volunteer" if it is given a choice between his solution and steeply rising mill rates this year and in future years. He won't permit a royal commission or any independent study because he is deliberately building up public pressure behind the municipal councils' general stand against amalgamation.

And if he can convince the ratepayers that their elected representatives are only shedding crocodile tears, that will help break the amalgamation dam.

Well might he smile as he tries on the black belt for size.

million visitors will take away with them. Never again will they need think of us—or will we need think of ourselves—as an impotent appendage of either Great Britain or the United States. They may not learn much about our history (even though the Canadian pavilion makes it as alive and interesting as it deserves to be) but they will know that we are a nation which has joined the 20th century and is heading for the 21st. The imagination on display on these two tiny islands in the St. Lawrence has established this much beyond dispute.

Establishment

A kaleidoscope of impressions of the first day at the fair crowd in: Passing a pale-blue Buick lonely in the morning on the Ottawa-Montreal highway and in the back seat the upright and somehow gallant figure of John Diefenbaker on his unheralded way to the fair his government first sponsored and brought to its tremulous beginning... Jack Pickersgill, nervously removing his fedora, just in case the tune the Expo band was playing happened to be some country's national anthem... George Hees, striding into the stands where the opening ceremonies were taking place, flexing his shoulder muscles like a tired but still game quarterback... The provincial premiers like wedding cake figures stepping up to the dais in morning clothes... Jean Drapeau, triumphant, the real founder and moving spirit of the fair... This was the establishment gathered in mink and millinery to offer itself ponderous congratulations.

Exceeded Dream

Outside was the fair that had exceeded their dreams and everyone else's so full of youth and gaiety that it made the middle-aged spill laughter. Everywhere there were pretty girls, all mini-skirts and smiles, German girls in peart-grey boots and orange tights; British girls striped from top to bottom in red, white and blue; Czech girls with open Slav faces and scarlet wool suits; Pakistani girls demure in saris. Outside the Indian pavilion I saw a Sikh on a sawhorse, laughing, and inside the American pavilion I heard a Negro marine soft-selling the Apollo program.

One of the biggest surprises of this astonishing fair was the British pavilion, so stodgy on the outside, so witty within, a celebration of the history of the English-speaking peoples presented with unexpected flair and self-deprecating humor. In the middle of industrial marvels, literary giants, historical pageants, there's an untidy line of bushes with burrs and birds singing and a sign that proclaims: "Is there under heaven a more glorious and refreshing object than an impregnable hedge?"

In the mini-rail that rings the fairgrounds and provides a breathtaking over-all look at the fair's marvels, people were polling each other and saying, "Look at Greece," "Look at Cuba," "Look at France, taking pleasure in everything, in every nation's accomplishments."

It was a day to be remembered for a lifetime. I came to the fair, a nationalist, full of pride in Canada. I left it, a humanist, full of hope for man.

ARMY IN GERMANY

Help Britain Pay Costs

LONDON (Reuters)—The foreign exchange bill for maintaining forces in West Germany and Britain reached agreement today about the financing of British forces in West Germany, officials here said.

The agreement is for the British financial year ending March 31 next.

It will help Britain meet about $216,000,000 of its $246,000,000

Germany now is expected to contribute about $147,000,000 to the British foreign exchange bill under the new agreement.

Because the entire British foreign exchange bill is not being fully met through American and West German contributions and because of British economies, Britain is expected to withdraw about 5,000 men from its 59,000 forces in West Germany during the first quarter of next year.

Details of the agreement, reached at the end of a two-day meeting, were not officially announced. They will first be passed on to the other NATO allies.

BOYS STEAL DEATH TRAP

LONDON (AP)—Two boys snatched a little white guinea pig from an agricultural ministry laboratory outside London Thursday night.

They apparently didn't know the animal had anthrax, tuberculosis and brucellosis, which can be transmitted to humans with possible fatal results.

Chicken Wire, Concrete Used in Building Boat

By SHIRLEY HEWETT

There is one boat building material which is currently in very short supply in southwest B.C. Chicken wire. Fine mesh chicken wire, Robert Impey and Ted Young of Sidney are competing with 10 Vancouver boat builders for the available rolls. Considering the dimensions of their boat... 51 feet long with 14 foot seven-inch beam and six-foot five-inch draft... quite a quantity of chicken wire will be required. Over 16,000 square feet, to be exact. The key word in this method of construction is cement.

Hewett

"skeleton" of the ship is welded pipe along with steel rods, which are laced on with wire. Likewise, the half-inch wire mesh is tied to the frame with wire strands. The next step, the "pouring of the ballast," was completed last Tuesday. Nine men worked all day putting 3,000 pounds of scrap iron into the keel section. This was encased in cement, and trowelled smooth on the outside. Altogether, an estimated 80 sacks of cement will be consumed. Over this surface, an epoxy finish will probably be used. Theoretically, in cement construction, it is the finish which makes the boat watertight. Fully rigged, the ship should weigh in at close to 30 tons. She will be powered with a 120 h.p. diesel engine.

Not New

Cement boats are not a new concept. Concrete freighters were built in Europe as early as the First World War. But New Zealand was the first to introduce small yachts made of concrete. In our region, the method has caught on particularly for commercial vessels such as fishing boats.

Until their new boat is completed, sometime in the summer of 1968, the Impey and Young families can still be water-borne. Currently,

Robert has a 20-foot Dutch design, the Wandon, while Ted owns a 28-foot Herreshoff ketch, the Bird of Dawning, which he finished only three years ago. However, the four adults are already planning how to bundle their six offspring (which will then be aged from one to 11 years) into forward and aft sections, so that never the twain of them will meet; or, at least, will meet with a minimum of confusion. Ultimate destination is England, but the route and time allowance will be "played by ear."

Sailboats this weekend will usher in the summer racing season for both RVYC and RCNSA. Commencing May 2, Royal Victoria evening "round the buoy" series will be held on Tuesdays and Wednesdays, with "long distance" races most weekends. RCN sailorettes and dinghies will race on weekends, and later on, midweek.

To paraphrase an old saying, "now that summer's here, can the Duggins be far behind?"

But until the Duggins arrives, surely the most unique boat in Victoria must be the graceful steel ribbed hull which now takes shape inside a plastic sheeted shed behind Randle's Landing.

GREEKS DENY COMMUNIST CONDEMNED

ATHENS (Reuters) — A spokesman for the Greek military government today denied that Manolis Glezos, a leading Greek Communist and Lenin Peace Prize winner, had been sentenced to death.

"This is completely inaccurate," the spokesman told Reuters news agency. A report from Belgrade said Glezos had been sentenced by a military tribunal and was due to be executed today.

Moscow radio broadcast repeated appeals this morning for action to save him. Glezos, 45, a wartime resistance hero and staunch Communist, has been jailed six times since 1942.

"It might be my centennial project to leave but obviously it doesn't have to be to leave in 1967," the Liberal MP for Niagara Falls told a reporter.

'No Byelection'—Judy QUEBEC (CP) — State Secretary Judy LaMarsh said Wednesday she does not intend to contest another election but she does not plan to "cause any by-elections."

Senate Roadblock Faces Capital Punishment Bill

By RONALD LEBEL

OTTAWA (CP) — A bill to abolish capital punishment generally is expected to win approval in the Commons later this year, but Senate passage is far less certain.

While MPs have debated the issue three times since 1960, the upper house has not debated the death penalty for 11 years and only a handful of senators have put their views on record.

Opinion surveys and Commons "free votes" have shown that older people tend to favor capital punishment for murder. This factor could be significant in the Senate. Out of 97 members at present, 40 are over 70 and eight others over 65.

Senators generally adopt a tough attitude toward law enforcement. This was demonstrated again this week, when the upper house added a rider to the anti-LSD bill that would make it a crime merely to "promote" the drug in TV programs.

VARY APPROACH The Commons' next "hanging debate" promises to be different from the one a year ago because the government has changed its parliamentary strategy.

Next session, the vehicle for the debate will be a formal Criminal Code amendment drafted and introduced by the government. There has been no indication when the vote will come.

The bill will have the open backing of Prime Minister Pearson and most of his cabinet colleagues. In the 1966 free vote, the House defeated 143 to 112 a resolution sponsored by four backbenchers and asking the government to abolish hangings. The motion would have carried if 16 retentionists had switched to the abolition side.

What particularly doomed the 1966 resolution was that 51 Liberals, mostly from Quebec, voted no. Many of these Liberals personally supported abolition but felt they should reflect the pro-hanging sentiment in their ridings. This year they may argue that public opinion is swinging toward abolition and that voting for a government bill is the right thing for a Liberal MP to do.

In the Senate, party ties are looser and the appointed members don't have to worry about angry constituents.

City Ambulance Bids Higher Than Expected

The lowest bid received to operate Victoria's city ambulance service was almost $8,000 higher than anticipated.

Low bidders were Garden City Ambulance which asked for a three-year contract with a $1,000-a-year escalation clause.

For the first year the company would operate the service for $31,311 with a $1,000 increase each year for the next two years.

A few weeks ago Garden City said it would be prepared to operate the service for $2,000 a month or $24,000 a year.

Its bid, received Thursday by city council, offered an alternative to the three-year contract. The company said it would take over the service for $24,000 a year plus $12 a call.

Two other companies entered bids.

Victoria Ambulance Service offered to operate the service for $65,000 a year while L. R. Bourne, an ambulance driver, entered a bid for $54,500.

Council will study all bids before a policy decision is made.

At issue is whether it would be cheaper to operate the service via the city's fire department or whether to operate through a private company.

The fire department has stated that it would require eight additional men to operate the service properly.

Estimated minimum cost for the fire department to operate the service has been set at around $65,000 with a maximum cost running close to $100,000.

Ald. Geoffrey Edgewood expressed shock at the costs submitted in the three bids.

"I can't understand how they could write and tell us they could do it for $24,000 and then come in with prices like this," he said.

He as informed that the $24,000 offer had been made before the city laid down a series of tight specifications on how the service must be run.

Ald. Robert Baird said he had heard from good authority that the fire department could run the ambulance service with four extra men instead of the eight requested.

The entire matter will be discussed in detail next week.

A Call to Keep Pace

GREATER VICTORIA PROPERTY owners are being asked, in next month's school referendum, to approve the most expensive building program of its kind ever submitted to the public here. The cost is not a measure of extravagance; it is a measure of the need. The referendum should have public support.

Passage of the two bylaws is, in the opinion of trustees, essential if District 61 is to provide the educational facilities to which our young people are entitled. Defeat would mean deterioration of the system at a critical point in our school history.

More than half a hundred schools in all parts of the district are involved. Some will be newly built, some will receive additions and others will undergo necessary renovation.

To do the work the board seeks permission to borrow, as the funds are needed, $13,930,234, repayable over 20 years. Of that amount $742,784 will be a direct responsibility on the municipal taxpayer, covering projects in the financing of which the province does not join. Of the remainder, the provincial government will provide half the payments on principal and interest.

The figure is large. Spread over the repayment period, however, it will represent an addition of 2.09 mills annually to the tax rate, on the basis of board estimates, or about $10.35 a year in extra taxes on a home with a market value of $15,000.

The board justifies the expenditure on several grounds. First, the school population is rising at a rate of about 1,200 school-age children a year—and family planning through the "pill" will not influence the number coming into the schools until six years after its general use. That means that growth will continue for the full period of this phase of school expansion, with prospects that total population will not fall off even if a plateau is reached in new births.

The new trends in education demand more space and up-to-date facilities; they also call for smaller classes.

Rising costs, apparent in virtually every field, automatically increase the expense of building and equipping the schools. On the other hand the public will be getting more use from its school buildings than ever before. The new policy of the school board is that there should be increased public use of schools and playing fields whenever these are not actually required for classes. Thus gymnasiums, assembly halls, fields and libraries will be put more and more at the disposal of responsible individuals or groups who wish to use them. The school as a community centre is now the ideal, and nearness to public parks and parking grounds is a planned part of any building program.

New schools will be constructed with flexibility in mind, so that rooms can be varied in size or combined for the most efficient use. Portable classrooms—self-contained units which can be moved to locations where they are most needed in any given year—will be an important part of the building program now put before the public, and will result in savings. And a major item in the plans will be the purchase of land for new schools and for old ones being expanded. Property will not be any cheaper to buy in future years.

The voter can consider these facts. There are more children now and there will be still more in the years ahead. This means more classrooms are needed. The cost of land and of constructing schools will certainly increase, thus nothing is to be gained by delaying the program. Delay in getting the expansion under way will merely result in congestion and poorer conditions for educating our children. The voters should say "yes."

A Raise Across the Border

THE UNITED AUTO WORKERS' union, at its annual convention in Detroit last weekend, fully endorsed the wage-bargaining position put forward by president Walter Reuther, including the pledge to seek parity in hourly rates paid American and Canadian members.

While this pledge will have a deep effect on the Canadian industrial wage structure—it will be something which other international unions may emulate—bargaining over the issue will not take place in Canada. This raises an issue of sovereignty comparable to those relating to the operations of American-owned or controlled corporations in this country. A decision is to be taken in Detroit, without the Canadian government—or for that matter the Canadian workers involved—having any direct say.

This will be effected by a device which gets around the Canadian law prohibiting the American section of a union from bargaining on behalf of workers in this country. Mr. Reuther will simply demand, in his negotiations with the industry in the United States, that no company shall pay rates in any of its plants which are lower than those prevailing in Detroit.

The UAW justifies the wage parity program on the basis that productivity in Canadian auto plants is at least as high as in American plants—and there is reason to believe that this is correct as a result of heavy capital investment in this country under the auto tariff-cutting deal. But productivity is not the only issue involved, and the American section of the UAW does not even pretend that it is.

With Canada getting a larger share of the continental auto market under the tariff arrangement, the union has been under heavy pressure to protect American jobs which might be exported to Canada. Wage parity, it is reasoned, would slow down this effect since it would deprive the industry of any wage-saving incentive for increasing Canadian production.

The UAW bargaining position is thus a double-edged threat to Canadian jurisdiction in union matters and to our competitive position in trade, which will be difficult if not impossible to counter. It is one more illustration of the fact that continental industrial integration demands that a price be paid by Canadians—and we must determine whether we are willing to pay it.

Out of Touch

MANY POLICE CHIEFS ACROSS the country are obviously shaken to see in cold print some of the changes which their Association—speaking for them—has urged in the established Canadian treatment of persons not yet found guilty of any illegal act. Publicity gives a new perspective to half-thought-out proposals. What might be viewed with a measure of sympathy in the police station as someone's desperation-born desire for a heavier hand with which to combat organized crime, takes on a very different complexion when formally advanced in public as a curtailment of personal rights which have taken centuries to establish.

It is understandable that the police chiefs should want to strengthen their powers in the pursuit of criminals. But what is certainly not understandable is how men in such positions of prominence and public confidence should so misread the public mind as to think that their disastrous recommendations would be acceptable. The police chiefs—as represented by their Association—appear to be seriously out of touch with the public they serve. This problem, and a solution to it, should be a prominent item in the organization's next agenda.

FROM WASHINGTON

Factors in Hanoi's Negotiation Approach

By JOSEPH ALSOP

NOW we really know Hanoi's approach to the crucial problem of negotiations. It is very different from the approach of the virtuous but uninformed Americans who have so often said settlement could easily be negotiated in Vietnam without accepting total defeat. Since the historical context is important, it is best to begin at the beginning, with the 11th plenum of the central committee of the North Vietnamese Communist Party. This was an emergency session, called to consider the correct response to full-scale U.S. intervention on the ground in South Vietnam in the summer of 1965.

Peking, as we now know, had urged Hanoi to respond by ordering an immediate retreat to the classical, small-unit, long-term guerrilla fighting of Mao Tse-tung's Phase II; and Peking has also promised to come to Hanoi's rescue with nuclear weapons in seven years time, if the war in the south were suitably prolonged.

This Chinese advice was rejected by the 11th plenum, which resolved instead that the big unit war in the south must be continued and intensified. Apparently the Hanoi war planners at first misjudged the U.S. intervention as another gesture of bluff, like the token bombing of the North in the winter of 1965. At any rate, this decision soon began to prove very costly.

Moscow Urgings

Moscow, as we now know, then started to urge Hanoi to go to the negotiating table. Most probably this Soviet advice was first given in connection with the long Christmas bombing "pause" at the end of 1965.

This advice was also rejected by the North Vietnamese leaders. But by March, 1966, they were sufficiently worried by the progress of the war to call the central committee into session again, for a 12th plenum to review past decisions and lay plans for the future.

At this plenum, the central committee adopted the "twelfth resolution." A long commentary on this resolution was then sent to the Communist high command in the south—COSVN as it is commonly called—by the first secretary of the North Vietnamese Communist party, Le Duan. And the chairman of the northern party's reunification commission, General Nguyen Van Vinh, also journeyed to the south to lecture the COSVN comrades on all aspects of the "twelfth resolution."

Orders From the Top

Among the tons of captured documents in Saigon are now two detailed, mutually confirmatory records of General Vinh's lecture, plus a copy of Le Duan's letter transmitted to another high party personage by the North Vietnamese commander in chief in the south, General Nguyen Chi Thanh.

The Le Duan letter mainly concerned the requirements imposed on the southern high command by the party's "twelfth resolution." COSVN's prime duty was simple indeed: "On the principle of waging a long-range struggle," Le Duan wrote, "tremendous efforts are to be made to obtain decisive victory within a relatively short space of time."

While passing on this stern command, the first party secretary admitted, at least by implication, that a misjudgment of the Americans had been enshrined in the eleventh plenum's decisions. The earlier misjudgment can be inferred from Le Duan's repeated assertions that "even although 200,000 Americans" were now in Vietnam and "even although" many more might well be on the way, the twelfth plenum had concluded that victory was still attainable by sufficiently "tremendous efforts."

The first party secretary based his argument for victory on claims of brilliant success in a whole series of autumn and winter battles which were in fact shattering Communist defeats—another proof that the Communist field commanders grossly misled Hanoi. Le Duan even depicted the Washington wafflings of that winter of 1965-66 as half-terrorized American responses to these alleged disasters in that field.

He reminded the COSVN comrades of Dienbienphu, of Algeria and, particularly significantly, of the 1962 Geneva agreement on Laos. The prelude to a 1962 negotiations at Geneva, he remarked, was simply the Pathet Lao-North Vietnamese victory in the battle of Nam Tha. Thus the goal was set: "We must defeat the enemy at all costs," wrote Le Duan.

On the subject of negotiations, the first party secretary made only two direct observations: "The problem," he said, "is complicated, considering that, at present, when speaking of negotiations, the views are quite divergent." Here, one must presume, he was mainly referring to the flatly conflicting Chinese and Soviet advice to Hanoi. And he added that "the party central committee had unanimously entrusted the politburo with the task" of making future decisions about this delicate matter.

It may be asked then, why Le Duan's letter sheds so much light on Hanoi's approach to negotiations. In truth, it is just half the story; for the "twelfth resolution" actually called for inflicting "defeats on the enemy at all costs" as the only acceptable prelude to negotiations. The other half of the story will be told in the last report of this series.

FROM CALGARY

Into Eden, Smog, Rats and Starlings

By JAMES H. GRAY

AT long, long last, look at who's getting a well-deserved come-uppance—the place-proud Calgarians who for so many years have been smugly lordling it over the denizens of the other Canadian cities! First the town has become embroiled in a row over garbage dumps that will go on for months stretching into years.

Gray

Then it discovered it has a serious smog problem. Now, humiliation of all humiliations, it has a starting invasion of historic proportions.

Calgary, in short, is discovering that the growth of a hick town into an urban metropolis brings problems, whether the growth be in Quebec, Ontario, Manitoba or British Columbia.

Unhappily, the discovery is being made by people who cultivated the illusion that they had been chosen by Providence to enjoy an existence free from the minor tribulations of other urban Canadians.

"Rats?" they'd ask visitors from Montreal, Victoria or Winnipeg, "what are rats?" When the rats and their depredations were described for them, Calgarians would smirk smugly: "Ah, yes. Well, of course Alberta is one of the last rat-free areas of the world so people who live in Calgary aren't bothered."

As for starlings, the tales of woe of the rest of Canada elicited only superior grunts from Calgarians to whom the pest was unknown.

And when Hamiltonians or Windsorites talked about smog, Calgarians would point to the billboards the Gas Company used to erect around the town. The message invited the beholder to look at the wonderful clear blue and smokeless sky above them, courtesy of natural gas.

That clear blue-sky above Calgary is now so smog-bound at times that the province has just announced it is allocating $50,000 to study the problem. It is a problem mainly caused by the waste from the city's industrial complex being spewed into the atmosphere. There it is trapped by air blankets and forced down to ground level again—even as in Hamilton and Windsor.

There was a time when Calgarians took special pleasure in baiting Ottawans about the endless chore of hauling out the ashes from basements. "Coal? Ashes? What's coal," they would ask, as they arched their eyebrows coyly, "and where do the ashes come from?" Now, with most of Canada enjoying gas, or at least oil heat, even that gambit is being denied Calgarians.

To top it all, the starlings came back last week in uncounted millions, flocks so great that the mink breeders around the periphery of the city became to fear for the safety of their animals. Nothing like it in bird migrations has ever been seen in the city before.

Advance parties from the starling marshalling areas have been reconnoitering the Calgary area for several years. Each year the advance patrols increased in numbers and anyone who watched them could be quickly convinced the starlings would one day take over the bird world in its entirety.

Concentration

No other species to hit Alberta could match the starlings in their concentration on the job at hand—gathering food. At first they were welcomed around the barnyards of the areas by Alberta's other intractable pest, the magpie. In recent years, magpies have been running out of birds to pick on. The killdeer, robins and bluebirds have been decimated by the farmers' chemical warfare, or so it seems to this observer.

Magpies without something to tease and then drive off are an unhappy lot, given to moping under trees. When the starlings turned up, they brushed off the offensive tactics that worked on robins and killdeer. But the starlings barely paused in their weed, seed and bug gathering. If the magpies became too pestiferous, they ganged up and it was the starlings were back on the ground voraciously polishing off more weeds and bugs.

This year, in uncountable millions, they have driven the sparrows and pigeons off the roosting perches over the vast expanse of window area at the University Library. They have messed up those windows like they have never been messed up before.

Voracious

They have descended on grain stored in the open and have broken into granaries to foul the grain they have not eaten. They have moved into the mink ranches and high-jacked the food from the animals at a time when mink are hungriest and crankiest.

Naturally, the lovers of the song-birds are beginning to panic. Particularly when the starlings are seen watching the flickers hollow out their tree trunk nesting space, when the hollowing is finished, a pair of starlings will take over and drive off the flickers.

When the Calgary newspapers publish pictures of flocks of starlings filling the sky not only the bird lovers start to worry. What, the boosters wonder, becomes of Calgary's image as a tourist trap if it becomes, known as "The Starling Capital of Canada?"

DENNIS THE MENACE

"IS THERE ROOM ON THIS BENCH FOR A GUM CHEWER?"

Looking Back

From The Times of April 28, 1967:

Weekly trade returns show that in the matter of bank clearings, Victoria occupies the first place among the cities of Canada in business increase over the same month last year. The increase in Victoria is more than 60 per cent over last year's business. Vancouver's returns, including a considerable part of the mainland of the province, show an increase of nearly 44 per cent.

Nixon-Humphrey Rule: U.S. VPs Are for Hating

One of the great, though necessarily narrow, sociological discoveries of the century applies to U.S. Vice Presidents.

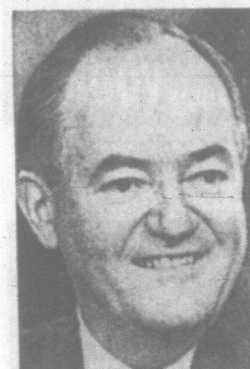

It was first established during the Eisenhower administration, when Richard M. Nixon was so vehemently attacked by aggrieved Latin Americans that the President considered flying down an expeditionary force to bring him back in one piece.

Now the law has been confirmed by Hubert Humphrey's recent experiences and observations in Europe. Like all recent great scientific formulations, the Humphrey-Nixon Law does not lend itself to precise description without a computer, but for the layman it may be stated in this fashion: When the Vice-President ventures abroad, the louder the volume of the boos, the more jeering and flag-ripping, the more paint and eggs thrown in his direction, the more splendid must be the reception accorded him on his return. The reasoning is that the more the Vice President has been affronted, the better must have been the job he did.

The law does not apply to lesser officials, such as Secretaries of State. It is conceivable that some day a Secretary may be thrown into an eye on down a manhole, but so far no one has bothered to notice Mr. Risk or his predecessors, one way or the other.

For Vice Presidents, however, the law is inflexible. If one of them journeyed to foreign parts and was greeted with applause and adulation, it would be the ruin of his career. Vice Presidents with an eye on the Presidency would do well to arrange to be driven from as many capitals as will co-operate—particularly those of friendly countries.

An opera singer, however talented, must have the reassurance of a claque; the inverse rule, for the Vice President, is to be in danger at least of having his clothes ruined. The cry will then go up, "He can take it."

Some scientists have tried to draw the conclusion that the clamor of dissatisfied foreigners is directed not against the Vice President as a person but at this nation and its policies. There may be something to this, but it would not be good politics to admit it, since the policies of the United States will never be changed to suit other nations. We are the rulers and, as the Hon. Mendel Rivers has put it with laconic originality, they can go fly a kite.

Another sound reason for keeping the intrepidity of the Vice President on a personal basis is that it reduces to the advantage of the incumbent President and his party. By putting on a big show and praising Mr. Humphrey's eloquence and ability, Mr. Johnson was also calling attention to his own qualities, which naturally must exceed those of his coadjutor.

And, as a valuable by-product, all good Americans can see what dogs those Commies are, to abuse a good-natured man like Hubert, who comes to them with a big grin on his face, love in his heart, and just a whiff of napalm.

CHILE'S FREI ATTEMPTS DEMOCRATIC REVOLUTION

SANTIAGO, Chile—The gaunt, intense man paces back and forth amid the rich leather appointments of his office and recites the statistics.

"We inherited an inflation rate of 48 per cent and had reduced it to 17 per cent by the end of last year," he says. "We are paying more on retirement of our foreign debt than we are receiving in new credits. We have a favorable balance of payment for the first time in 25 years."

On he goes, ranging without a breath over education, public health, tax reform, industrialization. It is an impressive performance as President Eduardo Frei Montalva recites in an interview his accomplishments during the three years since he bested a powerful Socialist-Communist coalition to become the first Christian Democratic leader of a Latin American country.

The effect has been to make Frei a legend in his own time—the man regarded more widely than any other as the symbol of democratic reform in Latin America. When 19 American chiefs of state met for their recent summit conference, only Lyndon B. Johnson got more attention than Frei from the assembled presidents and the press.

Yet, while his star continues to rise ever higher over hemisphere affairs, Frei lately has been looking like the proverbial "prophet without honor" at home. Since the first of the year, when his senate opposition teamed up to scuttle his planned visit to Washington, Frei and his Christian Democratic government have suffered an almost unbroken string of domestic reverses.

The low point came early this month when the Chilean electorate spurned Frei's pleas to turn the nationwide municipal elections here into a plebiscite-like endorsement of his policies. Instead, when the votes were in, they added up to a clear rebuke to the government.

To the so-called "impatient" wing of the party, composed of younger theoreticians that long have chafed at Frei's moderate approach, the lesson of the municipal elections is that the party has not been radical enough. As a result, the "impatientes" have touched off a noisy demand for a sharp turn left by both the party and the government. They want more militance in pushing reforms aimed at the benefit of the lower classes and less conciliation of the middle classes and the foreign investors.

There are, however, others, who see this demand for more leftist movement as a misreading of the election returns. And the indications are that Frei is among them.

"The opposition here is pol-

arized on the extreme right and the extreme left," he says. "The right opposes us fiercely because it knows that if we are successful in our fight to improve the situation of the underdog, it will have to bear much of the cost through a loss of many of its traditional privileges."

"On the part of the extreme left, there is also desperation because if this government succeeds, it will stand as a living example that a revolution of the have nots can be carried out democratically in Latin America."

"As a result," he concludes, "the attack from both sides is extremely virulent. And when one stands in the middle of these two extremes and must take his policies to the people before their benefits have had time to become evident, setbacks are inevitable."

By this, he appears to mean that the municipal elections showed that the voters are definitely unhappy about many aspects of Christian Democracy but are still a long way from throwing it overboard. Some of his closest supporters go even further, contending that the elections were not a true test because they turned in many cases on issues and candidates of a purely local character.

No One Else

The fact remains, however, that it was Frei, and no one else, who tried to give the elections the appearance of a plebiscite. And there also is no doubt that many voters did take it as such—and responded negatively.

Many observers think Frei lost considerable ground among Chile's fairly sizable middle class, a group that held the balance of political power here for almost 30 years before the advent of the Christian Democrats. Although the middle class supported Frei strongly when he was elected in 1964, many of its members have since become alarmed by the Christian Democrats' drive to carry the focus of Chilean politics over to a base of lower economic class support.

From what he says, Frei probably will attempt to steer a future course between the conflicting rightist and leftist forces by emphasizing rhythm and pace rather than any drastic change in his policies. In his interview conversation, he lays constant stress on the need to consolidate and perfect the gains that already have been made rather than to seek dramatic new legislation.

WOMAN AND CHILDREN with a baby buggy got caught up by swarm of officials following Emperor Haile Selassie as he walked out of Centennial Square Thursday accompanied by Mayor Stephen. But she was not interested in anyone but the bearded Ethiopian leader and she craned her neck to see him.

'GREATEST SOLDIER, PEACEMAKER'

Premier Eulogizes Emperor

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

He used the League of Nations as an appeal to the conscience of the world.

So said Premier Bennett Thursday when proposing a toast to Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia.

The premier was speaking at a luncheon he gave for the emperor and his 18-man entourage in the Union Club before they returned to Vancouver.

"All of us remember that in 1935, when most of the world slept, you fought—just as your people had fought 40 years before—for the same cause, Independence."

"Your valiant actions in 1935 and 1936 against hopeless odds awakened the freedom-loving world, however slowly, from its lethargy."

"Your triumphant return in 1941 was a beacon fire of encouragement to other nations which had felt the iron boot."

"We know, sir, of your work in peace. We remember that, in 1931, you gave your country its constitution and then led it into the League of Nations."

"We remember how you used the League to appeal to the conscience of the world."

"We remember now, with peace restored, you democratized your country and modernized it with a series of social, economic and educational reforms."

"The splendid university which bears your name is a monument to your success."

"We also know that, under your personal leadership your capital city of Addis Ababa has become the Geneva of Africa and that you, once Africa's greatest soldier, are now her greatest peacemaker.

"There could be no finer tribute."

When the emperor was received at the City Hall, Mayor Hugh Stephen said:

"We recall the dauntless and unconquerable strength and unity of Your Majesty's personal example, which became a symbol of hope to the hopeless and an assurance that right would ultimately triumph before the legions of unrighteousness."

"For this reason we bid your Imperial Majesty a warm welcome to the city of Victoria... and, as a mark of our greeting, we ask you to accept this silvered replica of our city crest which carries at its base two words made glorious by the recent history of Ethiopia."

"Forever free."

After the dinner at the Union Club, Emperor Selassie and his 18-man entourage drove to Victoria International Airport for the flight to Vancouver.

He is travelling via Canadian National Railways to Ottawa where he will address parliament and then visit Expo-67 at Montreal.

"His Majesty is anxious to see every pavilion at Expo

IN NEW BILL

Suggestion Catches On With Senator

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Herbert Nebel, 67, West Allis, Wis., realized Wednesday the dearest dream of anyone who ever said, "there ought to be a law."

He said last year there ought to be a law to require automobile manufacturers to install tamper-proof odometers on all automobiles, to record the exact mileage traveled during the life of each vehicle.

Thursday, Sen. William Proxmire (D-Wis.), introduced a bill to accomplish precisely that. He invited his constituent to come to Washington at the senator's expense to watch the proceedings from the visitors' gallery.

Nebel submitted the winning entry of the more than 1,200 that Proxmire's "there ought to be a law" contest drew last year.

"It is consumer-protection legislation which would prevent the unscrupulous automobile seller from misleading a prospective buyer," Proxmire said. "And it has strong auto-safety implications, enabling the purchaser to know how potentially safe a vehicle will be and for how long, through knowing how many miles the car has traveled."

He said the installation would not be prohibitively expensive, noting that car rental companies record accurately the exact mileage of their leased autos.

'Kiss-in-the-Ring' Played by Guards?

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

It reminded me of the old-fashioned party game called kiss-in-the-ring.

But it was nothing of the kind. As I approached the private dining-room in the Union Club, where Premier Bennett was giving a luncheon for Emperor Haile Selassie, seven plain-clothed security men leapt forward and formed a close circle round me.

I flourished my press pass, but the burly security men wouldn't budge an inch.

"I'm sorry, sir, this is a private function," one said. "You can go no farther."

"Okay," I said. "I'll wait here until they come out."

"Are you a member of the Union Club, sir?"

"No."

"Then I'm afraid you'll have to wait upstairs. You cannot stay here."

I departed, with a backward glance through the open door at Premier Bennett's cozy-looking private lunch.

I half expected to be turned into a pillar of salt.

'DANGEROUS COMMUNISTS'

5,000 Greeks Face Trial

ATHENS (CP) — Five thousand prisoners suspected of being "dangerous Communists" face mass trial overseen by Greece's military dictatorship.

This was revealed Thursday night by one of the three army officers who planned and led last Friday's coup d'état.

Col. George Papadopoulos, made minister to the premier in the new regime, told a press conference that the 5,000 had been arrested at the start of the coup and had been removed from Athens under guard.

He said they would be tried by a "committee of security" headed by regular judges.

"Those persons found not dangerous will be released," he said.

Banging away at what has become a recurrent theme of the new government, he said the "situation was approaching anarchy" in Greece prior to the takeover.

DISCOVERED PLOT

Two days ago, army-backed Premier Constantine Kollas told King Constantine, whom Papadopoulos said had not been informed of the coup until after it started, that authorities had discovered a blueprint for a bloody revolution.

Papadopoulos was asked if there was documentary evidence of a conspiracy.

"We have moved documents to headquarters that fill 70 three-ton army trucks," he replied, adding that the material might be released in a few days.

The political party leaders arrested Friday included anti-monarchist Andreas Papandreu and his 73-year-old father, former premier George Papandreu.

While Papadopoulos revealed the mass trials to deal with the allegedly "dangerous" opposition at home, plans were announced abroad for a Greek government in exile.

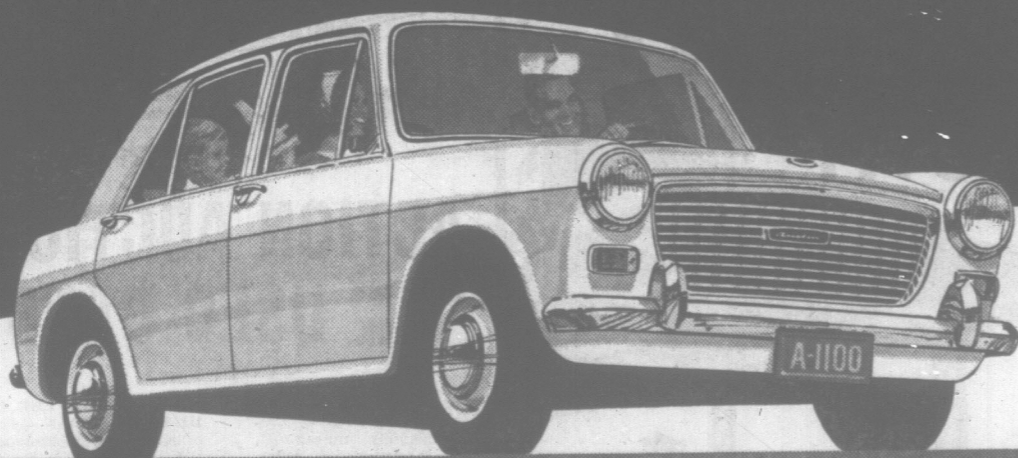

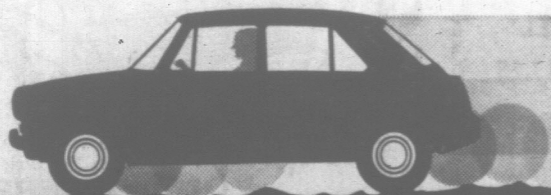

The announcement was made in Copenhagen by Anastasios Papadopoulos, who claimed to be the only Parliament deputy of George Papandreu's Centre Union outside Greece and there-voice.

The deputy, who had gone to Copenhagen on a political visit, said the party is forming foreign branches in Western Europe which would summon a congress "very soon."

At the press conference in Athens, minister Papadopoulos year-old monarch and the new regime now are normal.

Will Expo 67 Be 'Greatest Yet?'

By ELIZABETH FORBES

This morning the Gates of Expo 67 opened to the public and St. Helen's Isle in the St. Lawrence River, will never be the same again. Once a quiet retreat for the care-free and for those who loved to stretch a dinner into an all-evening rendezvous, it will now respond to the noise of progress and the feet of hordes of visitors.

It will glitter with lights, shimmer with color and tremble with the weight of its inverted pyramids, its precast "hanging gardens of Babylon" family dwellings and its "man and his world" theme.

Prediction is that Expo 67 will go down in history as the "greatest yet." I don't suppose there is a person who is truly Canadian at heart who will not wish to see this come true.

Yet, within our time, there have been other world fairs. Other places where color and excitement have held sway. Other predictions of greatness that were fulfilled to a greater or lesser degree.

Only 28 years ago (in 1939) down in San Francisco there was the Golden Gate International Exposition.

It, too, came to life on an island. Only it was entirely a man-made one.

Engineers and scientists created the mile-square centre on Yerba Buena Shoals in San Francisco Bay. Builders and craftsmen erected pavilions and towers.

Architectural motif of this magic walled city featured Aztec, Mayan, Incan and Oriental influences. More than 10 million plants, shrubs and full-grown trees were brought from Pacific nations and western America to make the island a truly garden court.

At night, indirect lighting (black light they called it then) was used for the first time to paint facades and entrances in glowing color.

The place was named Treasure Island and the theme of the exposition was "the pageant of the Pacific."

Focal point in the grounds was a graceful 400-foot "Tower of the Sun." The various concourses radiated out from this central court.

A world fair in Brussels almost 20 years later was described as "a preview of the next century."

There was an autium that stood as a giant symbol of the atomic age. Two new forms of architecture were presented—the cocon (plastic and metal sheets stretched over metal frames to produce grotesque forms) and suspended architecture that featured series of metal arms jutting into the sky.

At this exposition a Canadian pavilion was created around the theme of "man and space." A forerunner perhaps of today's Expo 67 and its "man and his world" slogan.

Closer to home and only five years back in time there was Seattle's World Fair 1962. Officially known as the Century 21 Exposition, it was inspired by the promise of a new age—that of space.

The theme was developed in five major "worlds"—entertainment, science, art, century 21, and commerce and industry.

These expositions—and others like them—have all held a brief place in the sun. They were the magnets that attracted millions of people. The symbols of imagination, hard work and ambitious dreams.

They deserved their moment of success. And they rate a place in our memories if for nothing else than the fact that many of the prophecies they made in their previews of the future have now come true.

Today we wish for our own Expo 67 and its "man and his world" theme—the same measure of success and influence.

As the late Franklin D. Roosevelt said when the Golden Gate Exposition opened 28 years ago:

"May it truly serve all nations in symbolizing their achievements of all the ages past—and in amalgamating their destinies, one with every other, through the ages to come."

SIZZLING HOT FOODS CAUSING TOOTH DECAY?

LONDON (AP)—Lay off the hot soup—your teeth may fall out. The idea is presented by New Zealand dentist Dr. S. W. Taylor, in Lancet, the British medical publication. Dr. Taylor claims tooth decay is not caused by sugar, as generally believed, but by too-high food temperatures.

Surge in Bids For NHA Loans

OTTAWA (CP)—An unprecedented surge of applications for loans under the National Housing Act, the Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. reported today.

The new flexible lending rate, a special program for speculative building and easier money in the economy attracted loan requests for 23,458 dwelling units from approved lenders and direct borrowers.

This compared with only 5,255 a year earlier.

Most of the applications by institutional lenders were approved, bringing this category of approvals to 14,652 units for the first three months of the year. It was an increase of 272.7 per cent over the first quarter of 1966 and the total was slightly higher than the total of 14,567 units approved for the whole of 1966.

The government's program of loans to builders for speculative home construction, set ahead to spring from this fall, resulted in processing of 9,611 applications due for approval after April 1.

The effect of March applications did not, of course, show up in housing starts for the month and starts for the first quarter were down 26.8 per cent in urban centres to 14,525 from 19,836 a year earlier.

Starts on single detached dwellings in centres of more than 10,000 population totalled 1,865 in March, compared with 2,343 a year earlier, a drop of 20.4 per cent. In the quarter they were down to 5,560 from 9,453, a drop of 41.2 per cent.

Duplexes and semi-detached houses accounted for 256 starts in March, down 10.2 per cent from 285.

Apartment starts were down 14.2 per cent in March to 3,087 from 3,597, and for the quarter down 10 per cent to 7,650 from 8,503.

Battle of Bands For Folk Units Centennial Plan

A battle of the bands is looming in Victoria. Centennial officials are planning a series of elimination contests for local folk rock bands culminating in a final competition in Centennial Square July 1.

Judging the bands will not be easy. Centennial organizer Gerry Gosley is considering using either a panel of local young people or an out-of-province band as judges.

For citizens who don't dig folk-rock, there will be a pioneer's band concert in Beacon Hill Park at the same time.

Lease for Game Farm

PENTICTON (CP)—A 40-year lease has been signed between the Penticton Indian Band and Al Oeming of Edmonton for 600 acres of land near Kaleden, seven miles southeast of here. Mr. Oeming plans to establish a branch of his Alberta game farm on the land.

Mine, Mill-Steelworkers Merger Agreement Signing Saturday?

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Mine-Mill and the Steelworkers of America and the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers will sign a merger agreement in Toronto Saturday.

The newspaper says it has learned from "sources outside

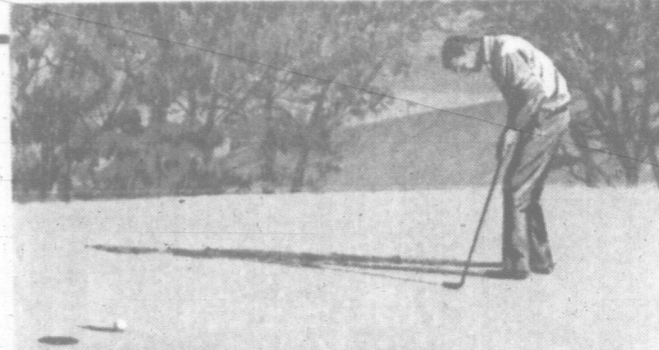

British Columbia that the agreement will be signed by senior officials of both unions at the weekend meeting in Toronto.

The report says the Mine-Mill union plans to call a special convention for late June or early July to ratify the agreement. The Steelworkers approved ratification terms at a recent convention. The two unions approved merging in the U.S. several months ago.

The report says the agreement is the second-last step in ending bitter, jurisdictional rivalry between the two unions and that it comes less than three months after the two signed a mutual aid, no-raiding pact. Under terms of the earlier pact signed in Toronto Feb. 9, the two unions agreed to initiate exploratory talks toward merger.

Can you call

You'll find a little extra something inside

Most conventional mortgage loans have been limited to 75% of the appraised value or selling price of the property. And, as far as we're concerned, that's conventional. At the Bank of Nova Scotia, you can arrange a conventional residential mortgage loan for up to 87½% of the value, and a maximum loan of $50,000. So? So our higher ratio could very well eliminate the need to get into costly secondary financing.

Our conventional mortgages are available for building a new home, or for an existing property. But if you're in the market for an NHA mortgage or a new home, we're ready for that, too.

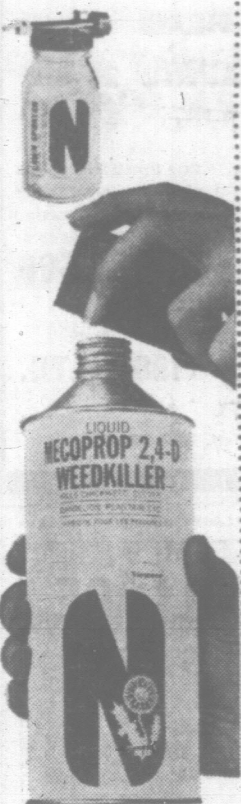

One other point: our basic interest rate on conventional mortgage loans will be exactly the same anywhere in Canada. Before you make a move—anywhere—better see your local Bank of Nova Scotia manager.

BUSINESS VIEWS

Fight Shapes UpBy AB KENT
Business Editor

A rallying call to conservationists, economists and developers in Western Canada, Alaska and the U.S. Pacific Northwest is the latest phase in the "western water war."

As a public service the Wenatchee Daily World has called a Pacific Northwest citizens' water symposium for next April 15 in Wenatchee, Wash., to discuss water resource planning.

As many Canadians as Americans should be there in the interests of Western Canada's water resources.

Why? Simply because an immense water grab plotted by the North American Water and Power Alliance is gaining momentum and political support. As Daily World associate editor Chester C. Kim points out, "the NAWAPA plan is no longer just an idea. Active consideration of this giant program is being urged by a congressional subcommittee."

"Should this become a reality, its effects on the economic development of Alaska and Western Canada and on the fish and wildlife of all the Pacific Northwest, for that matter, are beyond comprehension."

What the plan foresees is the damming of the Northwest and diversion of its water to the arid Southwest, irrespective of political boundaries. Thus far the plan has had little support in Canada. Ottawa has been cool to the proposal and elsewhere it has been labelled a fantasy.

But the threat of a thirsty neighbor to the south can not be casually thrust aside. Once again Canadians will have to speak up in defence of a resource, perhaps our most precious.

We were warned by the late Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, for more than a decade Canada's chief representative on the International Joint Commission, not to fall for the story of a water shortage in the American Southwest.

Plenty of water is available, he said, but its conservation may be wanting.

The Wenatchee symposium—a full year distant—allows plenty of time to prepare for the ultimate battle, even though decisive weapons may be short. For instance we lack a comprehensive water inventory and farseeing projection of needs.

However, the Wenatchee meeting is not intended to be a battleground, rather a forum for education, dialogue, discussion of the basic consumptive uses of water.

U.S. national legislative water problems will be the subject of a congressional leader's luncheon speech, and a review of Pacific Northwest river basin programs will be outlined.

Four chartered banks have fallen in line so far with "true savings" account interest rates. Bank of Montreal president G. Arnold Hart said Thursday his bank will increase interest on non-checking accounts by 1/4 per cent May 1, bringing the rate to 4 1/2 per cent.

Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce, Royal Bank of Canada and Mercantile Bank of Canada previously set this pure savings rate at 4 per cent.

Bank of Montreal inaugurated the true savings rate at 4 per cent March 27. "While the bank's rate structure will remain competitive at all times, all interest rates are subject to revision from time to time if and when monetary conditions change materially," Mr. Hart said.

B.C. coal production during March showed better than 3,000 short tons improvement over March, 1966, despite a disastrous chain of explosions and shutdown at an important colliery of the biggest producer in the province.

Michel collieries produced 80,616 of the total 80,639 short tons produced in the month, compared with 77,484 tons in March a year ago.

Michel also made 14,038 tons of coke, against 13,303 tons in the same month last year.

Since Bralorne-Pioneer Mines Ltd. bought a raise-boring machine in November, 1966, it has done nine raises totalling 2,400 feet and is in demand by mines not only in other parts of B.C. but across Canada.

The company intends to make the machine available to other B.C. mining companies.

Its great advantage is being able to bore upward through rock by means of a pilot hole drilled from above, giving the operation more efficiency and safety.

U.K. STEEL TAKEOVER
BY GOVT. ON JULY 18

LONDON (AP)—British Power Minister Richard Marsh announced Thursday the government will formally take over Britain's major steel companies July 18.

With nationalization approved by Parliament, Marsh also gave the House of Commons the names of most of the members of the board of the new National Steel Corporation, which will run the enterprise for the government.

As expected, the chairman will be Lord Melchett, the banker who has been conducting the preliminary survey on reorganizing the 14 companies coming under Crown ownership. Several steel barons who have been outspoken opponents of nationalization also agreed to serve on the board.

Clout Costs Plenty

Q. Where do intention and accident meet?
A. Often in court.

John Tolos, a crew-cut 245-pounder who throws his weight around wrestling rings as The Golden Greek, maintained his unbeaten record in and out of the ring Thursday.

Tolos was given the decision by magistrate Lorne Jackson in a closely-contested assault case. The end result there was no evidence of intent to commit a criminal act the night Tolos was thrown from the ring and alleged struck a woman fan in Vancouver.

Umaroo Singh wasn't as lucky. The B.C. Supreme Court awarded Richard Henry Watson $2,200 for fancy stickwork by Singh in a field hockey game two years ago.

Watson told the court he was in hospital four days and off work 10 days as a result of a skull injury when hit with a stick.

Singh said Watson approached him with what he (Singh) considered to be a high stick and that he hit Watson in self defence.

Not so, ruled the court, pointing out that Watson had turned and was walking away when he was clouted.

IN BASEBALL: Acquisition of relief pitcher Dick Radatz by Chicago Cubs has caused some changes in the Pacific Coast League. EVEN TEAMSTERS

'I'm a Pro Athlete and a Union Man'

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A drive to organize professional athletes into an independent labor union is reaching the stage where it will be presented to the National Labor Relations Board for certification. The Associated Press has learned the union, probably to be identified as the National Players' Association, would include players from major league baseball, the National Football League, American Football League, the National Basketball Association and possibly the National Hockey League.

The embryonic American Basketball League would be included if it gets off the ground. The movement to gather athletes into one group is being led by Bernie Parrish, a former defensive star with Cleveland

Browns and once the head of the NFL Players Association. Parrish has been moving about the country enlisting athletes. A reliable source told The Associated Press that many major league baseball players felt it was a good step, and that the NBA was ready to come into the fold.

The idea is a well thought of among labor sources that several major unions, including the International Teamsters, have offered to finance the organizing drive. One union offered between $50,000 and $100,000 merely to be allowed to talk to the men planning the movement.

The source said all labor unions have been turned down, however, because the athletes believe they have the brains

Leafs Are Inclined To Skip Thursdays And Forget Vachon

Final Deadlocked As Habs Romp To 6-2 Victory

TORONTO (CP)—Thursday holds a new significance for Toronto Maple Leafs and Montreal Canadiens, currently locked at two games each in their struggle for the Stanley Cup.

To Canadiens, the goaltender, Rogation Vachon, the day must hold pleasant memories. To the Leafs and netminder Terry Sawchuk the recollections must be bitter.

For the second Thursday night in a row the Canadiens drubbed the Leafs by a 6-2 score and for the second time Sawchuk was the victim and Vachon the hero.

To add further bitterness to Sawchuk's memories of the day

Saturday's game will be seen over Channels 2 and 6, starting at 11 a.m. A delayed showing will be shown on Channel 12, starting at 2:00 p.m.

is the fact he lost two Thursday contests to Chicago Black Hawks in the National Hockey League's semi-final round—the only two games the Hawks could win.

Bower Injured

Centres Ralph Backstrom and Jean Beliveau each scored twice for the Canadiens Thursday night and Henri Richard and Jim Roberts added the others. Mike Walton and Tim Horton scored for Toronto.

Veteran Johnny Bower, who had held Montreal to a 3-2 overtime loss Tuesday night and a 3-0 shutout last Saturday at Montreal, had been scheduled to start in the Toronto nets.

However, he pulled up lame in the pre-game warmup due to an injured thigh muscle in his left leg and Sawchuk got the call.

Ironically, Sawchuk had been sensational in Toronto's four wins against Chicago—but they were all played on Tuesdays and Saturdays.

Toe Had a Hunch

Toe Blake, the Montreal coach, saw it as an omen when he was advised just before game time that Bower was unable to start.

"We heard in the dressing room that he had been injured and I thought this is the break," Blake said. "He'd been murdered to us in the last two games."

"But then it could work two ways. Sometimes when you have a key player injured like this the substitute comes on strong to beat you."

For a while it appeared the Leafs were going to do just that.

They peppered Vachon with eight shots in the first two minutes of play, but the youngster held the puck out.

This stand gave the Montrealers the necessary lift, Blake said.

"Our guys are picked up after that and the Leafs weren't nearly as aggressive for the rest of the game."

The Montrealers took control near the mid-way mark of the period and were never headed as they outshot the Leafs 40-37 before 15,977 fans.

King Clancy, Leafs' assistant general manager, was unconcerned by the Thursday cycle of losses.

When someone pointed out that unless the Leafs win the next two games the series will end in Montreal next Thursday, Clancy replied:

"That won't make a bit of difference. We just played badly tonight and didn't check and allowed them to roam. We'll be back and come out of Montreal Saturday with a victory."

Penalties—Beliveau (M) 2:32, Stuck (T) 8:21, Larose (M) 16:34, Harris (M) 17:09, Ferguson (O) 19:28.

Shots on goal: Montreal 40, Toronto 37.

Attendance, 15,977.

BARCELONA, Spain (AP) — Mimoun Ben Ali of Spain retained his European bantamweight boxing championship by outpointing Alan Rudin of Wales in a 15-round title bout Thursday night. There were no knockdowns.

STRONG FIELD ENTERS ISLAND TRAP TOURNNEY

The field is loaded with champions, but a Victoria father-son combination could be the ones to watch in the Vancouver Island trap championship Sunday at the Victoria Gun Club's Albert Head grounds.

Herb Bate and his son Ricky, 16, fresh from an excellent showing in the British Columbia-Washington shoot in Vancouver, will lead a Victoria contingent of about 25. They will face 20 competitors from Up-Island clubs and about 80 from the Mainland.

Rated as the men to beat are defending champion Bob Caldwell, of Vancouver; Canadian champion Jimmy Couse, and former Canadian champion Frank Opsal.

Competition starts at 10 a.m.

Racquet Club's 'Spiel Finalized

Victoria-area curlers are just about set to see test and appraise the district's ice sheet Nos. 19, 20, 21, 22, 23 and 24.

Those are the six sheets in the process of being finished at the sparkling, new Victoria Racquet Club.

But while ice-making is still about a month away, the club's curling committee isn't waiting for the freeze.

Plans have been finalized and the club today is calling for entries to its invitational mixed bonspiel, one of the highlights to feature the opening of the new complex.

EVENING DRAWS

The 'spiel will be held June 12-17, with curling confined to evening draws at 5:30, 7:45 and 10 p.m. Each rink entering must include two women curlers.

A limit of 48 rinks has been set, and curiosity indicates the total may be reached early.

Entry deadline is June 4, and these may be made through the Racquet Club offices, 3560 Gordon Head Road.

Entries, to be declared official, must include a deposit of $12, or half the entry-fee sum. A total of $700 has been budgeted for prizes for the three events.

The 'spiel is open to all curlers, and not just club members.

Finals are set for the early evening, June 17, and will be followed by a dance in the new lounge.

Canuck Hurler Hopes To Escape Operation

NEW YORK (CP)—New York Mets' Ron Taylor, one of the few Canadians to break into major league baseball, is lying in a hospital bed today, hoping he won't have to have an operation that might put him out of action for the rest of the season.

Taylor, the 29-year-old Toronto native now living in Oakville, Ont., is suffering from a herniated disc.

He suffered the injury last year while a member of Houston Astros just before an exhibition game when he bent over to pick up a bunt, felt a sharp pain and wound up in a hospital for six weeks.

Taylor must remain on the disabled list for a minimum of 21 days.

"With a herniated disc," Taylor said from his bed Thursday, "you can operate and remove the disc or have complete bed rest and hope the disc goes back in place."

Taylor, cheerful despite pain in his legs caused by the injury, said it "has not come to an operation yet—we're just waiting to see if it'll heal itself."

Has he given much thought to an operation and what it might do to his future in baseball?

"I don't want to. I just don't want to think about it now."

A Lion Original, Fieldgate Signs

VANCOUVER (CP)—The B.C. Lions announced signing of five Canadians for the 1967 Western Football Conference season, including Norm Fieldgate, last member of the original 1954 Lions team.

The other players signed were Neil Beaumont, 25-year-old punter and defensive half, for his seventh year; defensive tackle Roy Shatzko, 27, for his third year; defensive halfback Roger Kettlewell, 22, for his second season and backfielder Roy Cameron, 26, for his sixth.

Atlanta (AP) — Joe Namath, quarterback of New York Jets of the American Football League, isn't planning a football duel with the new New York Giant quarterback, Fran Tarkenton.

"I might battle another quarterback over a girl," Namath said in an interview here. "But the only guys I battle on the field are those defensive backs."

Tarkenton, scrambling quarterback for Minnesota Vikings, was acquired during the winter by the Giants, who are reported to have grabbed the NFL star to combat the color and glamor of Namath.

COLORFUL BART?

"Now I ask you, how flashy and how exciting is Bart Starr (Green Bay quarterback)?" said Namath. "Tarkenton is exciting, and he'll give Giant fans something to look at, and the Giants will continue to draw their 62,000 to every game and we'll draw our 61,000."

"But neither Tarkenton nor I will hold the fans on color," he added. "They want a winner."

CINCY REGAINS LEAD

Reds' Queen King on Mound

By The Associated Press
Mel Queen was such a poor hitter as an outfielder he turned to pitching, and now he is passing on his meager batting average to others.

The right-handed Cincinnati Reds hurler has taken particular interest in San Francisco Giants with his gift-giving treatment that has turned the slug-ging Giants into hitless pygmies.

Queen stumped the Giants on three "hits" and one run for seven innings Thursday as the Reds won 3-2 and regained first place in the National League from the St. Louis Cardinals.

The Cardinals fell back when Houston Astros scored five runs in the seventh inning and held on for a 4-4 triumph, breaking a 10-game losing streak.

Elsewhere in the National League, Claude Osteen pitched Los Angeles Dodgers past Atlanta Braves 6-0, Ferguson Jenkins, the Chatham, Ont., hurler, pitched Chicago Cubs to a 3-0 shutout over hapless New York Mets, and Pittsburgh Pirates nipped Philadelphia Phillies 5-4.

Cleveland Indians dropped Minnesota Twins 5-4 in the American League as pinch-hitter Willie Smith doubled home the winning run in the eighth inning. The Twins had rallied from a 4-4 deficit against Sam McDowell on Bob Allison's three-run homer and an RBI double by Rich Rollins.

California Angels were rained out at Baltimore Orioles.

Queen left after walking the first man in the eighth, leading 3-1 on Deron Johnson's sixth homer with a man on off loser Gaylord Perry and Vada Pinson's run-scoring hit. Reliever Ted Abernathy finished the lesson.

Queen, a relief pitcher who only got into the starting rotation because Jim Maloney suffered shoulder trouble, came into the major leagues as an outfielder with a strong throwing arm three years ago.

ROLLOFFS SUNDAY

Top Pin Tally In First Week

The best came first in the women's tenpin division of this season's Bowler-of-the-Year competition.

Muriel Dodsworth racked up the top tally in the distaff kegling section of The Times contest when she fired a three-game series of 632 in the opening week of the 27-week event.

Since the contest started last October, weekly awards have been earned in each of four divisions by bowlers who topped their sections during regular league play in southern Vancouver Island lanes.

The divisions are women's tenpins, men's tenpins, women's fivepins and men's fivepins.

All of the 27 winners in each section qualified for Bowler-of-the-Year rollofs, making 108 eligible to join in the chase for titles, trophies and cash when the rollofs are held Sunday at three sites.

Fivepinners will all chase rolloff glory at Gibson's Recreation, starting at 1:30 p.m. Pacific Daylight Time. Tenpinners will start at 2:30, with the ladies rolling at Aurora Lanes and men competing at Mayfair Lanes.

FINAL QUALIFIER

Waiting for each of the four rolloff winners will be a Times Trophy and any rolloff champion who is a daily subscriber to The Daily Times will receive a bonus prize of $100.

Only distaff kegler to roll a qualifying score above 600, Mrs. Dodsworth is first on the women's tenpin list, which is completed today by Helen Vaupel, award-winner in the 27th week.

Mrs. Vaupel, who bowls in three leagues, got away to blistering start as she captured the last available rolloff spot. She opened with a 233 game and followed with games of 148 and 157 for a total of 538 in the Ladies' Classic League at Mayfair.

While Mrs. Dodsworth, on the strength of her qualifying score, will be one of the favorites in Sunday's scramble, two former rolloff champions are also in the field.

Peggy Trickett, who took the Times Trophy last year, qualified in the 25th week with a 553 series and Ollie Rutledge, 1965 rolloff queen, made in the 17th week with a 571 tally.

Here are the women's tenpin qualifiers:

1. Muriel Dodsworth	549
2. Freda Pearce	548
3. Anne Goodman	538
4. Nina Mood	537
5. Maureen King	536

Mosca Demands Too Much

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Alouettes of the Eastern Football Conference have rejected a bid by tackle Angelo Mosca to rejoin the club because the Hamilton Tiger-Cats' linesman wanted too much money.

A Montreal spokesman confirmed a report that Mosca, who left the Alouettes in 1962 after a dispute with Perry Moss, head coach at the time, wanted to return to the Montreal club.

If the Hamilton tackle had agreed to terms with the Alouettes, the club probably would have traded him for defensive halfback Ed Learn, who has expressed a desire to play for a club based closer to Welland, Ont., where he lives.

Mosca eventually signed with the Tiger-Cats late last week. Prior to signing, he asked the Hamilton club to attempt to trade him and was given permission to negotiate with other clubs.

Claremont Squads, University Triumph

Claremont and University School won dual track meets on Thursday.

Claremont outscored Shawinigan Lake 324-244 and Claremont girls' team defeated Strathcona Lodge 301-89 at Work Point.

University edged Mount Douglas 83-81 at University grounds.

Campbell, Rodriguez Co-Leaders

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Two pros without a tournament victory this year share the lead in the windswept $100,000 Texas Open.

Diminutive Puerto Rican Chi Chi Rodriguez and cigar-chewing Joe Campbell shot 68s to grab the first-round lead Thursday.

But a swarm of other pros were on the heels of the leaders with 69s including Bert Yancey, Bert Weaver, Richard Crawford, Jay Hebert and Charles Coody. Nine pros shot one-under par 70s and 14 were even par.

Campbell, the 1966 Tucson Open winner, said a stiff wind just reversed the course from the way it was played during warmup rounds. He said players were forced to use woods where irons were enough on Wednesday.

HOT ON GREENS

But the wind didn't affect Campbell's putting. He dropped birdie putts of 20, 18, eight and five feet and just missed a 35-foot eagle putt when he left it inches short.

Rodriguez, one of the smallest men on the tour at 125 pounds, was a big man with short irons around the greens. He chipped to within two feet on the 13th hole and dropped it for a birdie. Two other birdies came after he chipped to within three feet. He also sank putts of 10 and 8 feet for two more sub-par holes.

Yancey, who moved to sixth in the Professional Golfers' Association tour earnings after winning the $20,000 first place check at the Dallas Open, shot a blistering 33 on the back nine.

Pros with sub-par rounds included Tournament of Champions winner Frank Beard, who shot a 70.

'OUTSIDERS' A THREAT FOR CITY GOLF HONORS

Two Up-Island golfers and a pair from the comparatively new Glen Meadows club in North Saanich are bidding to carry the Victoria and District Ladies' two-ball championship to a "cultural atmosphere."

Moving into today's semi-finals at George Vale were Jane Fall, of Cowichan, and partner Evelyn Jackson, of Nanaimo, and a Glen Meadows team of Emma Silverburg and Edna Hay.

Both were confronted with the task of beating Uplands rivals in order to get into Monday's finals at Victoria Golf Club.

The Fall-Jackson pairing faced Mike Price and Lil Thirwell, of Uplands, in one semi-final, while the Glen Meadows' combination went against Kay Tribe and June Lovitt.

Luckies Anxious To Prove a Point

The soccer season is rapidly nearing a close and Carl Pedersen is one manager of still-active District League teams who would like to make a point before the gear is packed away for the summer.

The season was extended for Pedersen's Luckies in the committee room early this week. And a Luckies' triumph in Sunday's Jackson Cup final, Carl feels, may put the point across that they may truly "belong" in the showdown game.

Luckies were set back, 2-1 on the field in last week's semi-final tussle with Canadian Scottish but protested the match on the grounds the Scots used one substitute too many.

The protest was upheld and Luckies move into Sunday's cup final against Victoria West. The game will be played at Heywood Avenue Park.

STADIUM TURF ...

Invaders in Ruthville

By KEN PRITCHARD

NEW YORK (CP) — Many alien boots will trample the grass this summer in Yankee Stadium — "the house that Ruth built."

Between April and December, the Bronx edifice will be home base not only for baseball's Yankees and football's New York Giants, but for both of this city's new professional soccer teams.

The American League Yankees have 81 home dates, the National Football League Giants seven, the National Professional Soccer League Generals 16 and the United Soccer Association Skyliners six.

"The turf will take a terrible beating," we commented to Muzz Patrick, acting general manager of the soccer Skyliners.

"Not from soccer," the big Canadian-born former general manager and coach of New York's hockey Rangers insisted stoutly.

"Soccer players are light and fast. They are like ballet dancers compared with the big National Football League players."

Patrick, vice-president of the new Madison Square Garden Centre now being built in mid-Manhattan, admitted he felt some qualms when Skyliners signed up to use Yankee Stadium. But these were dispelled by a trip to Chicago to see Atletico of Bilbao, Spain, beat Red Star of Belgrade 3-1 in an exhibition soccer game April 12.

"The game was played in constant rain. Afterwards I went over the ground with

Nino's Nose May Delay Return Bout

MILAN, Italy (AP)—The world middleweight title fight between champion Nino Benvenuti of Italy and Emile Griffith, scheduled for July 13 in New York may be postponed because of plastic surgery on Benvenuti's nose.

The newly crowned champion injured his nose when he won the championship from Griffith in New York's Madison Square Garden April 17.

A doctor who visited Benvenuti said the champion "must be operated on as the injury is serious for a boxer."

The doctor said a skin transplant would be necessary.

Eagles Get Mike Ditka From Bears

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Philadelphia Eagles this week sent their scrambling quarterback, Jack Concannon, to Chicago Bears for tight end Mike Ditka in a National Football League trade.

The Bears also received a 1968 draft choice for their unhappy pass receiver, who played out his option last year and becomes a free agent May 1.

The deal filled a void left on the Philadelphia squad by the retirement of Pete Retzlaff, and provided the Bears with a young prospect for the quarterback role with the Bears left vacant by Rudy Bullock, who called it a career after the 1966 campaign.

Unable to reach a contract agreement with owner-coach George Halas of the Bears last year, Ditka decided to play out his NFL option. Later, he accepted a $50,000 bonus to jump to Houston Oilers of the American Football League in 1967.

The merger agreement between the NFL and AFL, however, put a crimp in the arrangement. The 27-year-old Ditka said Wednesday the Oilers were agreeable to his swap to the Eagles.

The 24-year-old Concannon was Eagles' No. 2 draft choice.

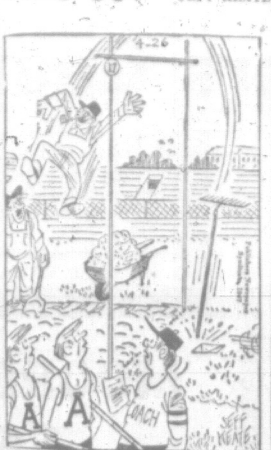

Qualifying Event For Service Meet

A 54-hole qualifying tournament will be played May 4-5 to determine the best 12 service golfers, plus spares, who will represent CFB, Esquimalt, in the Services zone one championship this summer.

Queen's Own Rifles, Work Point Barracks, Nanaimo and Aldergrove stations will be represented in the tourney at Gorge Vale.

Entries close at noon May 2 at CFB Esquimalt gym. No post entries will be accepted.

Ports Shift to Pickup; Pull Away from Royals

FORT WILLIAM, Ont. (CP)—Port Arthur Marry, employing a scoring punch thought up by coach Ab Cava before the third period, Thursday night made sure that history would not be repeated.

Cava's decision to place pickup Chuck Kerner alongside veterans Tim McCormack and Ray Adduono was the spark for a three-goal outburst that was good for a 5-2 victory over New Westminster Royals and deadlocked the Memorial Cup Western final at a game each.

The triumph erased a possibility that the series might resemble a 1944 clash between Trail Smoke Eaters and Port Arthur Flyers in the Western Canada junior hockey final. Trail pulled off a big upset, rebounding from a 2-0 deficit after 2½ minutes of the first period to capture the first game in overtime and eventually swept the best-of-five affair in straight games.

Wednesday night, in the first game of the current series, Royals scrambled back from a 2-0 deficit after 85 seconds of the first period to win 6-5 in overtime.

It took Cava's newly created line just 58 seconds to break a 2-2 tie. Adduono passed to Kerner in front of the New Westminster net and the fast

'We're Not Laughing At Situation'

VANCOUVER (CP)—William Meighen, provincial diking inspector, said Thursday that Fraser River dikes will hold against a peak flow equivalent to the 1948 floods.

However, he would not predict what might happen this year with a record snowpack in the Fraser watershed.

The main problem, he said in an interview, "is not with dikes being topped—they usually give way before that."

He said there is no cause to be alarmed at this stage of the spring runoff, but "we're not laughing at the situation."

River reports from Hope and Mission on the Fraser River and at Wardner on the Kootenay River however gave little indication the runoff has begun in earnest.

The river gauge at Mission was down slightly due to tidal effects while the gauge at Hope, 100 miles east of Vancouver, showed a 4-foot rise to the 14.73-foot level which is below normal for this time of year.

WON'T WAIT

Meanwhile, at Langley, farmers of Glen Valley have decided not to wait for senior government help, but to pay $3,000 themselves to strengthen their dikes.

J. J. McLellan, diking commission chairman, said a contract has already been let.

He said the district had to forget about approval from Victoria for a $60,000 plan to strengthen three miles of dike, to be shared 75 per cent by the senior government and 25 per cent by landowners.

He said the district already had its $15,000 share set aside which it would use for the contract.

Fingerprints Catch Thief

George Liska, of 159 South Turner, pleaded guilty to theft under $50 and was remanded for sentence to May 1 when he appeared in central court on Wednesday.

Police said Liska's fingerprints were found on the door of a stamp vending machine at the sub post office at the Hillside Pharmacy from which $1 in quarters had been taken. The box had been pried open with a pinch bar which was subsequently thrown into the Gorge.

Also remanded to May 1 for sentence on a charge of theft of a fishing rod and reel from a car was Bryan Ross who earlier pleaded guilty.

Liska was also charged with the theft and pleaded not guilty. On Wednesday the Crown said the charge against Liska on this count would be withdrawn.

VERSATILE songstress Moira Anderson sings anything from Mozart to cabaret vocals and Scottish ballads, but she specializes in the latter when touring with the White Heather concert party. Born in Kirkintilloch, she studied voice and piano at the Royal Scottish Academy of Music in Glasgow and taught music in Ayrshire schools until a BBC audition dramatically changed her career. In 1963 she had her own BBC program, Can't Help Singing. She appears with the White Heather troupe Monday and Tuesday at the Royal Theatre.

WITNESS REPORT EXPLOSION BEFORE FIERY PLUNGE

Six Killed as Giant Transport Crashes at Trenton

TRENTON, Ont. (CP)—Six men were killed Thursday night when a giant RCAF Hercules transport crashed and exploded during landing practice.

The four-engine turbo-prop aircraft hit the ground and burst into a ball of flame 1½ miles from the end of the main runway of the Trenton armed forces base and about two miles north of this town.

Dead are Flt. Lt. Charles Matthews, Ottawa; Flt. Lt. D. Jack Buchner, Trenton; Flt. Lt. Richard F. Garber, Winnipeg; Flt. Sgt. Harold Jones, Canadian Forces Base, Greenwood, N.S.; Flt. Sgt. Adrian Voigt, Trenton, and Sgt. Oliver Podier, Kingston, N.S.

The six men were attached to the Air Transport Command's operational training unit at Trenton.

Flt. Lt. Buchner, captain of the plane, was instructing the two officers. The other three men were flight engineers.

Several witnesses near the crash area reported they heard a loud explosion and saw the sky light up with a bright flash as the plane went down.

Cosmo De Clerq, 51, said he was in his house about a quarter of a mile from the crash scene when a "terrific explosion" shook his house.

He said he ran outside and "the whole field was on fire" a short distance from his home.

Edward Strome of Frankford, Ont., said he was driving near the scene when he heard the crash and saw a flash. When he arrived at the crash scene the bodies of crew members were "all cut up and lying there like dolls."

The $2,600,000 plane, noted for its ability to make short take-offs and landings, apparently brushed power lines as it went down at 9:36 p.m. Hydro officials in nearby Belleville reported there was a momentary interruption in power transmission.

The weather was clear at the time of the crash, and winds were light.

It is the first time since the Air Transport Command reorganized in 1946 that crew members, passengers or cargo have been lost in a crash.

The crash Thursday involved a model DC-130E, the latest in the Hercules series developed by Lockheed Aircraft Corp. The air force has some earlier models.

TRAINING COUNSELLOR APPOINTED

Goodwill Accents Work Training

Work training for the handicapped rather than sheltered employment—this is the new emphasis at Goodwill Enterprises.

The policy is reflected in the appointment of G. C. Hudson to the newly created position of training counsellor.

And a tour of the organization's spacious new building on Bay Street demonstrates the potential of the work-training concept.

To Mr. Hudson, "training is the all important thing."

"We employ 117 people on Vancouver Island," he said, "and up to 40 per cent of these are potential members of the labor force."

"Over 50 of them are under 25 years of age and have a lifetime of productive work ahead of them."

Mr. Hudson hopes to increase the number of people employed in the Goodwill workshop and thereby increase the number of handicapped persons being trained for outside jobs.

The work involved in renovating donated materials provides many opportunities for handicapped employees.

They are trained in dry cleaning and pressing, electrical repairs, woodwork, upholstery and many other tasks.

"Contrary to popular opinion," said Mr. Hudson, "handicapped workers are not accident prone."

"A handicapped employee is careful because he is constantly aware of his limitations," he said.

"The fact that his job is often on the line tends to make him very conscientious."

Mr. Hudson said companies hiring handicapped graduates of Goodwill's training programs are pleased with these employees.

The potential number of people who could benefit from the training seems limitless.

"There is a continuing demand on the part of the handicapped for assistance and training," said Mr. Hudson.

"Our employment in this workshop alone could go from 80 to 150 persons within a couple of years," he said.

Mr. Hudson predicted there will be more co-operation among government, welfare agencies, and Goodwill in the future.

"The government provides a subsidy for the training of persons who eventually will be able to take a job elsewhere," he said, "but the real hero of this project is the public."

"This is a community project," concluded Mr. Hudson with the Canadian National Institute for the Blind.

"We wish more of the public, especially those who donate material, would drop in for a visit and see what they are achieving for 117 people."

The new training counsellor for the federal department of health and welfare has been a volunteer worker.

AT ST. JOSEPH'S HOSPITAL

Government Forcing Cutback

By PAUL WILLIAMSON
St. Joseph's Hospital may be forced to reduce services if the B.C. Hospital Insurance Service doesn't pick up a $60,607 operating deficit.

Medical director Dr. Embert Van Tilburg told the annual meeting of the hospital Thursday he will recommend the following measures if an adjustment is not made:

- Reduction of staff;
- Closure of nursing units which operate inefficiently due to inadequate facilities;
- Revision of educational activities which require direct financial support.

Dr. Van Tilburg, who will become executive director of the hospital June 1, said economic measures would be necessary in all other areas as well.

"The financial deficit for 1966 is very serious," he warned.

He said main reason for the deficit is the failure of the provincial government to approve a reasonable budget.

Dr. Van Tilburg suggested the hospital should reduce the number of patients rather than the standard of patient-care.

"In effecting these economies," he said, "we may have less patients and less beds, but in no circumstances will we reduce the quality of care presently offered to our patients."

The problem of beds, however, is already urgent.

Dr. J. A. Fowler, president of the hospital's medical staff, told the meeting "We have 80 medical cases on the waiting list at the moment requiring investigations which can only be done in the hospital."

"Many of these cases have little hope of getting in before July or August."

"From the patient's point of view," he added, "four months is a long time to wait to have an operation."

Both doctors made several references to the need for expanded facilities.

Dr. Van Tilburg called the defeat of the 1965 hospital referendum a severe blow necessitating "a complete revision of all our planning for better facilities and additional beds."

Dr. Fowler was even more critical of inadequacy of present facilities.

He said some facilities for maternity patients are "so primitive and poor that only a complete new plant could effect improvement."

Dr. Fowler called some wards "below the standard which one expects," and said the layout of the operating room is antiquated.

"All we need to give our patients the care they deserve," he said, "are the beds and equipment for the nursing and medical staff to work with."

Both doctors praised the performance of the hospital staff under such difficult conditions.

Dr. Van Tilburg said he is optimistic that 1967 will present a more favorable picture.

Sister Mary Lucia, the present administrator of the hospital, expressed confidence the regional districts established in the last legislative session will improve the financial situation of hospitals.

Son-in-Law Ordered To Pay for Window

Ronald Lawson, 21, 953 Dunn, was fined $25 Thursday and ordered to pay the $10 damage he did when he broke a window at his father-in-law's house.

Soviets Arrest Dutch Official

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Soviet police have arrested a Dutch airline official, apparently in reprisal for the deportation from Holland of a suspected Russian spy, it was revealed today.

The Netherlands embassy said that L. C. T. Donker, 41, he was arrested in reprisal for the arrest and deportation from Holland two weeks ago of Vladimir Glukhov, head of the Soviet Aeroflot Airline office in Amsterdam. The Dutch accused Glukhov of being a "well-trained spy."

OPENING CONFOUNDS THE CRITICS

Expo 67 Proves Even Better Than Expected

By R. T. PURSER
Special to the Times

MONTREAL — Expo 67 is magnificent. This was the verdict of tens of thousands of awed official visitors who toured the site after Thursday afternoon's auspicious opening. Beginning today, paying visitors by the millions will flock to Expo, open 17 hours a day, seven days a week through Oct. 27.

The opening ceremonies once again confounded the cynics who have haunted Expo since its conception. The program, which appeared stodgy and stilted in print, was seen to be dignified, stirring, and at the same time colorful.

The exclusion of the general public, at first criticized, turned out to be a basic necessity. The 7,000 invitees filled the ceremonial area comfortably. If the inaugural had been thrown open to the public, all of Expo-stricken Montreal would have been there. As it was, thousands thronged Montreal's mountain lookouts and skyscraper observatories to get a distant view of the proceedings.

The official ceremonies, culminating in Governor-General Roland Michener's declaration that Expo was open, were well planned and rehearsed and were designed with a sense of stagecraft to build to a finale. The spectacular setting of Expo's Plaza of the Nations, the offbeat design of the plaza itself, the flower-banked dais, the placing of the military units, the red-uniformed Boy Scouts and the international pavilion hostesses contributed to the atmosphere. The closing fireworks display had the sound of an artillery barrage and created a vivid, color effect against a deep blue sky—an effect lost on black and white television viewers.

The Belgian ambassador, Jan-Albert Corlis, speaking for the 63 nations represented at Expo, proclaimed the view later echoed by those who toured the site: "The general plan shows a rare audacity and the location is unique in the history of exhibitions of this type. The direction of this great spectacle is a marvel of ingenuity."

Speakers representing the three levels of government responsible for Expo—Montreal Mayor Jean Drapeau, Quebec Premier Daniel Johnson and Prime Minister Lester Pearson—sounded the theme of national unity and stressed the co-operation between the governments. The speeches were of unalloyed nobility and avoided all reference to intergovernmental jealousies and rivalries.

The complicated program went off without a hitch, and when visitors, including about 3,000 journalists from around the world, fanned out on the grounds, they found a scene miraculously transformed from even 24 hours previously. Gone were the remaining piles of rubble, the outward signs of unfinished construction. Some of the pavilions were unfinished and will remain so for a while yet, but it now was easy to ignore them. Everything was polished and scrubbed down, and thousands of minor details had been attended to. The resulting scene was a triumph of imagination. Expo 67 is big, but by being broken up into separate island areas, preserves a sense of intimacy and avoids the stupefying vastness of the recent over-commercialized New York World's Fair. From every vantage point, cosy and unexpected views emerge of the beauties of Expo's design.

It will take several days of Expo-going for a correspondent to report on the details of Expo's operation, the degree of its success in practice, and how a visitor should budget his time. At first glance it would appear that at least four days is required for a reasonably thorough tour of Expo. It would also appear that the advice to go to Expo by Metro (Montreal's new subway system) rather than by car is more than wise. Last night's opening resulted in half-mile, six-lane traffic-jams on the new expressway leading to Expo from the heart of Montreal. Hundreds of taxis were stuck for nearly half an hour, resulting in a doubling of the usual fare to town.

But snags aside, it is impossible for a visitor today not to be caught up in the excitement of the local populace.

Expo, Says Times, Is 'Sheer Delight'

NEW YORK (CP)—The New York Times says the Montreal world's fair "bids to be one of the great international shows of the century."

In an editorial the newspaper says the U.S. pavilion is a stand-out—"a joyous distillation of the best American art, science and culture."

The Times says there are serious lessons to be learned in Montreal.

"These lessons are pertinent because several cities are already vying for the international exhibition to mark the United States bicentennial in 1976."

"After New York's sad fair two years ago, Expo 67 is sheer delight."

The newspaper says the city of Montreal has other lessons.

"There are more good new buildings in the heart of Montreal than in almost any equivalent acreage in Manhattan. New York can learn about other things than fairs from this Canadian jewel city."

'BENNETT AFRAID'

UBCM Advised

The Union of B.C. Municipalities was urged Thursday to launch an independent study on provincial-municipal financial relations.

The suggestion was made by Alan Macfarlane, MLA for Oak Bay, at a meeting sponsored by the Oak Bay Liberal Association.

It was Mr. Macfarlane's answer to Premier Bennett's refusal to appoint a royal commission to examine provincial-municipal responsibilities and cost-sharing formulas.

"His refusal to accept the legitimate request of municipal leaders for an independent study of provincial-municipal financial relations is an abdication of his responsibilities," he said.

"It is also an admission that he's afraid to face the facts which such a study might uncover."

He suggested the UBCM obtain the services of an independent expert from outside B.C. to make the study.

The UBCM executive is meeting today in emergency session.

Mr. Macfarlane said he was shocked when he heard the premier accuse municipalities of mismanaging municipal grants and "getting stuck in their own glue."

It is the duty of municipal leaders to speak out strongly on behalf of taxpayers when taxation became unbearable, he said.

'STRANGE PARADOX'

He noted that in the last few years residents have been pleading for adequate schools for children and sufficient hospital accommodation.

"It is a strange paradox that the provincial budget increases by $100,000,000 a year and provincial surpluses build up by about $100,000,000 a year, and yet these local needs not only remain unsatisfied but grow more desperate each year."

He said the UBCM made a study on financial relations which became known as the Murison Report a few years ago. This indicated inequities in the financial arrangements between the province and the municipalities.

"But the province ignored this report."

Mr. Macfarlane felt the time has come to put a stop to attack and counter-attacks between province and the municipalities.

"If Premier Bennett is right in his statement that the municipalities are well treated, and that the municipal taxpayer should not object to paying higher municipal taxes, then such an independent report should vindicate his position."

"This problem is not a tempest in a teapot. It is one which has been brewing for many years and worsening year by year. It is obvious that an independent study should be made."

A talk on "Free Trade With the U.S." by Arthur Phillips of Vancouver, provided the audience with plenty of material for discussion.

The speaker felt that economic union would bring Canada's standard of living in line with the United States.

He said Canadian industries would expand.

Peter Pollen, chairman, said economic union would be suicidal for Canada.

"Our industries would be wiped out and it would lead to political domination," he said.

PATROL PLANE
IN SEA CRASH

KITAKUSHU, Japan (AP)—All 12 men aboard a U.S. Navy P-3A patrol plane were believed to have died today when the four-engine turbo-prop crashed into the sea off Japan's southernmost island of Kyushu.

Commons Continuing Use of 'Guillotine'

By BEN WARD

OTTAWA (CP)—A crackdown on prolonged Commons debates through use of the so-called guillotine rule is in prospect for the new session of Parliament opening May 8.

The rule was one of several revisions in Commons procedure adopted in 1965 and continued on a temporary basis for the current session. The revisions will be extended into the new session.

First use of the guillotine was made by the government in the recent debate on unification of the armed forces.

It forced the issue to a vote Tuesday night after 15 days of deadlock on the bill's clauses. There had previously been 26 days of hearings in the Commons defence committee.

Despite an outcry from some Conservatives and charges of closure, there was little public reaction. Liberals claim the guillotine move was widely accepted as the only alternative the government had.

This has led to a general feeling among parliamentary observers that cabinet ministers will rely on the rule from now on whenever an issue becomes logged down in lengthy debate. Some Liberals are concerned that too much reliance on the guillotine could arouse public feeling against the government.

Some of the old-timers still are sensitive about the way the St. Laurent government applied the old debate-cutting closure rule in the 1956 pipeline debate.

That year, closure was introduced before debate had begun, stirring the opposition to an emotional outburst unprecedented in modern parliamentary history.

Arthur Mayse

Although nature provides her own springtime symphony, there is one note that any strolling human with a jack-knife in pocket and a few minutes to squander is free to contribute. It is a plaintive piping, well-suited to rainy April weather, and the agent that produces it is the willow whistle.

This instrument has been elaborated upon in plastic and metal, but the versions with their harsh shrillings assault the season rather than salute it. Usefulness is their only virtue.

The charm of the willow whistle is its uselessness.

A quail sentry might hear it at reasonable range, though he would be unlikely to respond, and it would never cut through a child's playtime preoccupation.

It is made in idleness, blown to fit in the pocket, and tossed away when the bark turns brittle.

Still, since life should not be altogether earnest, I invite you to turn your thoughts from taxes, police briefs and visiting emperors to this slip of greenwood hacked from a rain-drenched Pacific willow clump.

A whistle stick may be short to fit in the pocket, or long so that decorative rings can be cut from its green-grey bark.

What matters—and really all that matters—is that the end section be clear of leaf buds and blemishes. The bark circlet must turn freely when the time comes to remove it.

In any but an absolute downpour, an evergreen (which the host-leaved willow is not; will provide a natural umbrella. Sheltered, back against trunk, trim the end of your stick at a 45-degree bevel. Nest off the cut; then, about three inches lower down, circle the bark with the knife edge.

Now, with the back of the knife, tap this whistle section all along and around its length. Work gently, because hard hammering will cause the tender bark to fray and split, and your whistle will be ruined before it is well begun. If all goes as it should, you are now ready to give the bark a testing twist. A touch more pressure and it parts company with the wood.

This, of course, is easier done than described. So is the notching of the bark to make an air passage, and the slicing of a deeper, longer notch in the slippery white wood from which the bark cylinder has been eased.

Finish off by slightly flattening the wood between notch and end, replace the bark with finicky care, and we are ready to try our luck. It should be noted at this point that even the most precisely fashioned willow whistle may produce not so much as a cheep for all your blowing.

Ours, at first try, appears to be just such a non-functioning product. But slip the bark, take off a shaving here, deepen the notch, and puff again.

This time, a distinct though faint cheep.

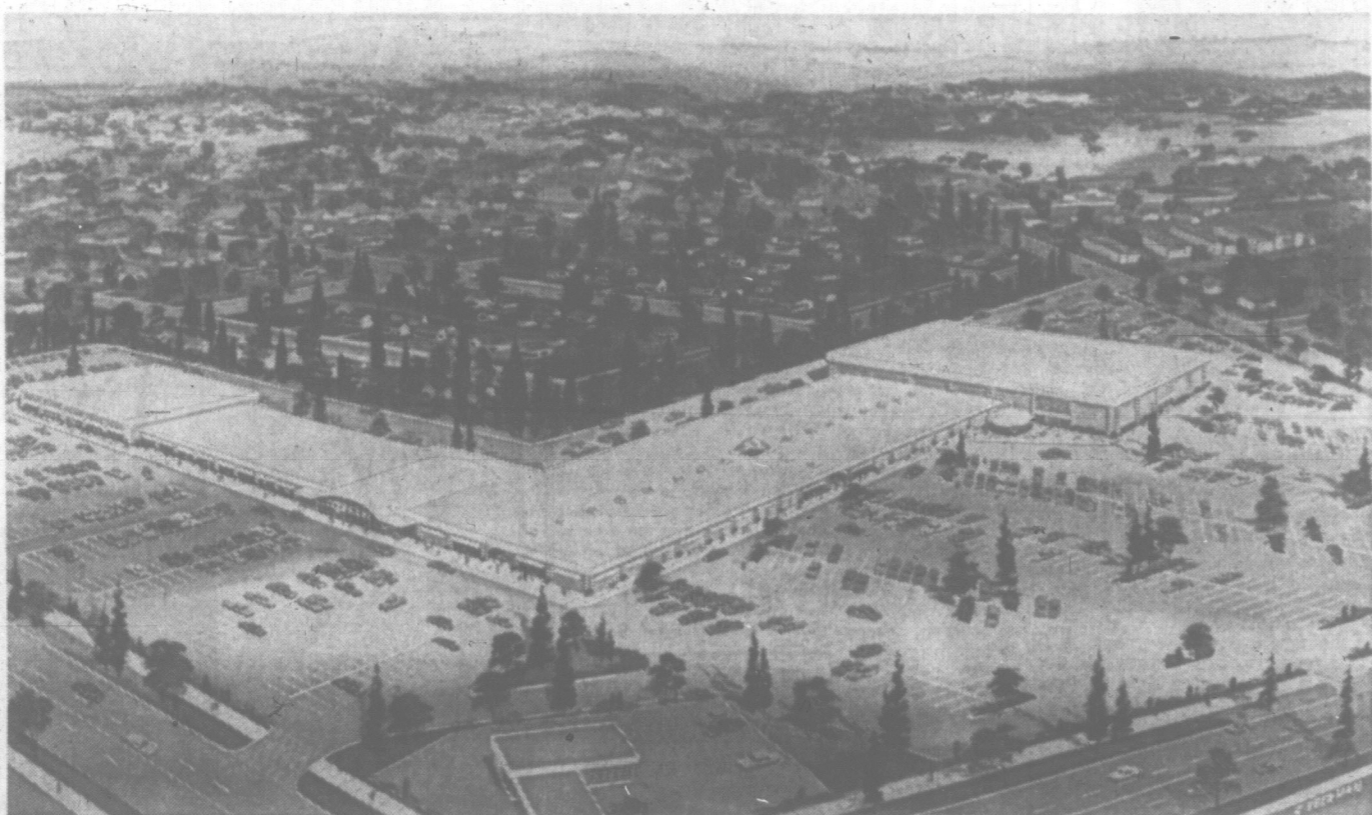

Another touch and the tone is as it should be... high but not sharp; a summons no more intrusive than the call of a bird from a thicket.

Thus encouraged, you may choose to make two more whistles, one larger than the first to ensure a deep note, and the other smaller. Lash these together in line and you have a siren, which will provide not one note but a range of three.

This pagan ancestor of the pipe organ involves more waste of time than most of us can invest, however, and you may choose to be content with variations on the single note.

Don't expect to be answered: to the best of my knowledge, the god Pan has never left his foot-prints in these parts.

As I pointed out earlier, your willow whistle is of no use to anybody. Still, some child may treasure it until a better distraction offers.

A MAJOR SHOPPING CENTRE planned for the Hillside-Shelbourne area will look like this when it is completed in the fall of 1968. To the right is the two-storey Simpson-Sears department store. In left centre, with the curved roof, is the existing Safeway store, which is to be greatly enlarged in the master-plan. Linking the two major stores will be a variety of small stores, all connected by a completely enclosed, air-conditioned mall. The first phase of the project includes the areas between the department store and Safeway. Phase two will see the construction of more small stores to the left of Safeway.

Suburban Site 'Second Best But Still Good'

By JIM HUME
City Hall Reporter

The building of a $6 million shopping centre at Hillside and Shelbourne will not detract from Victoria's downtown core, Mayor Hugh Stephen said today.

At a press conference which confirmed a story in Thursday's Times that Simpson-Sears is planning to build the largest shopping centre in Greater Victoria, the mayor said every effort had been made to persuade the company to locate near the city centre.

"But it is a matter of company policy that their shopping centres are in suburban areas," he said. "Faced with the choice of approving the plan or having them, six or seven years from now, locating to the north,

Strong Core Determining Factor

"But I assure you," he said, "that we would not be locating in Victoria at all unless the core of the city was strong."

Construction on the shopping centre, which will have a two-storey Simpson-Sears department store plus 40 small stores, is expected to start in the fall of this year and be completed by the fall of 1968.

The project does have one last hurdle.

The Advisory Planning Commission has given its blessing to the centre, so has city council. But before construction can start it must survive a public hearing scheduled for two weeks from now.

Anticipating complaints from residents of Shakespeare, the

All-Weather Air-Conditioned Mall

Dominion Construction representative Douglas Sutcliffe said the entire complex would be designed to provide an all-weather air-conditioned mall running down the centre of the main buildings.

"This is the latest concept in store design," he said. "The wide mall will provide a completely protected walk for shoppers with controlled temperatures."

The first phase of construction will cover 20 acres of city property with a further seven acres left for development.

The two-storey Simpson-Sears store will cover 140,000 square feet.

It is anticipated the store will provide employment for 300 persons and that the completed centre will offer jobs to between 400 and 500.

OPTIMISTIC OFFICIAL IN TOWN

'Hope on Horizon' for Sclerosis Victims

More than 25,000 Canadians are afflicted by multiple sclerosis and the lives of more than 100,000 are affected by it.

"It is a threat to Canadians in all walks of life," says John F. Peterson, executive director of the Multiple Sclerosis Society of Canada, who is now visiting Victoria.

A former newspaperman, Mr. Peterson was appointed executive director in Toronto last December.

"I used to find multiple sclerosis a very depressing subject," he said. "But there is hope on the horizon. Some of our leading medical authorities believe there will be a major

JAMES ALLAN
... 37 years service

Retired Fire Chief Dies at 59

James Blyth Allan, former city fire chief, died in Royal Jubilee Hospital this morning after a two-month illness with a lung complaint.

Mr. Allan had served the fire department for 37 years when he retired in February this year because of ill health.

He was born in Paisley, Scotland 59 years ago and came to Victoria when he was two.

He joined the department in 1930 as a driver. He was promoted to the rank of lieutenant in 1950 and became assistant chief in 1963.

In April 1965 he became deputy chief and in November of that year was named chief.

RETIRED EARLY

Mr. Allan was due to retire in September of this year but relinquished the post on the advice of his doctors.

He is survived by the widow Mabelle; a daughter, Mrs. Diane Wisemiller of Nelson, and a son, Christopher, at home. Also surviving are two sisters, Mrs. Eva Hill and Mrs. Betty Brant, both of Victoria, and a brother, George, of Vancouver, and two grandchildren.

Services will be conducted Wednesday at 3:15 at McCall Brothers Funeral Chapel with the Rev. J. L. W. McLean, of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, officiating and interment will take place at Royal Oak Burial Park.

Workman Blamed For Fire Danger

Let 1,500 Gallons Gasoline Spill Into Inner Harbor

Negligence by a worker allowed about 1,500 gallons of high test gasoline to spill from a giant storage tank alongside Victoria's Inner Harbour Thursday evening.

The fire threat brought an emergency turnout from Victoria's central fire hall.

A department spokesman said today a brisk wind, which dispersed the explosive fumes proved a "salvation". There had been considerable danger of a blast being touched off in the area where oil companies have several huge storage tanks.

The threat arose shortly before 6 p.m. while premium gasoline was being pumped from the tanker Tye Shell into the 100,000-gallon storage tank alongside Tye Road.

The department spokesman said one of the men handling the job "wasn't paying attention" and the tank overflowed, slopping gas into a walled area around the base of the tank.

Some of the gas leaked under the retaining wall and firemen had to use sand to block it from flowing into harbor waters.

Only last month Fire Chief Eric Simmons sounded a warning on the condition of such dikes, noting some were not in shape to hold spillage.

Repair work on the dikes is underway, said firemen, but has not been completed.

Police sealed off roads in the area and firemen hooked up hoses and readied chemical fire-fighting equipment as the extent of the threat became known.

Fire trucks stood by for over three hours before the gas was washed into special drains and the fumes dissipated.

A report that the city's emergency vehicle was left unattended in the emergency vehicle was false, Deputy Constable said today.

He said the ambulance manned by city firemen attends all major calls and was standing by at the scene but available if needed.

COMPULSORY RETIREMENT AT 70 ORDERED FOR ANGLICAN CLERICS

After today all Anglican bishops and clergy in the British Columbia diocese must retire at 70.

A canon law to this effect was passed today at the Synod in session here and was approved by Archbishop Harold Sexton.

It provides that bishops and clergy must tender their resignations at 69 and retire at 70.

BISHOP DEFENDS AMERICANS

'U.S. Not Getting Fair Press Abroad'

A spirited defence of United States policy in Vietnam was made by Bishop Ralph Dean, executive officer of the Anglican World Communion, Thursday afternoon.

Just returned from a visit to Vietnam, Bishop Dean told the synod (parliament) of the Anglican diocese of British Columbia in Victoria that the U.S. is not getting a fair press abroad.

"For example," he said, "all you hear in England is how they dropped bombs on the wrong village and used the napalm bomb."

"You never hear of their work for peace or their constructive work."

"I saw all kinds of this... a pediatric unit with rows of children in hammocks dying of malnutrition, and even the plague, because the Viet Cong had stolen all their rice."

"They were being tended by American doctors," Bishop Dean said. "The Bishop of the Cariboo, said it is unfair there is no news coverage of the U.S. program of re-educating the mountain people of Vietnam."

"In a 13-week program, GIs teach these people all kinds of skills and they are put through training courses by the thousand."

Bishop Dean said the U.S. is in Vietnam because of a commitment to the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization.

Principal Hits Grant Stinginess

Blacktop, Hydro Ahead Of Children, Club Told

An emergency meeting of the Union of British Columbia Municipalities executive was being held in New Westminster today.

The meeting, prompted by rising school costs over which municipal councils have no control, began in the morning and was not expected to conclude until late afternoon.

Among those attending the meeting was Saanich Reeve Hugh Curtis, the only UBCM executive member from the Greater Victoria area.

By AL FORREST

The provincial government's school grants policy came under heavy fire today from a prominent district principal.

"When I see the attitude of the provincial government, words fail me," Macaulay Elementary School principal A. I. Isaacson told a Victoria Lions luncheon at the Empress Hotel.

He said the government seems to be more concerned with blacktop and hydro power development than the development of children.

Mr. Isaacson is chairman of the British Columbia Effective Teaching and Learning Conditions committee of the B.C. Teachers' Federation.

THREE FRONTS
He charged that the provincial government is not doing its job on three education fronts:

● It has failed to bring its salary grant structure up to date, is paying 50 per cent of teachers salaries as they were about five years ago and therefore is really paying far less than half the cost.

● It has failed to keep the pupil-teacher ratio down to a level that makes for effective teaching.

● It has failed to appoint a full-time education minister.

"In the legislature there seem to be two sides: The government against improvements in education and the opposition parties in favor."

SUMS IT UP
"I'm trying to avoid getting on a political platform on this issue but their failure to appoint a full-time minister seems to sum up their attitude to education."

In contrast, all other groups seem to be rallying behind improvements in the education program from city councils and school boards down through all other organizations.

He particularly noted support from labor councils and parent organizations.

Mr. Isaacson said the $13,930,241 in referendum going before voters on May 13 were evidence of "progressive thinking" by the school board and deserved full support.

UNITED FRONT
Teachers and school board have already welded a united front on the referendum and echoes of support have been heard from councils, labor and parents, he said.

Mr. Isaacson said large amounts of money are needed to help the schools adjust to the tremendous changes in society.

"Half today's students will enter occupations not yet invented. Retraining is becoming the rule rather than the exception."

The schools have to consider individual needs, individual differences in the classrooms. They must teach not only facts but the scientific method of learning to produce the self-educating student.

The little red schoolhouse is years in the past. Today's explosion of knowledge requires new methods to prepare children for tomorrow's world.

"All this adds up to more classrooms, more teachers and more money," he said.

"I have nothing but praise for (school board chairman) Peter Bunn and the school board. They have seen the need."

Black's driving licence was also suspended.

SURPRISE MOVE

B.C. Restores Civil Service Dues Checkoff

Premier Bennett today announced that voluntary checkoff of association dues will be restored to provincial civil servants.

The surprise announcement wipes out one of the biggest and most persistent quarrels between the cabinet and the B.C. Government Employees' Association.

The checkoff was arbitrarily killed by the cabinet in late 1960 despite the association's withdrawal from the B.C. Federation of Labour at a time when union dues going to the New Democratic Party created a general controversy throughout the province.

"A few years ago the civil servants lost their voluntary checkoff," the premier said in a message to the press gallery shortly before press time.

SAME BASIS
"I am announcing today that it will be reinstated on the same basis as before because they've (BCGEA) shown a great responsibility of action."

"On the recommendation of (Civil Service Commission chairman) Dr. Hugh Morrison, we are reinstating the voluntary checkoff to the BCGEA forthwith."

Premier Bennett said the decision had come "right out of the blue" after a unilateral study and the BCGEA officials had not been given prior information of it.

The BCGEA now represents about 7,000 of the 19,000 government employees. Its members give their monthly dues to the association directly.

More than half of the 4,000 government employees in this area are believed to be members in good standing of the BCGEA at present. This figure likely will shoot up when the dues can be paid by salary checkoff, the customary procedure today in collecting union dues.

Ask The Times

Q. Did Ask the Times make an error in its answer to a recent question on Holyrood House?—Numerous Callers.

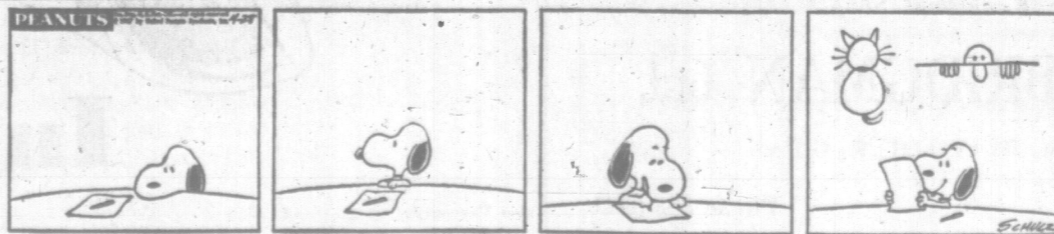

A. Yes. We said Mary Queen of Scots was murdered there. She wasn't. She lived there and her secretary David Rizzio was murdered there. Mary Queen of Scots was executed at Fotheringhay.

Q. How long have starlings been on the West Coast? Do they eat insects? Has any official war been declared on them?—O.W.M.

A. Starlings were first seen in B.C. at Oliver in 1947, says Dr. Clifford Carl of the Provincial Museum. They feed on many noxious insects and weed seeds. No "war" has been declared on them although some years ago when a great brood nested in a residential area, trees were cut down to deprive them of their habitat.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the problem along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums or legal problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to a dealer.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Unwilling 'Lover' Is Best Forgotten

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am 50 years old and have had my eye on this married man of 45 for more than five years. I have been married 24 years and my children are grown and married.

My husband works nights and I get tired looking at the four walls practically all the time. About three years ago I called up this man to come and see me when I'm all alone. He's a real nice looking and dresses up so nice and talks sweet, too. Well, at first he seemed to like me, and he'd come over about three times a week. Then all of a sudden he always had an excuse why he couldn't make it. He works at a garage and he would tell the guys to tell me he wasn't there when I called.

I finally got so mad at him I called up his wife and told her all about us. She said, "You aren't the first one and you won't be the last," and hung up on me.

I just can't forget this man.

Abby. How can I get him back?

CRAZY FOR HIM.

DEAR CRAZY: You can't, so you had better try to forget him. And quit calling him! You have too much free time, lady. If you don't like night TV, find a job to keep yourself busy, or you're apt to find yourself out on the street with no husband.

DEAR ABBY: My sister-in-law was brought up in a large city and she says it is "bad taste" or, at best, "small-townish and provincial" to publish death notices reading "cherished daughter, beloved wife, or devoted husband, etc."

She claims if the person was "cherished, beloved, or devoted" there is no reason to advertise it as strangers don't care what the family relationship was, and friends who know find such descriptions hilariously funny. What do you think?

A READER.

DEAR READER: Your sister-in-law must have a peculiar sense of humor. There is nothing "hilariously funny" about a death notice in any language.

DEAR ABBY: In answer to "Only Her Fiance"—who was annoyed because his girl friend suddenly came up with contact lenses: He thought as long as he didn't object to her wearing glasses she shouldn't have bothered with contacts. Her "sudden vanity" made him suspicious. Well, may I say that contact lenses are not worn only as a cosmetic aid? They act as a "shield" to the eye and keep the vision from worsening as quickly as it would have without lenses. Before I got my contacts, I had my glasses' prescription changed three times in 18 months.

I've been wearing contacts for nearly five years and I haven't had the prescription changed once! And my vision is far better now than it ever was with glasses.

Citizen's Major Role In Pollution Control

The importance of the citizen's role in water pollution control was emphasized by Ian Withler, Thursday, when he addressed the Association of Women Electors in The Bay's Douglas Room.

Mr. Withler, biologist in charge of the protection of fish and game branch, provincial government, pointed out that water pollution was a necessary evil. "It is, in effect, impractical to completely eliminate pollution, and generally impossible."

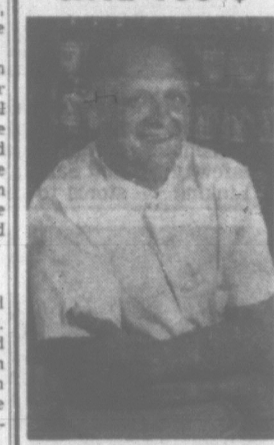

Anyone who uses water in any way, he said, contributes to its pollution because he changes its quality.

"We must begin to accept degrees of pollution," he said, and added, "but the citizen must decide what degree is acceptable." In the question of pollution control, continued Mr. Withler, the government is being pressured by two groups, those for more control and those, in industry, wanting less. A major problem for control is its high expense, said Mr. Withler. Industry can calculate the cost in dollars and cents, but we, the citizens, cannot measure it in human or animal welfare.

In Victoria, there are two main favorable points against heavy pollution. The area has relatively little heavy industry, and it's surrounded by the Pacific Ocean.

"These prevent gross pollution problems." But the speaker went on to point out some local trouble spots: The Gorge Waterway, Colquitz Creek and Clover Point, mentioning the signs of approaching pollution such as little fish life, the growth of algae and weeds, and

Adventure Climax Is Expo Opening for Indian Girl

SCHOOL PROJECT BRINGS FAME

MONTREAL (CP)—Rosalee Kirkness, 13-year-old Cree Indian girl, Thursday night grasped a pair of metal shears, cut through the steel ribbon outside the Canadian steel industry pavilion at Expo 67 and said: "Ne pas ta nan oma pewapisk amig."

She then smiled and said in English, "I declare the steel pavilion officially open."

Thus came to an end a series of events which catapulted Rosalee from an isolated Indian reserve at God's Lake Narrows, Man., into the splendor and excitement of Expo 67.

Her adventure began Jan. 10 when her teacher asked each pupil of the Grade 6 class to write to a large company for information about a particular industry, as part of a class project.

Rosalee wrote to the American Iron and Steel Institute and received not only a personal reply from President John P. Roche but also an invitation to participate in the opening ceremonies of the Steel pavilion.

Rosalee's letter read in part: "This is my first letter I write before . . ."

"There are about 800 Cree

Indians here on the mainland and on the island there are 16 white people. We don't have any animals like horses, cows, pigs or hens, just dogs and two cats . . ."

"Please do not think that I'm writing to you only to get a lot of stuff. I am writing to you because I'm enjoying it as well, and I'll be thankful for anything you send me. It is a new experience for us and from what we receive, we will certainly all learn a lot more about Canada."

"I just hope that sometime I may visit you but in the meantime if you wish a little souvenir of God's Lake Narrows tell me what you would like and I'll try to do the best I can."

SHE MADE A HIT

Mr. Roche was so impressed with her detailed account of life on the reserve he replied in part:

"Dear Rosalee: "It was indeed a pleasure to meet you through your most informative letter. Your description of the area and life at God's Lake Narrows gave us a very good picture of the community."

"We are very glad you wrote to us, Rosalee, because we do have several booklets which explain what iron and steel are . . ."

"We'd like to ask you for something too. Would you send us a snapshot of yourself, of your home . . . also a sketch map which would show us God's Lake Narrows, Elk Island, your house and the various schools?"

One thing led to another and finally Rosalee was chosen to open the steel pavilion.

AWED BY CITY LIFE

And so, Rosalee, who had never seen a television set or a department store, or a city, boarded an airplane Thursday and came to Montreal.

When asked how she felt about being chosen to come to Expo, she smiled gently and said: "I'm so happy. But I got sick on the plane. I'm keeping a diary of everything."

And when she was taken shopping for the first time she promptly chose a mini-skirt. She also had her hair done.

Asked whether she was going to fly back, she replied: "Oh yes, but I'm going to take some pills."

FLYING TO NELSON

His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. George R. Pearkes will fly to Nelson on Saturday to attend the annual convocation of Notre Dame University, to take place on Sunday.

Golden Wedding Day

Mr. and Mrs. T. G. Clarke, 505 Rupert Street will celebrate their golden wedding anniversary this Sunday by holding an "open house" at the Oak Bay Beach Hotel from 2:30 to 5 p.m. They were married in Skipton Church, Leask, Sask., on April 30, 1917. After living in Melfort, Sask., the Clarks moved to Victoria in 1937. Their two daughters, Mrs. M. A. (Blanche) Kerslake, San Jose, Calif., and Mrs. V. G. (Josephine) Lock, Ottawa, will be present for Sunday's reception and will also be here for a family dinner at the hotel, which will honor their parents on the following evening. There are six grandchildren. Mr. Clarke is the president of Clarke and Wallace Realty Limited.

Spring Dance

Members of St. Dunstan's Anglican Church and their friends will gather in the church hall, this evening, for a spring flower dance, beginning at 9:30 p.m. Music for dancing will be by Dave Pepper's Quintet and all manner of dance contests are planned. There will be door prizes and refreshments will be served. Proceeds from the dance are earmarked for the church landscaping fund.

For Miss Waite

Coral carnations on corsage were presented to bride-elect Miss Marilyn Waite, whose marriage to Mr. Terry Moore takes place in Vancouver on Sunday, when she was entertained at a shower by Mrs. Robert Wilkins, Glasgow Avenue. A similar corsage was given to the honor guest's mother, Mrs. J. H. Waite. A box, gaily decorated in a shower motif, contained the gifts from Mr. and Mrs. P. Bailey, Mrs. D. Mann, Mrs. J. M. Mitchell, Mrs. E. Smith, Mrs. J. Hawkins, Mrs. A. Lingren and Miss Chris Waite. Sending gifts were Mrs. B. Mann, Mrs. W. Hansen, Mrs. R. Hovind, the Misses Mary Waterfield and Norma Smith.

Floral Pins

A dainty floral pin was presented to bride-elect Miss Bev Lloyd when she was entertained at a shower in the Kings Road home of Miss Maureen George. Similar pins were given to the honor guest's mother, Mrs. K. Lloyd, and the groom-elect's mother, Mrs. C. Earnshaw. A

League Reaches Goal For Scholarship Fund

The aim of $7,500, to provide annual scholarships for deserving students across Canada has been reached, Mrs. C. E. Archer told the British Columbia Council, Canadian Daughters' League convention, recently.

Mrs. Archer, national president from Edmonton, said that the national scholarship fund had originated several years ago as a centennial project. With the target reached, she said, the first scholarship will be awarded in 1968.

Retiring provincial president Mrs. J. A. Walker, Vancouver, presided at the three-day meeting in the Strathcona Hotel.

Resolutions presented at the sessions included the setting up of a national flag day, a proposed ban on the sale of fireworks excepting controlled public displays, and adequate warning labels for gases and chemicals containing volatile hydrocarbons, which can cause brain and internal damage if used incorrectly.

The council also voted to support the Weir version of the national anthem.

In the education department, it was reported that the Misses Gwenneth Davis and Diane Bloedel had been awarded scholarships, and Robert Har-

This Breakfast Treat Is Tasty Canned Meat

By Penny Saver

Some of the things that I've learned about food in the last few days are simply amazing. Take, for example, bacon that stars the breakfast menu. Did you know that you can now buy bacon in cans? Apparently canned bacon was the rage a few years ago, but then it was taken off the market for about three years. Now it's back in an improved form. This bacon is imported from Denmark. According to the information that I've read, this bacon comes from high-strung animals. (Now I've heard of everything—neurotic livestock? What next. Thus the animal itself is treated with the utmost care as it is being raised.

Armed with a can of this bacon, I conducted an experiment in our household. Of the "guinea pigs," there was one bachelor who loves cooking and appreciates good food, a diet-conscious bacon-hater and a frugal bank teller who won't buy anything unless it's guaranteed to be excellent. Judging by the remarks and requests for another slice or two, you'd never guess that this bacon came from an animal that may have been experiencing some psychological traumas. The bacon has a pleasant mild flavor very similar to ham. It isn't too salty or too sweet—it's just right for my taste.

This canned bacon has scores of advantages. First of all, because it is cooked somewhat after it is sealed in the can, you can store it indefinitely on your shelf as it doesn't need refrigeration until the can is opened. This is an ideal feature for campers with those "mini-fridges" for butter, eggs, milk and other perishables as you can just toss the bacon in the box with the rest of your canned goods, leaving more room in the cooler for other foods.

You needn't worry about a can opener either—this can has a key firmly attached to the lid in such a way that it can't fall off or be lost.

Each can holds one pound of delicious bacon. It's wrapped in parchment which absorbs most of the fat caused by the cooking after it has been canned. Thus, it's a good idea to re-wrap the slices in waxed paper after you open the can. The slices are as long as any other bacon slices. A feature that every housewife will go for is the fact that this bacon is quite lean. The set selling price is 99 cents the can. Treat your family to a hearty breakfast tomorrow morning with this tasty bacon.

MR. AND MRS. CHAMBERS

Mark Golden Wedding Day At Reception and Dinner

The Cook Street home of Mr. and Mrs. George James provided a colorful setting for celebrations recently, marking the 50th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Chambers, 2935 Wascana Street.

The honor couple was married on April 21, 1917 in First Methodist Church, Saskatoon, with Rev. George Adams officiating. At that time, Mr. Chambers was a Canadian Pacific Railway agent at Colonsay, Sask. In 1926 they moved to Nipawin, Sask., then transferred to Yorkton, Sask., in 1946.

Mr. Chambers became local freight agent in Moose Jaw in 1950 where the couple remained until his retirement in 1954. They made their home in North Vancouver for three years before coming to Victoria in 1957. For the anniversary party, the home was decorated with bells and streamers in a colorful golden theme. Focal point of the refreshment table was a wedding cake, accented with yellow roses. Presiding at the table were Mr. Chamber's niece, Miss Lois Conway, and Mrs. Don Bentley, Vancouver. Hostesses for the event were

The North District Guides and Brownies will combine efforts with the district's Ladies' Auxiliary on Saturday for a luncheon to be held at The Bay's Douglas Room from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. A door prize will be an additional highlight. Seen here, in back row, left to right, are LA secretary Mrs. Lewis McCorkill, LA treasurer Mrs. Len Cruickshank and LA president Mrs. Stanley Foubister, who is luncheon convener. The Guides are Melinda McCorkill and Kerri Cruickshank.

Tea and Sale Of Victoria WI

The Bay's Douglas Room was the setting for a tea and sale of work by the Victoria Women's Institute recently.

President Mrs. Lillian Johns greeted the guests and general convener was Mrs. T. Moore, who was assisted by Mrs. R. Hodgson.

The various stalls did a roaring business throughout the afternoon. Booth conveners included Mrs. G. A. Delmarque, novelties, and Mrs. B. MacLellan, with Mrs. E. Elkre and Mrs. R. Collis, home baking.

Arranging the tea was Mrs. G. Edwards and her helpers included Mrs. S. Macro, Mrs. P. C. Hawkes, Mrs. F. MacLaughlin and Mrs. A. C. Craib.

St. Ann's Academy will hold its annual spring fete at 2 p.m. on Saturday. In keeping with Canada's Centennial, volunteers will don old-time costumes for the event, which is being held at the academy. Seen here, left to right, are Ann Thompson, Mary Clarkson, Diane Bertoia, Kathy James, Mimi Doyle and Eli Richter, who will be among the students running the penny carnival.

A New You by Emily Wilkens

To bathe or not to bathe? That is the question. If your answer is to take a shower, then you don't know what you're missing. The Saturday night ceremony has come a long way from the tiny tin tub. Today you can create a cleansing concoction almost as enjoyable as those fabled baths of Caracalla.

With the Romans, of course, bathing was a cherished event. A bell announced that the baths were open, you paid a coin or two, played an arduous game as a warm-up to clean-up, rubbed yourself down with African sand and oil (guaranteed to erase all that grime) and enjoyed a triumvirate of warm, tepid and icy cold waters—who says we invented hot and cold water plumbing?

That evening, Mr. James, Mr. Gunn and Dr. Wagner hosted a dinner party for the honor couple in the Princess Mary Restaurant.

Through history, many ideas have been handed down which apply for modern super sudsing. Although soap was unknown to the ancients (they used soapweed for lather), by the 16th century, Castile soap from Spain was a household word in every castle. Today, the truly elegant still use a Castile-type of soap or choose one of the fragrant kind-to-your-skin varieties so readily available.

Nero may have fiddled but his wife, Poppaea, farmed. She originated the milk bath and fed her hair a herbal diet to enrich the milk even more. You, too, can luxuriate in a milk bath—20th Century style. Here's how:

Measure a cup each of powdered skim milk, oatmeal and laundry starch; wrap ingredients in a cheesecloth bag (or make a sack out of a man's handkerchief). Swish the bag around in your bath water and then give yourself a rub-a-dub-scrub with it. Soak for about 20 minutes and you'll emerge with beautifully soft, smooth skin.

Madame de Pompadour had different herb gardens at each of her seven chateaux to enhance her bath. And Catherine the Great at 80 was reputed to have the complexion of a 20-year-old because of her bathing preparation, made with rare herbs which were sped to her on horseback from all over Russia. All you have to do is walk to the supermarket or drugstore to get the makings for a royal bath.

This simple formula, for example, was the well-kept beauty secret of a spectacular-looking Frenchwoman, Ninon de Lenclos:

Wrap equal proportions (a spoonful or so) of dried lavender flowers, rosemary, thyme and dried mint in a large handkerchief or double cheesecloth. Toss into tub and pour very hot water over the "bag;" let it steep ten minutes; then finish filling your tub and soak for 20 minutes.

Another historical bathing beautifier is called a "loofa." Composed of vegetable fibre, which looks like straw, loofas scrub away dead cells and help restore circulation. The loofa outlasts a wash cloth or sponge and is widely available today.

While you're a bathing beauty, surround yourself with pleasing accessories. A plastic covered towel makes a tub pillow. An inexpensive, indispensable tip tray holds bathing needs. And what could be more luxurious than a fluffy bath towel for mopping up operations?

Our knowledgeable ancestors had the right idea. Bathing actually gives new life and beauty to the skin. An ancient Chinese emperor, whose own tub was solid jade, thought a daily bath was the best way to "renew, rejuvenate himself." His theory might work for The New You, who chooses tub over shower at least once a week.

Just for You: Add a handful of oatmeal to bath water to eliminate that ring around the tub... softens your skin, as well.

CLUBWOMEN'S NEWS

Ceremony—Mrs. Thomas Lumden, educational secretary, reported that the "Salute to Queen Victoria ceremony will be held on May 19 when the Municipal Chapter IODE met in the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria. Miss Christine MacNab presided and gave a report of the recent provincial annual meeting, held in Vancouver. Services convener Mrs. C. C. Riach outlined plans for the annual memorial service, to be held at Ross Bay cemetery on May 28. She reported that this year's intercession service would be held at St. Matthias' Church at 10:30 a.m. the same day. The treasurer reported that cheques for $374 would be sent to the nine primary chapters as their share of the festival profits. It was announced that the confederation pageant would be presented at the annual meeting of the Women's Canadian Club. Mrs. V. H. V. Sheppard was appointed delegate to the national annual meeting, to be held in Ottawa.

New Home Recipe Reducing Plan

It's simple how quickly one may lose pounds of unsightly fat right in your own home. Make this home recipe yourself. It's easy, no trouble at all and costs little. Just go to your drug store and ask for four ounces of Naran Concentrate. Pour this into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill the bottle. Take two tablespoons full a day as needed and follow the Naran Plan.

If your first purchase does not show you a simple easy way to lose bulky fat and help regain slender more graceful curves; if reducible pounds and inches of excess fat don't disappear from neck, chin, arms, abdomen, hips, calves and ankles just return the empty bottle for your money back. Follow this easy way endorsed by many who have tried this plan and help bring back alluring curves and graceful slenderness. Note how quickly bloated disappears—how much better you feel. More alive, youthful appearing and active.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Perfect Figure Varies With Your Height, Bone Structure

Q. What are the measurements for a perfect figure?

A. These vary with height and bone structure. It is impossible to set standards which would be perfect for everyone. However, as a general rule the calf should be five to six inches smaller than the thigh and the ankle about five inches smaller than the calf.

There should not be more than two inches difference between the bust and hips and the waist should be 10 inches smaller than the hips.

Q. I am 22 years old, and I still have pimples on my face occasionally. This isn't nearly so bad as it was when I was in my teens and I never had a true acne, but it seems to me that this pimple business ought to have completely cleared up by now. Should I see a dermatologist?

A. If you have only an occasional pimple or two I do not think you need see a skin specialist. Usually girls outgrow the pimple stage by the time they are 20, but sometimes the tendency to have them lingers on a little longer. Keep in mind too that diseased tonsils or teeth or some other infection can cause these blemishes.

Q. My hair isn't terribly curly, but it is curly enough so that I can't look really smart and in style. I understand that this can be straightened at a beauty salon or at home. Are there any really good ones to use at home?

A. Yes, in fact there is a new one which seems to be quite effective. The whole process takes only 45 minutes and is easy to follow. There is no mixing of solutions required. There are two formulas, the regular one and the one for hair which has been color treated.

Q. I have warts on my face, and I understand that they can be hypnotized off. Is this true?

A. There have been some cases where a dermatologist applied a completely ineffective agent to warts, and they disappeared when the child was told they would. I do not know whether the power of suggestion could be this great or whether the warts would have disappeared regardless. Anyway, if you have warts, don't pick at them yourself or take a neighbor's advice about how to remove them. See a skin specialist and if he does not hypnotize them, he can remove them very easily and without pain to you.

ISLAND DIGEST

EMPLOYEES ADMIT THEFT

DUNCAN—Two Super Valu employees pleaded guilty in court here today to charges of theft.

William Moore, 20, and Derek Dillabaugh, 18, both of Duncan, admitted stealing store goods valued at less than $50.

Cpl. William Baillie told the court the accused were arrested after the management had stalked out the store in the early hours today.

He said Moore and Dillabaugh were employed by the store to fill shelves at night.

At 2 a.m. store manager Robert Large reported to police the accused were carrying groceries out of the store and into a car.

IN CUSTODY

Dillabaugh was remanded in custody until May 8 for a pre-sentence report.

Baill was set at two sureties of $500 each in the case of Moore who was also remanded for a pre-sentence report.

George Arthur Woodley, 18, was charged with possession of stolen goods in connection with the same incident.

Woodley, already facing trial on charges of possession of housebreaking instruments and attempted theft, was remanded until May 8 on two $500 sureties.

IMPAIRED

Driver Jailed Four Months

A man whose car almost hit a bridge abutment as it weaved down the old Island Highway was jailed for four months Thursday when convicted of impaired driving.

Alexander Phillips of 2424 Wark had pleaded not guilty to the charge, but offered no defence.

RCMP Constable Russell Borys told the court he stopped counting after Phillips' car swerved over the centre line of the highway for the 10th time early on March 19 as the police cruiser followed it.

The car almost collided with a bridge abutment at the intersection of the Island Highway and Trans-Canada Highway. Phillips almost collapsed into the arms of another policeman when his car was pulled over, court was told.

The accused admitted having about 10 beers before leaving Sooke. A breathalyzer test produced a reading of .26 per cent blood alcohol. Bernard Brennan, an expert on the machine, said anyone who produces a reading over .10 per cent is impaired.

Phillips has had two previous convictions for the same offence, court was told, in 1960 and 1966.

In a case Wednesday, William Donald Lyall of 578 Langholm was fined $350 when he pleaded guilty to impaired driving.

He was arrested by RCMP officers who checked him after they saw his car drive erratically on to Sooke Road and without stopping April 6.

LADYSMITH—Residents here are facing a whacking 8.1-mill increase in municipal taxes this year.

A total of 4.8 of the increase is for education costs.

But according to Mayor Kathleen Grouhel they're looking at a gift horse in the mouth if they complain.

Said the lady mayor today: "It is not a spectacular budget and the general mill rate is still very low in comparison to the services provided."

MODEST, UNAVOIDABLE
She described the jump of 3.3 mills in the general rate as "modest and unavoidable."

The proposed budget, which will be approved at the next council meeting, sets the 1967 tax rate at 58.75 mills.

Of this, 22 mills is taken for the general rate, 34.97 for education and 1.78 for hospital debt.

Total expenditure for the year is estimated at $464,000.

The owner of a $15,000 home will pay about $45 more in taxes—less the $10 increase in the provincial homeowner grant.

While accepting the increase, Mrs. Grouhel had this to say about the general upward trend: "I'm not happy about the perpetual increase in education costs and agree the government should take a second look at its cost-sharing formula which is pegged to an outdated salary schedule."

BEACH PURCHASE
She said the general rate increase is accounted for by $10,000 towards purchase of Transfer Beach for development as the town's centennial project and $5,000 for new public works equipment.

The mayor revealed at the same time that council is trying to interest Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation in a land assembly scheme.

"This would mean CMHC taking a tract of land, putting in all the services and selling the lots at something like cost price."

The area in question is at Holland Creek on the southern edge of town. Some 30 lots would be involved.

Recreational District Bid Gains Strength

DUNCAN — Members of North Cowichan and Duncan recreation commissions agreed Thursday to ask their councils to explore the possibility of forming a regional recreation district.

The 10 commissioners agreed the regional district would initially be limited to the two municipalities.

Projects discussed Thursday included a swimming pool, auditorium and community hall. Ronald Price, chairman of the city commission, recommended holding back individual plans so as not to endanger a possible bigger recreational referendum at a later date.

North Cowichan expects to have a professional planner's recreational survey of the general area completed by June.

Blood Clinics
In Valley
Next Month

DUNCAN—It will be blood donor time again in the Cowichan Valley next month.

The Red Cross unit will be at Lake Cowichan May 23, Chemainus May 24, Crofton May 25, and Duncan May 25 and 26.

Mrs. Howard Graham is new chairman of the local blood donor clinic.

She is hoping to repeat of beat the December clinic record of 416 pints of blood and 74 new donors.

MOVE FOLLOWS FOUR-DEATH CRASH

2,000 Ask Lights at Crossings

COURTENAY—A potential life-saving petition will be handed to 'provincial' government offices in Victoria next week.

The petition will urge installation of lights and alarm bells at the railway crossings which criss-cross this up-Island city's streets.

Said one of the petitions' organizers, local IWA president Max Salter today: "Response has been tremendous."

"More than 2,000 people have already signed the petition and we expect to have double this number by next week."

The petition was taken up following a tragic train-car collision March 31 which took the lives of Mrs. Betty Jorgensen and her three young children.

Although no blame was attached to the train crew, a coroner's jury urged installation of warning lights.

Only warnings at present on this and other crossings in the area are signs to say a rail crossing is ahead.

Queen Crowned
NANAIMO (CP) — Gaye McNabb of Nanaimo has been crowned Miss Nanaimo by outgoing Queen Leanne Ballek.

Miss McNabb enters the Miss PNE contest in Vancouver later this year.

Costume Prizes
CHEMAINUS—Best prizes for most authentic centennial costumes will be handed out at the town's centennial dance here tonight.

The petition will be sent to the department of transport, the E and N Railway and the highways department.

As a result of the fatal accident, Courtenay council this week discussed the financial aspect of installing the necessary warning systems.

Under the present set-up such systems are paid in part by the railway company, by the local authority and in some cases by the highways department.

Hopes Fading Fast For Lost Youngster

ALERT BAY—Rescuers were, today we're concentrating on the bush.

The lad's disappearance came less than a week after 43-year-old Annie Puglas mysteriously disappeared.

Believed to be a relative of Kenneth, she was last seen by her husband a week last Wednesday sitting on the doorstep of a friend's home.

Police said there appeared to be no connection between the two disappearances.

That was the last seen of him. Only 100 yards from his house as the dense undergrowth in which even experienced hunters frequently get lost.

And the sea is only 75 yards away.

Said an RCMP officer: "We had boats out yesterday but"

Car Wash Planned
Centennial Teens, a new Victoria youth group, will hold a car wash Saturday to raise funds.

The group will wash and wax cars and wash trucks at 1321 Yates from 10 a.m.

Sheila Ryan is president of the Centennial Teens, which now has more than 50 members between the ages of 13 and 20.

ASK ANDY

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of encyclopaedia or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes. The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 25-volume set of the World Book Encyclopaedia and of the second question a Diamond Atlas or Globe.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopaedia to Ruben Romers, age 9, of Phoenix, Arizona, for his question:

How does a swan song sound?

The elegant swan is a rare bird, but we sometimes see him and his graceful family gliding like snowy ships on some quiet lake. The particular swan we see most often is a beautiful bird who is only half tame and we may find him living a lordly life on a reedy stream or pond in a well-tended park. He looks like a graceful ship from fairyland with snowy white sails reflected in the silvery water. All we want to do is admire him — and that is all we should do.

It is not wise to dash up and to make friends, especially when his lovely wife is nesting or when the proud parents are bringing up their baby cygnets. He might suspect that you mean to threaten his family. When this happens, the big bird forgets his calm and elegant ways and becomes a furious father protecting his young. He stretches his long neck, hissing like a snake. He dashes and splashes forward, beating mighty white wings that are strong enough to break your arm or upset a rowboat, dumping the rowers into the water.

This bird is the mute swan, a name he earned because he seems to have no voice at all. When we imagine what his swan song would be like, we tend to think of slow and stately music, of tender melodies and long echoing notes fading away softly into sadness. There are many legends and imaginative fairy tales about the mute swan. Some people claim that he sings his sweet swan song only once, just before he dies. But no reliable reporter has ever heard it. So we must admit that the sad, sweet story of the swan song is just a sad, sweet fantasy from fairyland.

Evaporates Fast

However, the mute swan is not the only swan in the world. He has six big, beautiful cousins who enjoy life in the wilds. Two of these wild swan cousins fly over our heads in spring and fall as they travel between their summer and winter homes. And these big birds most certainly have voices, big voices that are loud and clear. But their swan songs are not at all what you would expect them to be. You hear these great birds from afar and look up to see them flying in a pointed V-formation, loudly rejoicing as they go.

The huge, trumpet-like swans boom out like a band on parade. Their clear notes and their sharp, shrill notes, their trumpeting honks and hoots can be heard for miles in all directions. Sometimes, but not so often, a squadron of wild whistler swans flies overhead. These fellows also sound off as they go. Their swan songs range from deep bass notes to shrill whistles somewhat like the high, clear notes of a clarinet.

Our wild swans nest in the far north and fly south to stay with us through the winter season. The noisy squadrons fly at 40 to 50 miles an hour and when scared, perhaps by an airplane, they can speed up to 70 miles an hour — which is faster than a sensible person drives a car. They travel along the flyways used by flocks and flocks of smaller birds. Perhaps their trumpeting and whistling swan songs are meant to clear the way. Or perhaps they are just hooting and tooting with joy.

Andy sends a World Book Atlas to Sandy Walton, age 11, of Jenks, Oklahoma, for her question:

Do they know how much the sun weighs?

The weight of a heavenly body is called its mass. And its mass is the amount of matter contained in its size or volume. The term mass is used because the weight of an object is caused by surface gravity. And the force of gravity varies with the materials and different sizes of the heavenly bodies. However, in measuring mass, we use the ton unit and mass ton is equal to the weight of an ordinary ton of coal on the surface of our planet. Please do not feel slow-witted if this seems confusing. It is confusing — but the experts insist that they have a good reason for it.

The diameter of the fiery sun is about 109 times wider than our little round globe. If it were hollow, more than a million earth-sized planets could be packed inside it. But the sun's mass is not a million times greater than ours. The starry powerhouse is made of much lighter material and its total bulk is only 331,950 times greater than the mass of earth. It is estimated to have a mass of 2,184,759 sextillion tons — mass tons, of course. This astronomical figure can be written as 2,184,759 followed by 21 zeros.

Coronary Simply Explained

By DR. WALTER C. ALVAREZ

As I must keep saying here, unfortunately we doctors, in the last few years, have gotten into a bad habit of using before patients the most difficult words that we can think of. Instead of saying, "You have a heart attack," or "One of the main arteries in your heart has been narrowed markedly by disease—a hardening of the arteries, or arteriosclerosis, or atherosclerosis," we will say, "You have a coronary ischemia, (lack of enough blood in a coronary artery), or coronary insufficiency, or coronary thrombosis."

Coronary refers to the two big arteries that go around the top of the heart. These made the old Greek anatomists think of a crown or "corona." Insufficiency means not enough blood, and thrombosis means a clotting of blood.

If the blood clots suddenly in a narrowed coronary artery, the person will get a heart attack—severe or mild, depending on the size of the artery plugged-up, and some other factors. Sometimes the artery is not completely plugged up, and that gives the patient a chance to live.

The main symptom often is a severe pain in the chest that can be relieved by putting a tablet of nitroglycerin under the tongue, to be absorbed there. Later the person may suffer "anginal" pain if he walks too fast, perhaps into a bitter cold wind. The making of an electrocardiogram (electric record of a wave of contraction sweeping through the heart) will show if any bit of tissue in the heart — deprived of blood by a plugged-up artery — died.

On my desk I find letters from a few people who want to know about polycythemia vera; poly means many, cyt means a cell, hemia means blood, and vera means true; hence the disease, or perhaps symptom, is one in which there are too many red blood cells in the blood. Instead of a normal 5,000,000 in cubic millimeter (in a man), there may be 6,000,000.

A tendency to form too many red cells in the blood suggests that the person's body is trying to compensate for a lack of oxygen. Hence, a person with polycythemia needs first to be studied by a physician who will try to find out what the cause is. People who live in a high-altitude city (perhaps at 15,000 feet) in the Andes and South America, where the air is poor in oxygen, are likely all to have polycythemia.

I have seen people who had some polycythemia because, with a bad asthma, they were not getting enough air into their lungs. I remember well a woman patient of mine whose polycythemia was associated with high blood pressure and a failing heart. On two occasions, she bled severely from her stomach, and because with this her blood pressure fell to normal, for a while she felt like a new woman. When she had over 6,000,000 red cells, she had a red face.

Bastion Presents Two Two-Character Plays

The typists—Paul and Sylvia—age twenty-odd years of age when the play begins. When it ends, they are in their middle sixties.

Joy Richards and Glenn Mac-

Donald make the transition from youth to age during Murray Schisgal's play, The Typists, on a double bill with The Tiger tonight, Saturday and Sunday at Bastion's Government Street Studio Theatre, 1322-A Government Street.

The Tiger is also a two-character play. It begins with a kidnapping, continues with conversation between kidnapper and kidnapped, a French lesson, and a date for their next meeting.

In The Tiger, Patricia Seale plays Gloria, and Ian McIntyre plays Ben. Both plays are directed by Eugene Gallant.

Playwright Schisgal, a 41-year-old New Yorker who is considered one of the foremost playwrights in North America, is noted for his two and three-character plays, pointing up the lack of communication between today's self-centred people, and spoofing many serious subjects with humor and understanding.

Born in New York City, he joined the navy during the Second World War when he was 17, played saxophone and clarinet with a jazz band after his discharge, and then attended Brooklyn Law School, from which he graduated in 1953.

Curtain time for The Tiger and The Typists is 8:30 p.m.

British Gov't Under Fire for Tripling Press News Cable Rate

By HAROLD MORRISON
LONDON (CP) — Britain's decision to triple its charges for sending news to the Commonwealth is described by one British newspaper as doing more damage to the Commonwealth idea than any other event since the Second World War. "This is about as retrograde a step in the process of building international understanding as one could imagine," The Guardian comments.

Another national newspaper, the Daily Telegraph, also takes the government to task for abolishing the old penny-a-word cable rate, saying it weakens the few remaining links binding the old family of nations.

Most other national dailies merely published today the announcement without comment, adding their view that while the British decision affects only press reports sent from Britain, other Commonwealth countries soon would also increase their penny rate. The British penny-a-word rate goes up to three pence.

The British decision, effective next Sept. 1, was announced Thursday, immediately bringing expressions of shock and dismay from Commonwealth correspondents and the Commonwealth Press Union. They called on overseas governments to press Britain to halt the rate boost.

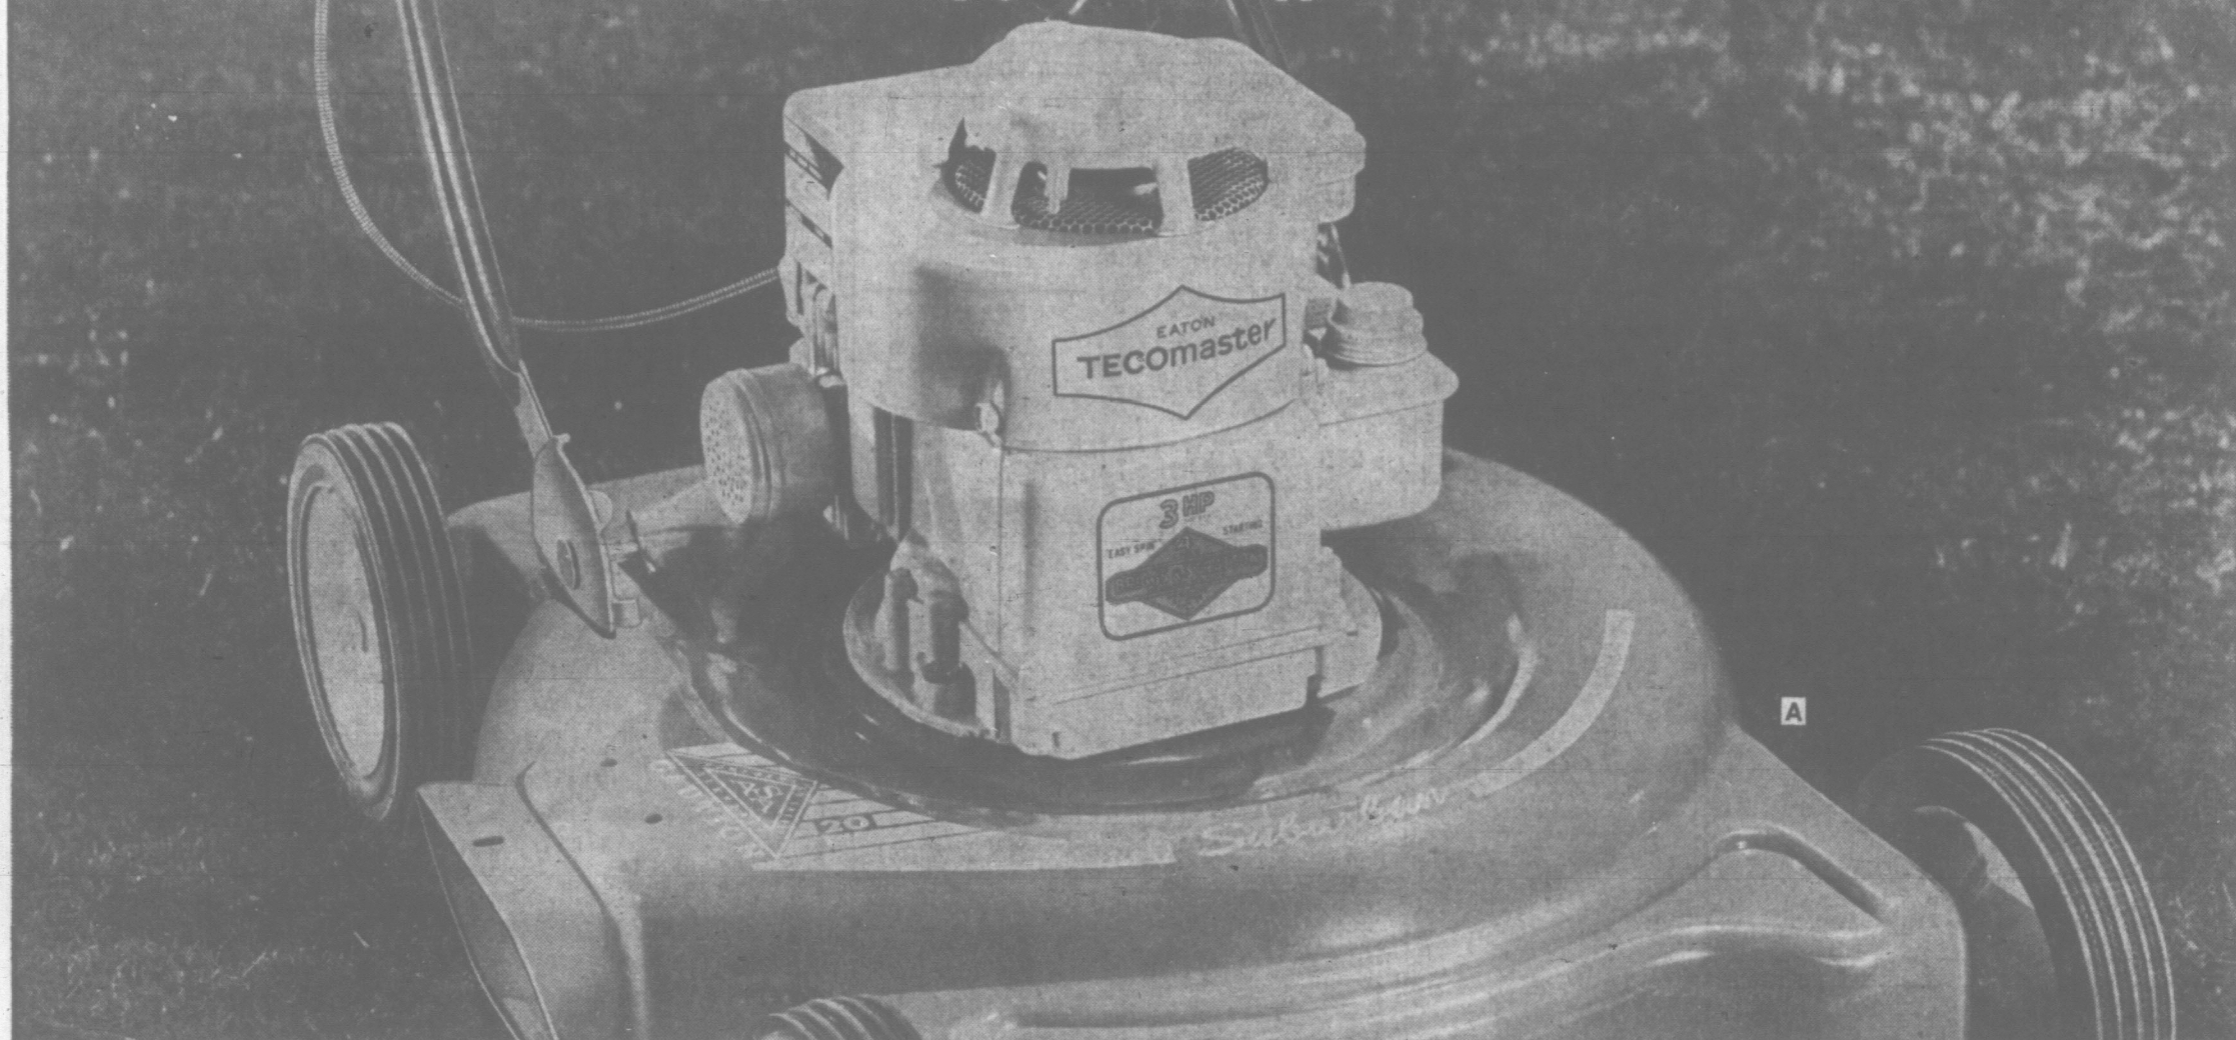

While Commonwealth countries may also increase their long-standing penny rate on outgoing press reports, Canada may take a long, cool look at the idea and probably retain the old rate.

"We're certainly not going to do anything immediately and I personally doubt that we will increase it," said D. F. Bowie, president of the Crown-owned Canadian Overseas Telecommunication Corp.

HOME GARDEN

Care of Seedlings Tricky to Handle

By JACK BEASTALL

Handling coldframes full of growing seedlings at this time of year is perplexing for the home gardener.

If the weather would remain the same for several days and nights at a time the job would be greatly simplified, but that is not the way of spring.

Each hour we find a difference in wind texture and direction, in the amount of sun and cloud, and showers of cold rain are frequent. This constant change leaves the gardener in a quandary.

One is seriously tempted to leave the frames covered, and many gardeners give in to the temptation, discovering later that the plants are ruined.

With the type of weather we have had for the past week, the frame covers needed to be removed by 6:30 to 7 in the morning to prevent overheating, and remain off until 10 at night.

Although the air temperature at that hour could be in the 40 to 45 degree range, one still had to weigh the possibility of a light frost across sunrise.

Gardeners who are out of bed with the birds have seen the roofs in many areas covered with frost at 5 but clear half an hour later.

Because of this we cannot leave the covers off all night, so we compromise. We put them on at bedtime, and if the sky is not brilliantly clear we leave them open a couple of inches or so and hope for the best.

The uncertainty is irksome, but the plants will have to withstand the weather when they are finally planted out, and nothing will be gained by over-coddling now.

Sooke Field Trip

The intermediate section of the Junior branch of the Victoria Natural History Society will meet on Saturday at 10 a.m. at Douglas-Hillside for an all-day expedition to the tide pools at Whiffen Spit, Sooke.

Those collecting seaweed should bring plastic containers. No glass jars will be allowed. Organizers stated.

WAC Faces Both Ways On Police

Premier W. A. C. Bennett carefully avoided making any controversial observations about the controversial proposals of the Canadian Association of Police Chiefs for radical increases in their powers.

"I'm very much opposed to a police state," the premier declared in an interview.

"But the policeman's lot is becoming very difficult in an era of fast communications and organized crime," he immediately added.

"Our main aim should be to hold our freedom—and the freedom of our police to protect our citizens as well."

BEARD caused three weeks' layoff for Christopher Vosburg, 24, from his job as a Douglas Aircraft hydro-press operator in Long Beach, Calif. The company took him back when it decided his appearance "now meets the standards of being acceptable."

Former Treasurer Buried Here Today

Funeral services were to be held this afternoon in Victoria for a former comptroller-treasurer of Saanich municipality.

Wilfred Greene, comptroller between 1939 and 1945, died Tuesday in New Westminster. He was 89.

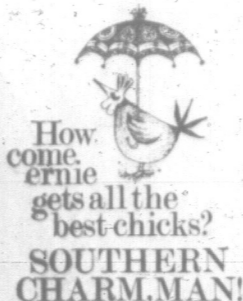

Born in Moose Jaw, Sask., he served in the First World War.

later joined Saanich and rose to the comptroller's position. After the Second World War he was New Westminster's comptroller.

He is survived by his wife, Elizabeth, daughter Mrs. Walter Skymkovich in Seattle, three brothers and two sisters. Burial was at Royal Oak cemetery.

Clay Refuses To Join Up

Faces Jail Term,
Loss of Title

HOUSTON (AP) — Heavyweight champion Cassius Clay refused army induction today and faced a possible five-year prison sentence and loss of his title.

Lt. Col. J. D. McKee, commandant of the Houston Induction Centre, announced that Clay, who contends he spends 90 per cent of his time as a Black Muslim preacher, had refused to take the traditional step forward symbolizing entrance into the Armed Services.

U.S. Attorney Morton Susman said he would begin immediate criminal action, but estimated that legal procedures would take from 30 to 60 days even to get an indictment.

"Even then it may be two years before this can be fought out in the courts," Susman said. "Meanwhile, Clay, or Muhammad Ali if you wish, will be free to keep on fighting and preaching."

MAY LOSE TITLE

In New York, the influential State Athletic Commission announced Clay would be stripped of his title and an elimination tournament would be staged to pick a successor.

The World Boxing Association and other controlling groups in the sport were expected to take similar action.

Clay insisted "I will take my title to prison with me."

His attorney, Hayden Covington of New York, announced he would file immediately a 67-page law suit challenging the entire structure of the Selective Service System and the right of the government to take criminal action against his client.

"The champ will never go to jail—we will fight this out to the finish," Covington said. He added that he planned to go immediately to Washington to seek an injunction against the government's prosecution of the heavyweight champion.

SAYS HE'S MINISTER

Clay sought to avoid the draft on grounds that he is a practicing minister of the Islam faith and that boxing is only a sideline.

His lawyers contended also that he was discriminated against because of the unpopularity of the Muslim religion and the makeup of the Texas draft boards which they said have an unfair Negro representation.

Mainland Air Crash Kills Two

VANCOUVER (CP) — The bodies of two men were found early today after their light aircraft was seen crashing to marshy swamplands next to the Vancouver airport about midnight.

Rescue teams found the bodies of Robert Kevin Johnson, 38, and Dean LaMar Hoffman, 44, both of Powell River, about 2:15 a.m.

Workers reported seeing the one-engine airplane smash into the swamp, but it took rescue crews more than two hours before they found the crumpled wreckage about 100 feet from where the aircraft first struck down.

ONE ROCKET, 5 SATELLITES

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — A powerful Titan rocket today successfully orbited three scientific satellites and two robot sentries to police any violations of the nuclear test-ban treaty.

"Everything looks very good," an air force spokesman reported after all five satellites sprung free from the booster's last stage.

UNMANNED SPUTNIK ORBITED BY RUSSIA

MOSCOW (UPI) — Cosmos-156, an unmanned Sputnik, spun around the earth today. It was a symbol of Russia's determination to stay in the space race despite the in-flight death of its most experienced cosmonaut.

The Thursday launch of the Sputnik came about 24 hours after the ashes of cosmonaut Vladimir Komarov were given a hero's burial in the Kremlin Wall.

CANADA WILL NEVER BE THE SAME

Expo 'C'est Merveilleux'

By PETER NEWMAN
Special to The Times

MONTREAL — The canonade of fireworks which marked the opening of Expo, bursting in a technicolor tattoo over the St. Lawrence on an April afternoon, may in retrospect turn out to have been one of those rare moments that change the direction of a nation's history.

Greatest Ever Done

How, after sponsoring this world's fair, can we ever be the same again? This is the greatest thing we have ever done as a nation (including the building of the CPR) and surely the modernization of Canada—of its skyline, of its tastes, its style, its institutions—will be dated from this occasion and from this fair.

MONTREAL (CP) — More than 30,000 visitors had entered Expo 67 by noon on its first public day. With an original estimate of nearly 120,000 visitors for the full day, officials were bracing themselves for a heavy rush after 5 p.m.

Earlier, seven men, protesting United States participation in the war in Vietnam, staged a sitdown in the main foyer of the U.S. Pavilion.

The sitdown started as a planned march on Expo by another group of demonstrators dispersed peacefully before reaching the Expo gates.

At the very moment when the governor-general, a sombre presence amid the gaiety of the day, declared Expo-67 officially open, I was standing in front of the U.S. pavilion, which was shimmering and soaring in the sun like an aviary fit for eagles. Beside me, a young Expo hostess, all done up in white leather and a blue beanie, shrieked in pleasure at no one in particular. "C'est merveilleux!"

Overwhelmed

And it was marvellous, all of it. Not just any one building or exhibit; not just the zooming helicopters and purring hovercraft, but everything. It's a wondrous fair. It's fabulous. It's the sun and the moon and the stars. And the more you see of it, the more you're overwhelmed by a feeling that if this is possible, that if this little sub-Arctic, self-obsessed country of 20 million people can put on this kind of show, then it can do almost anything.

The $50 million Expo will cost a small price for the impression of Canada its 35 million visitors will get.

Doctor Faces Life in Jail; Convicted of Killing Wife

NAPLES, Fla. (AP) — Dr. Carl Coppolino was convicted of second-degree murder by an all-male jury today in the drug-murder of his wife Carmela and was sentenced to life in prison.

Conviction of second-degree murder carries a penalty of 20 years to life in prison.

Coppolino sat expressionless with his head in his hands as the verdict was delivered at 9:25 a.m. after less than four hours of jury deliberation.

Mary Coppolino, the wealthy divorcee he married after Carmela's death, also sat expressionless in a front row seat just behind her husband at the defence table.

Defence lawyer F. Lee Bailey moved immediately for a new trial and said if the motion was denied the case would be appealed to the Florida Supreme Court.

After the jury foreman, 48-year-old Harry Miller of Naples, delivered the verdict and it was read by the court clerk, Circuit Judge Lynn Silverthorn sent the spectators out of the small, hot courtroom. Then he delivered the sentence of life imprisonment.

Killer Flood

MOSCOW (Reuters) — A wall of water up to 13 feet high swept through the central Asian town of Andijan today, swamping unknown districts and killing an unknown number of people.

COPPOLINO
... expressionless

The 34-year-old doctor, nattily dressed in a black suit and white shirt, was marched under guard out a side door of the courtroom to a jail cell on the same floor.

The defeat was a stunning one for Bailey, the dynamic, 33-year-old Boston defender who sprang into national prominence when he gained a new trial that freed Dr. Sam Sheppard.

The judge ordered Coppolino taken into custody immediately and delivered to the state penitentiary at Raiford. Bailey protested the verdict as invalid and illegal and moved that Coppolino be discharged.

"This is obviously the sort of charge where the verdict must be maximum or nothing," said Bailey. "There is no in-between. From the allegation of poisoning the second-degree conviction cannot stand."

Viet Chief Tells Congress

By FRED S. HOFFMAN

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gen. William Westmoreland told Congress today the only strategy that can defeat the Communists in Vietnam "is one of unrelenting military, political and psychological pressure on his whole structure—at all levels."

This appeared a call for increased escalation, possibly including broadened bombing of North Vietnam and commitment of more U.S. troops in South Vietnam.

In an unprecedented personal report to Congress by a war commander, Westmoreland described U.S. forces as "unbeatable" and said they have been successful in destroying Communist main force units.

He said "I can assure you here and now" that the Communist stratagem called "war of national liberation" will not succeed in Vietnam.

But while speaking confidentially, the U.S. commander of 430,000 men in Vietnam sought to dispel any idea that the Communists are near collapse.

MADE SOME REVISIONS

Several hours before delivering the speech, Westmoreland revised the last third of the text, mainly to streamline it. There were few substantive changes.

He inserted one paragraph which made the point that the Communist enemy "uses covertly border areas of neutral countries." This was an evident reference to the known Communist use of Cambodia and Laos as sanctuaries and rest areas. Neither country was mentioned by name in the paragraph.

In considerable detail, Westmoreland pictured an enemy who has doubled his strength despite heavy battle losses whose commanders are skilled professionals, whose troops are well trained, whose primitive supply system is surprisingly effective.

"I foresee that he will continue his buildup across the demilitarized zone and through Laos, and he will attack us when he believes he has a chance for a dramatic blow," the general predicted.

"I expect the enemy to continue to increase his mortar, artillery, rocket and recoilless rifle attacks on our installations. At the same time he will step up his attacks on hamlet, village and district organizations to intimidate the people and to thwart the democratic processes now under way in South Vietnam."

DIDN'T REPEAT CHARGE

Westmoreland did not repeat his charge—made at The Associated Press annual meeting in New York Monday—that anti-war protests in the United States—which he labelled "unpatriotic"—are encouraging the Communists to fight on, and that this will cost the lives of American and allied soldiers.

The closest the general came to this was to recall that "as I have said before, in evaluating the enemy strategy it is evident to me that he believes our Achilles' heel is our resolve."

He assured Congress his troops—"the finest ever fielded by our nation"—will prevail in Vietnam over Communist aggression, "backed here at home by resolve, confidence, patience, determination and continued support."

Recounting recent instances of Viet Cong assassinations of South Vietnamese civilians, Westmoreland declared:

"One hears little of this brutality here at home. What we do hear about is our own aerial bombing against North Vietnam."

Then, in defence of U.S. air attacks on the North, Westmoreland said:

"For years, the enemy has been blowing bridges, interrupting traffic, cutting roads, sabotaging power stations, blocking canals and attacking airfields in the South, and he continues to do so."

"Bombing in the North has been centred on precisely these same kinds of targets and for the same military purposes—to reduce the supply, interdict the movement and impair the effectiveness of enemy military forces."

MARINES DESPERATE FOR HELP

SAIGON (UPI) — U.S. Marines called today for "all the help we can get" in their frustrated efforts to drive a Communist battalion from strategic Hill 861 in four days of fighting to block a Communist invasion route below the demilitarized zone.

The heavy fighting has killed 57 Marines, wounded 77 and cost at least 2 helicopters. The Marines' cause was hampered severely by Communist mortar, rocket and artillery attacks.

NO ONE WILL BUDGE

Time to Worry Claims Martin

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Paul Martin, Canada's external affairs minister, said today the positions of the two sides in the Vietnam war have hardened.

"It is a serious situation," he told a press conference.

Martin spoke to reporters after a private 45-minute conversation with UN Secretary-General U Thant. Both Martin and Thant have reviewed the Vietnam situation with a number of governments in Europe and Asia during the last few weeks.

"The dangers are obvious to us all. Now is the time to worry about them."

He said his own ideas as to how the conflict might be ended are simply ideas, not formal proposals at this time.

SIDES WON'T BUDGE

"In my view, there is not going to be any acceptance by either side at the present time of such proposals."

His plan for a four-stage halting of the war and beginning of peace negotiations was outlined to the external affairs committee of the House of Commons in Ottawa April 11.

He told reporters today that despite press reports, he has "no information at this time" that his ideas have been rejected by North Vietnam.

He declined to say whether his pessimistic opinion of current peace prospects coincides with that of Thant.

"I am not saying this is what the Secretary-General thinks; I am saying this is what I think."

He declined to comment on his talks at the UN in the last two days with Thant, U.S. Ambassador Arthur Greenberg and Soviet Ambassador Nikolai Fedorenko.

He also turned down questions about the stepped-up U.S. aerial offensives and reports of increased Soviet arms shipments to North Vietnam.

"I am not going to take up this line of questioning at all," he said. "It would not be in the least productive or helpful to the situation."

2-Day Ceasefire Ordered by Cong

SAIGON (CP) — The Viet Cong today ordered their guerrillas to observe a two-day ceasefire beginning May 22 to mark the birth of Buddha.

A statement by the Viet Cong news agency said the truce would be observed in response to an appeal by Buddhist leaders in Saigon, who called for a ceasefire to allow for religious festivals.

South Vietnamese officials said they were studying the Viet Cong proposal, but declined to make any immediate comment on the Communist offer, which doubled a 24-hour ceasefire proposed by South Vietnam and its allies.

A statement by the National Liberation Front, the political arm of Viet Cong, was broadcast by the front's clandestine radio.

It warned, however, that any military attacks by the Saigon government or its allies in the 48-hour period would be "severely punished."

The Viet Cong ceasefire was scheduled to begin at 7 a.m. May 22 and end at 7 a.m. May 24. The South Vietnamese truce, including a pause in the bombing of North Vietnam, was announced April 8 for May 23 only.

ACTION INTENSIFIES

In the ground war, Communist forces in South Vietnam's embattled northern sector poured artillery, mortar and rocket fire on U.S. and government troops overnight in some of the heaviest enemy shelling of the war.

The U.S. Command said 12 American marines were killed and 180 marines and seven army artillerymen were wounded in four attacks. South Vietnamese spokesmen termed their casualties light.

Heavy clouds moved back over much of North Vietnam, limiting air attacks on the North Thursday to 48 missions.

IT Just Floated ... Away

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — A shapely blonde plunged in to a heated swimming pool to demonstrate a new paper bikini for the press and the worst happened—or the best, according to one's point of view.

The top part of the suit—guaranteed not to shrink, burn or disintegrate—floated away Thursday from 23-year-old Noel Steever.

While she sought to fix it, a public relations man explained to gaping reporters:

"It's not really a piece of athletic wear. It's not a thing to go swimming in, really."

Most of the reporters hardly heard him. They were watching Miss Body Chemistry of 1967.

Miss Steever later said the $4 swimsuit "could use some design changes."

Although nature provides her own springtime symphony, there is one note that any strolling human with a jack-knife in pocket and a few minutes to squander is free to contribute. It is a plaintive piping well-suited to rainy April weather, and the agent that produces it is the willow whistle.

This instrument has been elaborated upon in plastic and metal, but the store-bought versions with their harsh shrillings assault the season rather than salute it. Usefulness is their only virtue.

The charm of the willow whistle is its uselessness.

A quail sentry might hear it at reasonable range, though he would be unlikely to respond, and it would never cut through a child's playtime preoccupation.

It is made in idleness, blown to no tangible purpose, and tossed away when the bark turns brittle.

Still, since life should not be altogether earnest, I invite you to turn your thoughts from taxes, police briefs and visiting emperors to this slip of greenwood hacked from a rain-drenched Pacific willow stump.

A whistle stick may be short to fit in the pocket, or long so that decorative rings can be cut from its green-grey bark.

What matters—and really all that matters—is that the end section be clear of leaf buds and blemishes. The bark ciclet must turn freely when the time comes to remove it.

In any but an absolute downpour, an evergreen (which the host-leaved willow is not; will provide a natural umbrella. Sheltered, back against trunk, trim the end of your stick at a 45-degree bevel. Nest off the cut; then, about three inches lower down, circle the bark with the knife edge.

Now, with the back of the knife, tap this whistle section all along and around its length. Work gently, because hard hammering will cause the tender bark to fray and split, and your whistle will be ruined before it is well begun. If all goes as it should, and the sap is running nicely, you are now ready to give the bark a testing twist. A touch more pressure, and it parts company with the wood.

This, of course, is easier done than described. So is the notching of the bark to make an air passage, and the slicing of a deeper, longer notch in the slippery white wood from which the bark cylinder has been eased.

Finish off by slightly flattening the wood between notch and end, replace the bark with finicky care, and we are ready to try our luck.

It should be noted at this point that even the most precisely fashioned willow whistle may produce not so much as a cheep for all your blowing.

Ours, at first try, appears to be just such a non-functioning product. But slip the bark, take off a shaving here, deepen the notch, and puff again.

This time, a distinct though faint cheep.

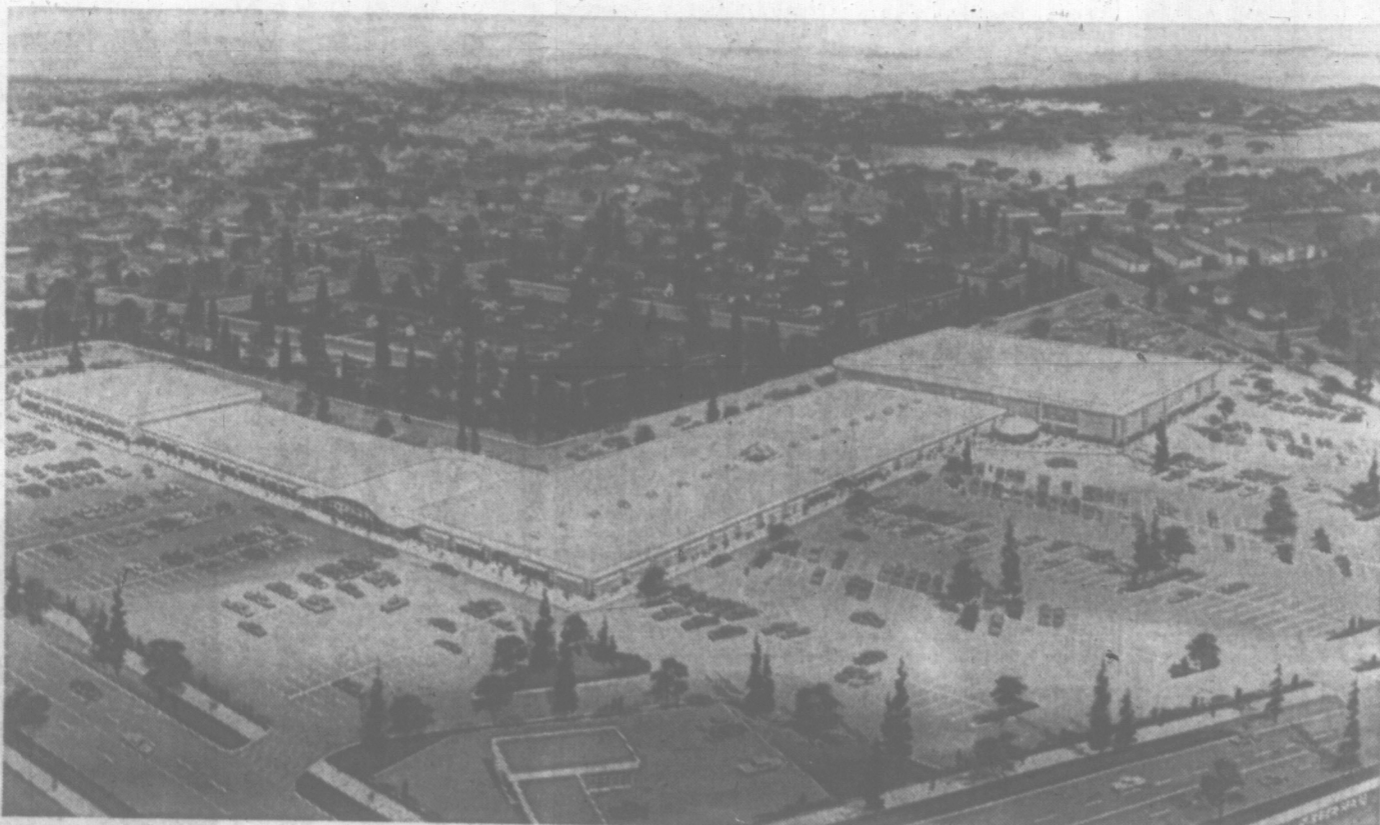

Another touch and the tone is as it should be... high but not sharp; a summons no more intrusive than the call of a bird from a thicket.

Thus encouraged, you may choose to make two more whistles, one larger than the first to ensure a deep note, and the other smaller. Lash these together in line and you have a syrinx, which will provide not one note but a range of three.

This pagan ancestor of the pipe organ involves more waste of time than most of us can invest, however, and you may choose to be content with variations on the single note.

Don't expect to be answered: to the best of my knowledge, the god Pan has never left his hoof-prints in these parts.

As I pointed out earlier, your willow whistle is of no use to anybody. Still, some child may treasure it until a better distraction offers.

A MAJOR SHOPPING CENTRE planned for the Hillside-Shelbourne area will look like this when it is completed in the fall of 1968. To the right is the two-storey Simpson-Sears department store. In the centre, with the curved roof, is the existing Safeway store, which is to be greatly enlarged in the master-plan. Linking the two major stores will be a variety of small stores, all connected by a completely enclosed, air-conditioned mall. The first phase of the project includes the areas between the department store and Safeway. Phase two will see the construction of more small stores to the left of Safeway.

Suburban Site 'Second Best But Still Good'

By JIM HUME
City Hall Reporter

The building of a $6 million shopping centre at Hillside and Shelbourne will not detract from Victoria's downtown core, Mayor Hugh Stephen said today.

At a press conference which confirmed a story in Thursday's Times that Simpson-Sears is planning to build the largest shopping centre in Greater Victoria, the mayor said every effort had been made to persuade the company to locate near the city centre.

"But it is a matter of company policy that their shopping centres are in suburban areas," he said. "Faced with the choice of approving the plan or having them, six or seven years from now, locating to the north,

Strong Core Determining Factor

"But I assure you," he said, "that we would not be locating in Victoria at all unless the core of the city was strong."

Construction on the shopping centre, which will have a two-storey Simpson-Sears department store plus 40 small stores, is expected to start in the fall of this year and be completed by the fall of 1968.

The project does have one last hurdle.

The Advisory Planning Commission has given its blessing to the centre, so has city council. But before construction can start it must survive a public hearing scheduled for two weeks from now.

Anticipating complaints from residents of Shakespeare, the

All-Weather Air-Conditioned Mall

Dominion Construction representative Douglas Sutcliffe said the entire complex would be designed to provide an all-weather air-conditioned mall running down the centre of the main buildings.

"This is the latest concept in store design," he said. "The wide mall will provide a completely protected walk for shoppers with controlled temperatures."

The first phase of construction will cover 20 acres of city property with a further seven acres left for development.

The two-storey Simpson-Sears store will cover 140,000 square feet.

It is anticipated the store will provide employment for 300 persons and that the completed centre will offer jobs to between 400 and 500.

FORMER CHIEF ALLAN
... 37 years service

Retired Fire Chief Dies at 59

James Blyth Allan, former city fire chief, died in Royal Jubilee Hospital this morning after a two-month illness with a lung complaint.

Mr. Allan had served the fire department for 37 years when he retired in February this year because of ill health.

He was born in Paisley, Scotland 59 years ago and came to Victoria when he was two.

He joined the department in 1930 as a driver. He was promoted to the rank of lieutenant in 1959 and became assistant chief in 1963.

In April 1965 he became deputy chief and in November of that year was named chief.

RETIRED EARLY

Mr. Allan was due to retire in September of this year but relinquished the post on the advice of his doctors.

He is survived by the widow, Mrs. Allan, a daughter, Mrs. Diane Wisemiller of Nelson, and a son, Christopher, at home. Also surviving are two sisters, Mrs. Eva Hill and Mrs. Betty Brant, both of Victoria, and a brother, George, of Vancouver, and two grandchildren.

Services will be conducted Wednesday at 3:15 at McCall Brothers Funeral Chapel with fireman's honors and under the Masonic auspices. He was a member of Confederation Lodge 116 AF and AM BCR.

Very Rev. Dr. J. L. W. McLean, of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, will officiate and interment will take place at Royal Oak Burial Park.

Workman Blamed For Fire Danger

Let 1,500 Gallons Gasoline Spill Into Inner Harbor

Negligence by a worker allowed about 1,500 gallons of high test gasoline to spill from a giant storage tank alongside Victoria's Inner Harbour Thursday evening.

The fire threat brought an emergency turnout from Victoria's central fire hall.

A department spokesman said today a brisk wind which dispersed the explosive fumes proved a "salvation." There had been considerable danger of a blast being touched off in the area where oil companies have several huge storage tanks.

The threat arose shortly before 6 p.m. while premium gasoline was being pumped from the tanker Tye Shell into the 100,000-gallon storage tank alongside Tye Road.

The department spokesman said one of the men handling the job "wasn't paying attention" and the tank overflowed, slopping gas into a walled area under the base of the tank.

Some of the gas leaked under the retaining wall and firemen had to use sand to block it from flowing into harbor waters.

He said the ambulance manned by city firemen, attends all major calls and was standing by at the scene but available if needed.

COMPULSORY RETIREMENT AT 70 ORDERED FOR ANGLICAN CLERICS

After today all Anglican bishops and clergy in the British Columbia diocese must retire at 70.

A canon law to this effect was passed today at the Synod in session here and was approved by Archbishop Harold Sisson.

It provides that bishops and clergy must tender their resignations at 69 and retire at 70.

'U.S. Not Getting Fair Press Abroad'

A spirited defence of United States' policy in Vietnam was made by Bishop Ralph Dean, executive officer of the Anglican World Communion, Thursday afternoon.

Just returned from a visit to Vietnam, Bishop Dean told the synod (parliament) of the Anglican diocese of British Columbia in Victoria that the U.S. is not getting a fair press abroad.

"For example," he said, "all you hear in England is how they dropped bombs on the wrong village and used the napalm bomb."

"You never hear of their work for peace or their constructive work."

"I saw all kinds of this... a pediatric unit with rows of children in hammocks dying of malnutrition, and even the plague, because the Viet Cong had stolen all their rice."

"They were being tended by American doctors."

Bishop Dean, former Bishop of the Cariboo, said it is unfair there is no news coverage of the U.S. program of re-educating the mountain people of Vietnam.

"In a 13-week program, GIs teach these people all kinds of skills and they are put through training courses by the thousand."

Bishop Dean said the U.S. is in Vietnam because of a commitment to the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization.

"If they fail, what can be said of their integrity in the rest of the world."

The bishop added that he disagrees with the way the war is being waged. He advocated guerrilla fighting as used by Britain to clear the Communists from Malaya.

Principal Hits Grant Stinginess

Blacktop, Hydro Ahead Of Children, Club Told

An emergency meeting of the Union of British Columbia Municipalities executive was being held in New Westminster today.

The meeting, prompted by rising school costs over which municipal councils have no control, began in the morning and was not expected to conclude until late afternoon.

Among those attending the meeting was Saanich Reeve Hugh Curtis, the only UBCM executive member from the Greater Victoria area.

By AL FORREST

The provincial government's school grants policy came under heavy fire today from a prominent district principal.

"When I see the attitude of the provincial government, words fail me," Macaulay Elementary School principal I. A. Isaacson told a Victoria Lions luncheon at the Empress Hotel.

He said the government seems to be more concerned with blacktop and hydro power development than the development of children.

Mr. Isaacson is chairman of the British Columbia Effective Teaching and Learning Conditions committee of the B.C. teachers' Federation.

THREE FRONTS

He charged that the provincial government is not doing its job on three education fronts:

● It has failed to bring its salary grant structure up to date, is paying 50 per cent of teachers salaries as they were about five years ago and therefore is really paying far less than half the cost.

● It has failed to keep the pupil-teacher ratio down to a level that makes for effective teaching.

● It has failed to appoint a full-time education minister.

"In the legislature there seem to be two sides: The government against improvements in education and the opposition parties in favor."

SUMS IT UP

"I'm trying to avoid getting on a political platform on this issue but their failure to appoint a full-time minister seems to sum up their attitude to education."

In contrast, all other groups seem to be rallying behind improvements in the education program from city councils and school boards down through all other organizations.

He particularly noted support from labor councils and parent organizations.

Mr. Isaacson said the $13,930,234 in referendum going before voters on May 13 were evidence of "progressive thinking" by the school board and deserved full support.

UNITED FRONT

Teachers and school board have already welded a united front on the referendum and echoes of support have been heard from councils, labor and parents, he said.

Mr. Isaacson said large amounts of money are needed to help the schools adjust to the tremendous changes in society. "Half today's students will enter occupations not yet invented. Retraining is becoming the rule rather than the exception."

The schools have to consider individual needs, individual differences in the classrooms. They must teach not only facts but the scientific method of learning to produce the self-educating student.

The little red schoolhouse is years in the past. Today's explosion of knowledge requires new methods to prepare children for tomorrow's world.

"All this adds up to more classrooms, more teachers and more money," he said.

"I have nothing but praise for (school board chairman) Peter Bunn and the school board. They have seen the need."

SURPRISE MOVE

B.C. Restores Civil Service Dues Checkoff

Premier Bennett today announced that voluntary checkoff of association dues will be restored to provincial civil servants.

The surprise announcement wipes out one of the biggest and most persistent quarrels between the cabinet and the B.C. Government Employees' Association.

The checkoff was arbitrarily killed by the cabinet in late 1960 despite the association's withdrawal from the B.C. Federation of Labour at a time when union dues going to the New Democratic Party created a general controversy throughout the province.

"A few years ago the civil servants lost their voluntary checkoff," the premier said in a message to the press gallery shortly before press time.

SAME BASIS

"I am announcing today that it will be reinstated on the same basis as before because they've (BCGEA) shown a great responsibility of action."

"On the recommendation of (Civil Service Commission chairman) Dr. Hugh Morrison, we are reinstating the voluntary checkoff to the BCGEA forthwith."

Premier Bennett said the decision had come "right out of the blue" after a unilateral study and the BCGEA officials had not been given prior information of it.

The BCGEA now represents about 7,000 of the 19,000 government employees. Its members give their monthly dues to the association directly.

More than half of the 4,000 government employees in this area are believed to be members in good standing of the BCGEA at present. This figure likely will shoot up when the can be paid by salary checkoff, the customary procedure today in collecting union dues.

Ask The Times

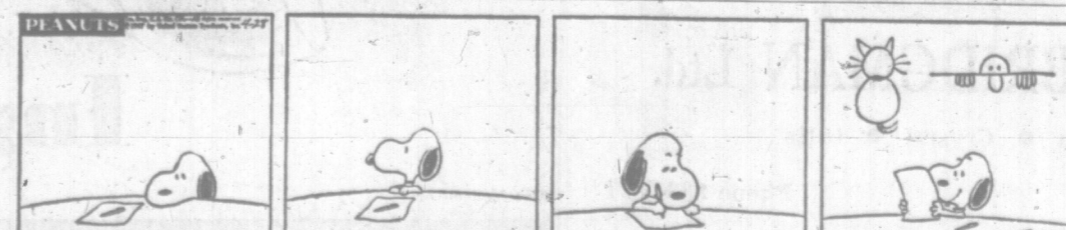

Q. Did Ask the Times make an error in its answer to a recent question on Hollywood House?—Numerous Callers.

A. Yes. We said Mary Queen of Scots was murdered there. She wasn't. She lived there and her secretary David Rizzio was murdered there. Mary Queen of Scots was executed at Fotheringhay.

Q. How long have starlings been on the West Coast? Do they eat insects? Has any official war been declared on them?—O.W.M.

A. Starlings were first seen in B.C. at Oliver in 1947, says Dr. Clifford Carl of the Provincial Museum. They feed on many noxious insects and weed seeds. No "war" has been declared on them although some years ago when a great brood nested in a residential area, trees were cut down to deprive them of their habitat.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the problem along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily. SNIP—Rosalee Kirkness, a 13-year-old Cree Indian girl from God's Lake Narrows, Man., gives the official snip that opened the Canadian steel industry pavilion during inaugural ceremony.

Adventure Climax Is Expo-Opening for Indian Girl

SCHOOL PROJECT BRINGS FAME

MONTREAL (CP)—Rosalee Kirkness, 13-year-old Cree Indian girl, Thursday night grasped a pair of metal shears cut through the steel ribbon outside the Canadian steel industry pavilion at Expo 67 and said: "No pas ta nan oma pewapisk amig."

She then smiled and said in English, "I declare the steel pavilion officially open."

Thus came to an end a series of events which catapulted Rosalee from an isolated Indian reserve at God's Lake Narrows, Man., into the splendor and excitement of Expo 67.

Her adventure began Jan. 10 when her teacher asked each pupil of the Grade 6 class to write to a large company for information about a particular industry, as part of a class project.

Rosalee wrote to the American Iron and Steel Institute and received not only a personal reply from President John P. Roche but also an invitation to participate in the opening ceremony of the steel pavilion.

Rosalee's letter read in part: "This is my first letter I write before... There are about 800 Cree Indians here on the mainland and on the island there are 16 white people. We don't have any animals like horses, cows, pigs, or hens, just dogs and two cats."

"Please do not think that I'm writing to you only to get a lot of stuff. I am writing to you because I'm enjoying it as well, and I'll be thankful for anything you send me. It is a new experience for us and from what we receive, we will certainly learn a lot more about Canada. I just hope that sometime I may visit you but in the meantime if you wish a little souvenir of God's Lake Narrows tell me what you would like and I'll try to do the best I can."

SHE MADE A HIT

Mr. Roche was so impressed with her detailed account of life on the reserve he replied in part:

"Dear Rosalee: "It was indeed a pleasure to meet you through your most informative letter. Your description of the area and life at God's Lake Narrows gave us a very good picture of the community. "We are very glad you wrote to us; Rosalee, because we do have several booklets which explain what Iron and steel are."

"We'd like to ask you for something too. Would you send us a snapshot of yourself, of your home... also a sketch map which would show us God's Lake Narrows, Elk Island, your house and the various schools?"

One thing led to another and finally Rosalee was chosen to open the steel pavilion.

AWED BY CITY LIFE

And so, Rosalee, who had never seen a television set or a department store, or a city, boarded an airplane Thursday and came to Montreal.

When asked how she felt about being chosen to come to Expo, she smiled gently and said: "I'm so happy. But I got sick on the plane. I'm keeping a diary of everything."

And when she was taken shopping for the first time she promptly chose a mini-skirt. She also had her hair done. Asked whether she was going to fly back, she replied: "Oh yes, but I'm going to take some pills."

League Reaches Goal For Scholarship Fund

The aim of $7,500, to provide annual scholarships for deserving students across Canada has been reached, Mrs. C. E. Archer told the British Columbia Council, Canadian Daughters' League convention, recently.

Mrs. Archer, national president from Edmonton, said that the national scholarship fund had originated several years ago as a centennial project. With the target reached, she said, the first scholarship will be awarded in 1968.

Retiring provincial president Mrs. J. A. Walker, Vancouver, presided at the three-day meeting in the Strathcona Hotel.

Resolutions presented at the sessions included the setting up of a national flag day, a proposed ban on the sale of fireworks excepting controlled public displays, and adequate warning labels for glue and cements containing volatile hydrocarbons, which can cause brain and internal damage if used incorrectly.

The council also voted to support the Weir version of the national anthem.

In the education department, it was reported that the Misses Gwyneth Davis and Diane Bloedel had been awarded scholarships, and Robert Har-

Trophies were presented and recipients included: Mary Upton Ross Trophy for largest membership increase, Nanaimo No. 72; silver tray for best floor work of a drill team during the provincial president's official visit, New Westminster No. 70; Jessie Cadman Award for a member carrying out the organization's ideals, Mrs. L. Gleeck, Nanaimo No. 72.

Clay Refuses Army Service
Stripped of Title by New YorkIncrease War Pressures, Urges General

WASHINGTON (AP)—Gen. William Westmoreland told Congress today the only strategy that can defeat the Communists in Vietnam "is one of unrelenting military, political and psychological pressure on his whole structure—at all levels."

This appeared as a call for increased escalation, possibly including broadened bombing of North Vietnam and commitment of more U.S. troops in South Vietnam.

In an unprecedented personal report to Congress by a war commander, Westmoreland described U.S. forces as "unbeatable" and said they have been successful in destroying Communist main force units.

He said "I can assure you here and now" that the Communist stratagem called "war of national liberation" will not succeed in Vietnam.

But while speaking confidently to the U.S. commander of 439,000 men in Vietnam sought to dispel any idea that the Communists are near collapse.

Several hours before delivering the speech, Westmoreland revised the last third of the text, mainly to streamline it. There were few substantive changes.

He inserted one paragraph which made the point that the Communist enemy "uses covertly border areas of neutral countries." This was an evident reference to the known Communist use of Cambodia and Laos as sanctuaries and rest areas. Neither country was mentioned by name in the paragraph.

In considerable detail, Westmoreland pictured an enemy who has doubled his strength despite heavy battle losses whose commanders are skilled professionals, whose troops are well trained, whose primitive supply system is surprisingly effective.

"I foresee that he will continue his buildup across the demilitarized zone and through Laos, and he will attack us when he believes he has a chance for a dramatic blow," the general predicted.

"I expect the enemy to continue to increase his mortar, artillery, rocket and recoilless rifle attacks on our installations."

Robbers
Hit Ambush

MIAMI (UPI)—Three men robbed an armored car of more than $285,000 today and drove straight into a stream of gunfire from 25 deputies and FBI agents. One holdup man was killed and a veteran sheriff's deputy was arrested.

The third man, believed wounded, escaped, tracked by dogs and helicopters. All the money taken from the armored truck was recovered.

Gold Missing

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—A gold bar worth approximately $12,000 is missing from the theft-plagued San Francisco mint; the San Francisco Chronicle reports. The bar, which weighs about 31 pounds, has been missing at least two months. Five mint employees have been charged with stealing coins and gold blanks from the mint.

Peak Climbed

GLENALLEN, Alaska (AP)—The highest unclimbed, unnamed peak in Alaska's Wrangell Range on the Yukon border was conquered by six members of a joint American-Japanese party. The 14,000-foot peak was named Mt. Kobe in honor of the sister-city tie between Kobe, Japan, and Seattle, Wash.

Gary Fisher, of Glenallen, who has kept in radio contact with the party, said the summit was reached at 8:21 a.m. Thursday, after the climbers were forced to spend the night in an ice cave at the 13,700-foot level.

Five Rescued

CAPE MAY, N.J. (AP)—Five men were plucked from a stormy sea today moments after their fishing boat sank following a 16-hour battle against raging winds and waves.

The captain and four crew of the boat Mockingbird were reported in good condition after the United States Coast Guard cutter, Sassafras, hauled them out of the water.

Schools Closed

LETHBRIDGE (CP)—Most rural schools from Slavery south were closed today and traffic ground almost to a halt as the Lethbridge area recoiled from 12 inches of new snow.

All available snow removal equipment was pressed into service and a call went out for help from privately-owned equipment as the heavy, wet snow continued to fall, fanned by 26-mile-an-hour winds from the north-east.

Kills Two

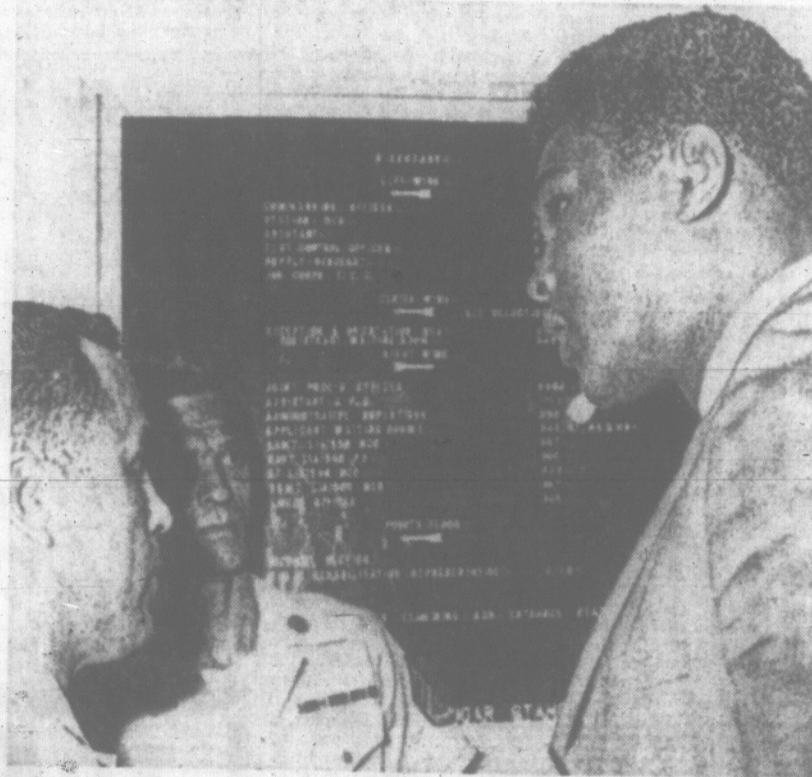

VANCOUVER (CP)—The bodies of two men were found early today after their light aircraft was seen crashing to marshy swamplands next to the Vancouver airport about midnight.

Rescue teams found the bodies of Robert Kevin Johnson, 38, and Dean LaMar Hoffman, 44, both of Powell River, about 2:19 a.m.

Workmen reported seeing the one-engine airplane smash into the swamp, but it took rescue crews more than two hours before they found the crumpled wreckage about 100 feet from where the aircraft first struck down.

CANADA WILL NEVER BE THE SAME

Expo 'C'est Merveilleux'

By PETER NEWMAN
Special to The Times

MONTREAL—The cannoneading of fireworks which marked the opening of Expo, bursting in a technicolor tattoo over the St. Lawrence on an April afternoon, may in retrospect turn out to have been one of those rare moments that change the direction of a nation's history.

How, after sponsoring this world's fair, can we ever be the same again? This is the greatest thing we have ever done as a nation (including the building of the CPR) and surely the modernization of Canada—of its skyline, of its tastes, its style, its institutions—will be dated from this occasion and from this fair.

At the very moment when the governor-general, a sombre presence amid the gaiety of the day, declared Expo-67 officially open, I was standing in front of the U.S. pavilion, which was shimmering and soaring in the sun like an aviary fit for eagles. Beside me, a young Expo hostess, all done up in white leather and a blue beanie, shrieked in pleasure at no one in particular, "C'est merveilleux".

And it was marvelous, all of it. Not just any one building or exhibit; not just the zooming helicopters and purring hovercraft, but everything. It's a wow of a fair. It's

MONTREAL (CP)—More than 30,000 visitors had entered Expo 67 by noon on its first public day. With an original estimate of nearly 150,000 visitors for the full day, officials were bracing themselves for a heavy rush after 5 p.m.

Earlier, seven men, protesting United States participation in the war in Vietnam, staged a sitdown in the main foyer of the U.S. Pavilion.

The sitdown started as a planned march on Expo by another group of demonstrators dispersed peacefully before reaching the Expo gates.

fabulous. It's the sun and the moon and the stars. And the more you see of it, the more you're overwhelmed by a feeling that if this is possible, that if this little sub-Arctic, self-obsessed country of 20 million people can put on this kind of show, then it can do almost anything.

The $650 million Expo will cost is a small price for the impression of Canada its 35

2-Day Ceasefire
Ordered by Cong

SAIGON (CP)—The Viet Cong today ordered their guerrillas to observe a two-day ceasefire beginning May 22 to mark the birth of Buddha.

A statement by the Viet Cong news agency said the truce would be observed in response to an appeal by Buddhist leaders in Saigon, who called for a ceasefire to allow for religious festivals.

South Vietnamese officials said they were studying the Viet Cong proposal, but declined to make any immediate comment on the Communist offer, which doubled a 24-hour ceasefire proposed by South Vietnam and its allies.

A statement by the National Liberation Front, the political arm of Viet Cong, was broadcast by the front's clandestine radio.

It warned, however, that any military attacks by the Saigon government or its allies in the 48-hour period would be "severely punished."

The Viet Cong ceasefire was scheduled to begin at 7 a.m. May 22 and end at 7 a.m. May 24. The South Vietnamese truce, including a pause in the bombing of North Vietnam, was announced April 8 for May 23 only.

Noranda Drops
Brenda Project

TORONTO (CP)—Noranda Mines, Ltd., announced today it will shelve the $90,000,000 development of its Newman copper property and a low-grade copper property owned by Brenda Mines, Ltd., both in British Columbia.

R. V. Porritt, president, told the company's annual meeting the projects were scrapped because of the adverse effect which implementation of the Carter report on taxation would have on them.

The Newman property is at Babine Lake and the low-grade molybdenum-copper property of Brenda Mines is near Penticton.

Boxing Champion
Faces Jail Term

HOUSTON (UPI)—Heavyweight boxing champion Cassius Clay today refused to take the oath that would have made him Pte. Mohammed Ali of the United States Army.

Clay, refusing induction under his Black Muslim name, thus became liable for prosecution by the justice department. But that process could take months, even years, and Clay said he was confident he would be vindicated.

Minutes after Clay refused induction, the New York State Athletic Commission announced that it had suspended Clay's boxing licence in that state, and had withdrawn recognition of him as the titleholder. The World Boxing Association and other controlling groups in the sport were expected to take similar action.

The champion submitted to a battery of physical examinations, blood tests and X-rays at the Houston induction centre, but when it came time to step forward and take the oath, he declined—just as he said he would do.

Hands Out Prepared Statement

Clay had a prepared statement that he handed out personally to reporters after the induction ceremony was over. He declined to read the statement himself, and he declined to make any other comment.

While reporters read the statement, Clay walked out of the building.

"Regardless of the difference in my outlook, I insist upon my right to pursue my livelihood in accordance with the same rights granted to other men and women who had disagreed with the policies of whatever administration was in power at the time," the statement said.

"I am looking forward to immediately continuing my profession," the statement said. "As to the threat voiced by certain elements to 'strip' me of my title, this is merely a continuation of the same artificially-induced prejudice and discrimination."

When Clay saw his last legal effort to stay out of the army thrown out of court on Thursday, he told reporters he still planned to fight former world champion Floyd Patterson soon in either Tokyo, Cairo or Beirut.

In his statement, he showed that he expected his crown to be taken away from him because of his refusal to be drafted. "I had the world heavyweight title, not because it was 'given' to me, not because of my race or religion, but because I won it in the ring through my own boxing ability," the statement said.

Never Accept Such 'Titleholder'

"Those who want to 'take' it and hold a series of auction-type bouts not only do me a disservice but actually disgrace themselves. I am certain that the sports fans and fair-minded people throughout America would never accept such a 'titleholder.'"

As Clay circulated around the room, handing out the statement, he was obviously particular whom he gave a copy to.

"Who are you?" he would ask. If the answer suited him, Clay would hand the reporter a copy.

"In closing," the statement said, "let me thank those few but noteworthy members of the press who, despite an atmosphere of prejudice and hostility which has been against me because of my religious views, have tried to present me in a fair and impartial manner."

He signed each copy of the statement with a pen in his Muslim name.

His attorney, Hayden Covington of New York, announced he would refile immediately a 67-page lawsuit challenging the entire structure of the Selective Service System and the right of the government to take criminal action against his client.

"The champ will never go to jail—we will fight this out to the finish," Covington said. He added that he planned to seek an injunction against the government's prosecution of the heavyweight champion.

Clay sought to avoid the draft on grounds that he is a practicing minister of the Islam faith and that boxing is only a sideline.

His lawyers contended also that he was discriminated against because of the unpopularity of the Muslim religion and the makeup of the Texas draft boards which they said have an unfair Negro representation.

Doctor Faces Life in Jail;
Convicted of Killing Wife

NAPLES, Fla. (AP)—Dr. read by the court clerk, Circuit Judge Lynn Silvertooth sent spectators out of the small, hot second-degree murder by an all-male jury today in the drug-murder of his wife Carmela and was sentenced to life in prison.

Conviction of second-degree murder carries a penalty of 20 years to life in prison.

Coppolino sat expressionless with his head in his hands as the verdict was delivered at 9:25 a.m. after less than four hours of jury deliberation.

Mary Coppolino, the wealthy divorcee he married after Carmela's death, also sat expressionless in a front row seat just behind her husband at the defence table.

Defence lawyer F. Lee Bailey moved immediately for a new trial and said if the motion was denied the case would be appealed to the Florida Supreme Court.

After the jury foreman, 48-year-old Harry Miller of Naples, delivered the verdict and it was courtroom. Then he delivered the sentence of life imprisonment.

The 34-year-old doctor, nattily dressed in a black suit and white shirt, was marched under guard out a side door of the courtroom to a jail cell on the same floor.

The defeat was a stunning one for Bailey, the dynamic, 33-year-old Boston defender who sprang into national prominence when he gained a new trial that freed Dr. Sam Sheppard.

The judge ordered Coppolino taken into custody immediately, and delivered to the state penitentiary at Raiford. Bailey protested the verdict as invalid and illegal and moved that Coppolino be discharged.

"This is obviously the sort of charge where the verdict must be maximum or nothing," said Bailey. "There is no in between. From the allegation of poisoning the second-degree conviction cannot stand."

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP)—A shapely blonde plunged in to a heated swimming pool to demonstrate a new paper bikini for the press and the worst happened—or the best, according to one's point of view.

The top part of the suit—guaranteed not to shrink, burn or disintegrate—floated away Thursday from 23-year-old Noel Steever.

While she sought to fix it, a public relations man explained to gaping reporters:

"It's not really a piece of athletic wear. It's not a thing to go swimming in, really."

Most of the reporters hardly heard him. They were watching Miss Body Chemistry of 1967.

Miss Steever later said the $4 swimsuit "could use some design changes."

tions. At the same time they will step up his attacks on hamlet, village and district organiza- tions to intimidate the people and to thwart the democratic processes now under way in South Vietnam.

DIDN'T REPEAT CHARGE

Westmoreland did not repeat his charge—made at The Associated Press annual meeting in New York Monday—that anti-war protests in the United States—which he labelled "un- patriotic"—are encouraging the Communists to fight on, and that this will cost the lives of American and allied soldiers.

"The closest the general came to this was to recall that 'as I have said before, in evaluating the enemy strategy it is evident to me that he believes our Achilles' heel is our resolve'."

He assured Congress his troops—"the finest ever fielded by our nation"—will prevail in Vietnam over Communists' aggression, "backed here at home by resolve, confidence, patience, by determination and continued support."

Recounting recent instances of Viet Cong assassinations of South Vietnamese civilians, Westmoreland declared:

"One hears little of this brutality here at home. What we do hear about is our own aerial bombing against North Vietnam."

Then, in defence of U.S. air attacks on the North, Westmoreland said:

"For years, the enemy has been blowing bridges, interrupting traffic, cutting roads, sabotaging power stations, blocking canals and attacking airfields in the South, and he continues to do so."

"Bombing in the North has been centred on precisely those same kinds of targets and for the same military purposes—to reduce the supply, interdict the movement and impair the effectiveness of enemy military forces."

ONE ROCKET, 5 SATELLITES

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP)—A powerful Titan rocket today successfully orbited three scientific satellites and two robot sentries to police any violations of the nuclear test-ban treaty.

"Everything looks very good," an air force spokes- man reported after all five satellites sprung free from the booster's last stage.
